Gas Rationing Powers Given Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — An emergency energy bill giving President Nixon sole power to order gasoline rationing immediately and giving Congress veto power over other actions he might take is emerging from a Senate-House conference committee.

After an all-day session ending late Tuesday, congressional conferees said they hope to complete drafting work late today on the sweeping energy bill.

President Nixon, meanwhile, arranged a mid-afternoon huddle with energy chief William E. Simon as a deadline neared for the administration's decision on gasoline rationing. Simon has said he expects such a decision to come this week.

A presidential press aide would not predict whether the meeting, which will precede the regular weekly gathering of the administration's Energy Emergency Action Group, would produce a rationing announcement.

In another development, the Teamsters said they would reopen contract negotiations with the trucking industry to make sure that energy crisis actions do not cut into their members' paychecks.

An Associated Press study completed today shows that energy conservation by individual Americans is beginning to pay off in many areas of the country. The study showed an appreciable drop in useage of electricity in the past six weeks over a similar period last year. Utility officials said it was hard to measure the exact effect of the conservation measures.

According to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, the White House and Capitol Hill power-sharing compromise plan worked out Tuesday would work this way under a tentative agreement:

—The President would operate without threat of congressional veto in ordering rationing of gasoline or any other scarce fuel. He could order other energy-saving steps, such as shorter working hours and forced car-pooling, into effect immediately but Congress would have 15 legislative work days in which to cancel them after it returns Jan. 21 from its year-end break.

—Further energy conservation proposals by the President after March 1 could not take effect until Congress has had 15 working days in which to veto them, by simple majority of the House or Senate. After June 30, any White House fuel-saving measures would have to take the form of legislation to be acted on by Congress.

The conference panel also agreed to adopt House-passed language granting limited anti-trust exemptions to the petroleum industry, but to drop a House provision giving similar exemptions to retailers.

The Senate-House committee also approved granting up to two years in unemployment benefits for those who lose their jobs as a result of fuel shortages. In addition, the panel adopted language giving the administration power to limit export of any scarce fuel but put off final action on a House amendment specifically banning military petroleum shipments to Indochina.

Jackson said a House-passed provision banning use of scarce fuel for busing children beyond their neighborhood schools would be stripped from the legislation in the compromise bill.

In other energy-related developments Tuesday:

—The Teamsters union said it was reopening negotiations with the trucking industry to make up for wage losses due to higher fuel costs and lower speed limits. Union president Frank E. Fitzsimmons said his members would not be unduly affected by the energy crisis.

—Nixon ordered aides not to arrange a charter flight for White House correspondents who want to cover his planned post-Christmas vacation in Florida. It has always been White House custom to arrange the flight and other accomodations, which are paid for by the news organizations.

—The stock market moved sharply higher, closing up 18.37 points at 829.49. Analysts said investors were gauging the chances of a renewed oil flow from the Middle East and the effect of energy conservation measures at home.

—Other Senate-House conferees approved a compromise $73.75 billion defense money bill keeping a ban on military shipment of petroleum to Southeast Asia for use by foreign forces.

—The Senate debated a bill to create the agency to run the energy program, and planned a vote today on an amendment to continue price controls on crude oil and petroleum products until June 30, 1975.

—The House Government Operations Committee prepared to act today on similar legislation setting up the Federal Energy Administration.

Kuwait Ponders The Next Step On Hijackers

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait officials gave no indication today what they would do with five Palestinian terrorists who killed 32 persons in a two-day spree at airports in Rome and Athens.

The five guerrillas flashed V-for-victory signs and said they were proud of what they had done as they were taken in handcuffs Tuesday night to a military air base for questioning. They had freed 12 hostages unharmed and then surrendered after flying here in a hijacked West German jet.

Officials of Lufthansa, the West German airline, said the Kuwaitis promised the terrorists safe passage to an undisclosed destination, but Kuwaiti officials said the surrender was unconditional.

The German pilot of the hijacked plane went to a hotel room and told the switchboard not to put any calls through to him. Five Italian policemen who were among the hostages went to the night club at the Kuwait Hilton.

The guerrillas killed 30 persons by firebombing a Pan American jet Monday at Rome's Fiumicino airport and shot an Italian policeman to death. They killed another Italian among their hostages in Athens and threw his body out of the plane.

But reports from the plane that four other hostages had been murdered were false, concocted by the guerrillas in a futile attempt to get the Greek government to release two Black September terrorists awaiting trial for murder.

At least 14 of the victims of the Rome firebombing were Americans, and a 16-year-old American girl who survived, Robbie Haggard, was in critical condition with burns over much of her body.

The guerrillas told newsmen they considered themselves guests in Kuwait and believed they would be well treated.

"We are Palestinian Arabs, proud of what we did," one said. "We are not criminals. The criminals are those who bomb Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon."

West German Ambassador Hans-Helmut Freundt said the hostages would be flown out of Kuwait today. They included the five Italians, an Ethiopian ground employe at the Rome airport, West German, French and Austrian stewardesses, and the three crewmen of the Lufthansa Boeing 737.

The three stewardesses sat in the Hilton lobby, surrounded by roses, and told of their ordeal with tears and smiles alternating.

"We were scared to death in the beginning, but they did not mistreat us," said Claude Poinsard, 22, the French girl. "They kept saying, 'We are not criminals and we don't want to kill you.' But they never spoke about Palestine."

Melvin Laird Resigns

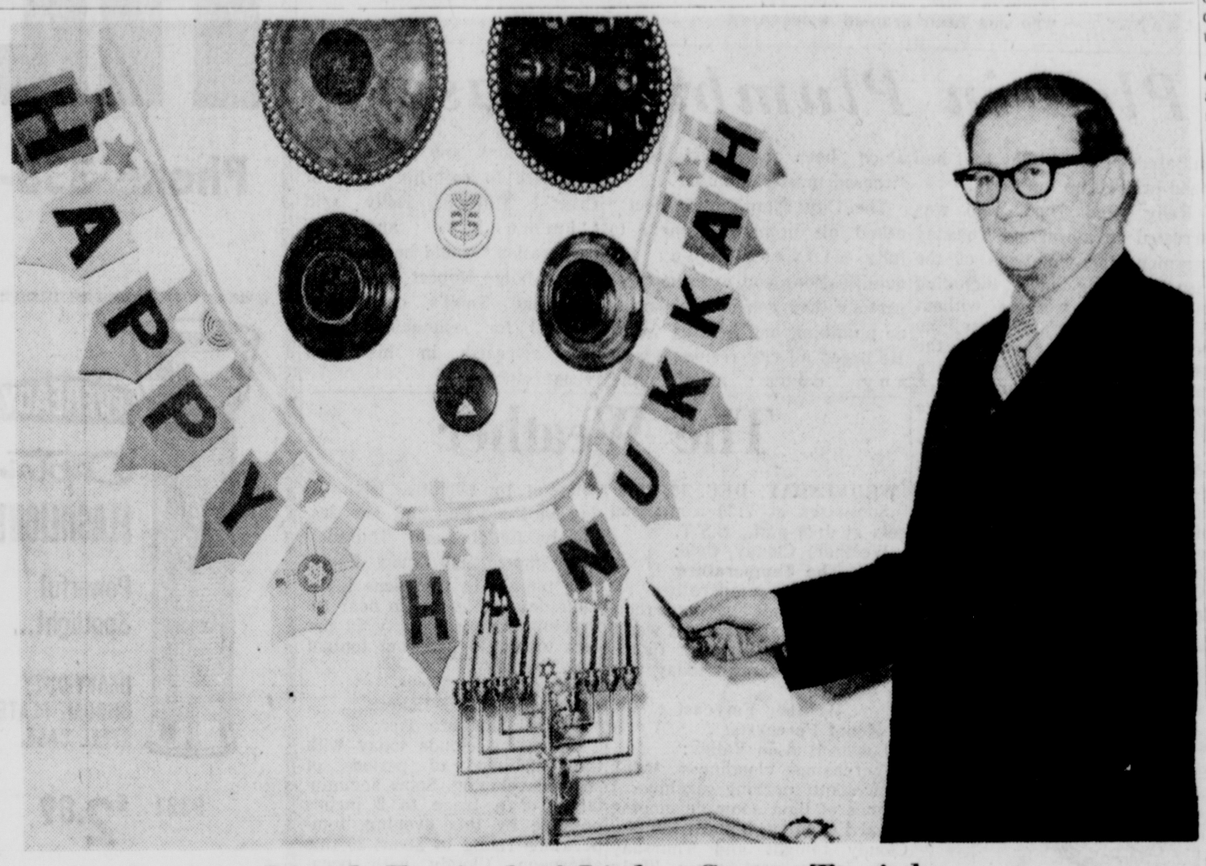

WASHINGTON (AP)—Melvin R. Laird resigned today as President Nixon's chief domestic counselor and called upon his former colleagues in the House of Representatives to vote by March 15 on an impeachment resolution.

Laird said the continuing controversy over Watergate and other issues was hurting America's foreign and domestic policies and said it is time for House members to "accept their constitutional responsibilities" and vote on whether Nixon should be impeached.

He predicted impeachment would fail.

New Paltz College Facing Dwindling Paper Supply

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ

The State University College at New Paltz, which recently moved decisively to meet the energy crisis, must now seek to meet another crisis. It is running out of paper.

Donald Kent, director of publications at the college, will be meeting with Ron Wormser, the college's vice president for administration, this week to try to work out a program to conserve the college's dwindling paper supply. Kent said Tuesday that the college would probably have to set priorities, most likely in a joint decision among the groups using the college's print facilities, on what will get printed and what will not.

The paper shortage is not limited to New Paltz. It is a problem both state and nationwide, and is affecting all areas of the printing industry.

The shortage has reached the critical point at the college. Kent said the college now has about 20 cases—200 reams—of white mimeograph paper on hand. Under normal circumstances that would last "maybe a month," he said. It may have to last much longer under the present circumstances.

Special

The mimeograph paper is used mainly in departmental reproducing machines. The paper the print shop uses, offset paper, is also in short supply, with only about 20 cases of that on hand. More offset is on order, Kent said, but it may not be under the state contract by the time it arrives.

The state contract, whereby all the state agencies as a unit solicit bids on an item, ran out of white mimeograph paper and ditto paper last summer. It has since run out of xerox paper, and may be running out of offset paper. It never had any colored mimeograph paper on it.

Kent said the college was authorized to buy as much as $500 worth of paper on the commercial market without higher approval, but that buying on the commercial market was about 75 per cent more expensive, and the college had not yet taken that step.

Of the paper shortage, Kent said, "I assume everybody in the whole state is faced with this problem, or will be in the near future."

The New Paltz print shop employs two printers, a composer, and a lot of student help. Kent said "millions and millions of impressions" are made yearly by the print shop, in addition, the duplicating center in the Administration Building used for administrative materials, form letters, and so forth, about 200,000 sheets of paper a month, nearly 2 million sheets a year.

"The problem is who's going to set priorities," said Kent. "Everyone thinks their own work is essential." Nevertheless, he said, some new ways of transmitting information are going to have to be used at the college to meet the paper crisis.

Kent has suggested a number of ways of conserving paper to the college community, in a series of memos extending back to August. He said the voluntary reduction measures had met with "some success." Among the things Kent has suggested, and which will have to be more widespread at New Paltz, are not printing anything which is not absolutely necessary or which duplicates other peoples efforts; using both sides of the paper where possible; using smaller paper, making no more copies than necessary, and making greater use of bulletin boards and other methods for distributing information.

"I guess we're entering again an age of need, instead of an age of affluence," observed Kent.

$3.3 Million Building

City Treatment Plant Open

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINSTON

Almost four years to the day after the State Department of Environmental Conservation charged the city of Kingston with polluting the Rondout Creek, the city has taken its first major step in cleaning it up: a $3.3 million waste water treatment plant on the Strand.

"The plant is operational," reports Christus Larios of the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios, designers of the sewage treatment plant. Larios indicated however that the plant was on "a shakedown cruise" and that it might take some time "to get the bugs out" but nonetheless declared the facility is doing the job it was designed for.

The state had actually notified the city in early 1967 that it was polluting the Rondout Creek through its primary sewage treatment plant on the Strand, but the city, other than talking about it, took little action until the last few days of the Garraghan Administration. At that time, Dec. 29, 1969, the state made it official. The city, choosing to avoid a confrontation which it could only lose, agreed that it was polluting the Rondout and immediately went to work on the sewage treatment plant which went operational last week.

According to Larios, the old plant was removing only about 30 per cent of bacteria and suspended solids while the new plant will remove "upwards of 90 per cent." Larios called that "a significant reduction."

There is still some work to be done on the plant before it can be declared completed. In June of this year the federal government approved an expenditure of an additional $452,600 for the installation of digesters to heat and digest sludge and those won't be installed until next spring.

Overall financing is still somewhat up in the air. The city has applied for additional federal and state funds which could reduce its share from the currently projected $1.2 million to as low as $546,000. The state's share is currently just over one million dollars.

The city's sewage treatment plant will be a regional facility, servicing several parts of the Town of Ulster and most of the Town of Esopus once those municipalities get their sewage systems hooked in. The city plant can handle 5 million gallons of sewage a day, probably about a million more gallons per day than is expected to be generated in Kingston.

Larios explained that the city has no choice in sharing the facility that in accepting federal funds it agreed to comply with a county-wide comprehensive study.

Indications are that the new plant will be about twice as expensive to operate as the old one, with the engineers recommending 21 workers as compared to abut 10 previously. However, part of that cost will be borne by outside municipalities hooking into the city's new facility.

Bids on the plant were opened on Feb. 2, 1972 and contracts awarded the following month. Thalle Construction Inc. of Yonkers was the general contractor, Thomas O'Leary of Kingston was the electrical contractor, Bank Brothers Inc. of Accord were the contractors on both plumbing and heating and ventilation.

Energy Saving Pays Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Energy conservation efforts by Americans are beginning to pay off in many areas of the country, although utility officials and heating oil suppliers say it's hard to measure the exact effect.

Supply and demand guidelines planned by world's 12 major oil-producing nations. Story page 5.

An Associated Press survey showed less electricity was used in November and the first two weeks of December this year than in a corresponding period last year.

In almost every area, however, the weather was warmer than it was last year. At the same time, there were more electricity customers, making it difficult for officials to measure the actual savings.

The Edison Electric Institute, an association of investor-owned utilities which compiles nationwide statistics, reported that for the first three weeks of November, electricity consumption was higher this year than last.

Then the picture changed. In the following three weeks, electricity consumption went down. The institute reported, for example, that 34.700 billion kilowatts of electricity were used during the week ended Dec. 8, 1973, compared to 35.692 billion kilowatts during the comparable week in 1972. That's a decline of almost 2½ per cent.

Edison Electric makes no attempt to figure out why the usage is lower, but individual utilities are trying to determine the reason.

The Philadelphia Electric Co., which reported that electricity consumption in November 1973 was three per cent less than in the same month last year and which predicts a greater drop in December, said: "It's mainly due to consumer conservation and to customers making a conscientious effort to eliminate the use of electricity and better utilize their appliances."

Statistics on heating oil were more difficult to obtain since many companies said they had not compiled any statistics. But a trade association of heating oil dealers in the state of Washington said it found a 10 to 15 per cent cut in usage and attributed the drop to conservation efforts.

Thomas J. Scott, president of Buckley & Scott Co., which owns fuel companies serving about 50,000 customers in parts of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Hampshire, said about 17 per cent less oil was burned this November than in November of last year.

About 24 per cent of the nation's homeowners heat with oil.

Winter Storms Raising Havoc Throughout Nation

By United Press International

Freezing rain, heavy snow and blizzard conditions today paralyzed portions of the central United States.

Heavy snow or winter storm warnings extended from the mountains of Colorado and New Mexico, through the Central Plains and Central Mississippi Valley region, and into the northern portions of the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Blizzard or blizzard conditions, backed by winds up to 45 miles per hour, were expected to last during the day over much of Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

Many schools in the Colorado-Wyoming area were closed today. Numerous basketball games scheduled for Tuesday night were canceled.

Firefighters near Glenrock, Wyo., braved 15-degree temperatures and gusty winds with blowing snow in their battle against a two-week old oil well fire where damage was expected to go into the millions.

In the East, many of the 200,000 homes that have been without power since Sunday night today were still without lights or heat.

The Denvier Headquarters of the State Patrol reported their switchboard was swamped with calls from drivers who had fought the weather and lost.

"When we have 30 pileups all over the roads, that's pretty bad," said one dispatcher. "We can barely handle all of the accident reports that are pouring in. And it's all over, not just Denver."

The Museum of Natural History in Denver City Park closed up Tuesday after the storm knocked out all power in the building. The Denver Post decided to cancel printing its final street edition because of distribution problems.

Governors from Arizon and New Mexico were forced to cancel their attendance at the Four Corners Regional Commission meeting in Denver because of the snow.

The storm dumped 10 inches of snow in Montana, seven inches in the Black hills of South Dakota, 12 inches in Meeker, Colo., and in Silver Bay, Minn., 18 inches fell, forcing the closing of schools and keeping many residents home from work. The 18 inches were more than the total received all of last winter.

The new Arctic blast tumbled temperatures in the South by more than 30 degrees, with as much as four inches of snow expected in Texas today.

"We've got snow and blowing snow helped along by northerly winds gusting to 50 miles per hour," said a Salhart, Tex., resident. "This puts the wind chill factor down to less than 20 degrees below freezing.

A Long Island, N.Y., lighting company spokesman said up to 70,000 customers, mainly in Nassau and Suffolk counties, were still without power today. He said an earlier figure of 53,000 had to be revised upward "because downed trees and travel conditions prevented us from making a complete inspection."

The death toll from the eastern storm reached at least 22 Tuesday. The weather was blamed for six deaths in New York, five in Virginia, three in Pennsylvania, two each in Connecticut and Maryland, and one each in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Indiana.

Rondout Board Approves System

KYSERIKE

The Rondout Valley Board of Education Tuesday night approved purchase of a burglar alarm system for the district's school bus garage.

The system will be purchased from Protect-a-Lert Inc. of Poughkeepsie. The garage has been broken into several times lately and a total of more than $2,000 in tools and equipment reportedly was stolen.

District Clerk John Basten was named by the board to represent the district to the New York State School Boards Association, which will establish a newsletter for exchange of information between various districts. Basten and representatives of other districts will collect various news items and notices of board actions and submit them to the journal, which will be published by NYSSBA and distributed to all school districts in the state.

The board named Mrs. Anne Morgan as a scholarship director for the District. She replaces Clarence Hansen, who resigned for health reasons. The Scholarship fund directors oversee distribution of Scholarship funds contributed for graduating high school seniors.

The board appointed Mrs. Eleanor Morton as a second grade teacher in Rosendale Elementary School. She replaces Mrs. Anne Zaccheo, who has been granted a leave of absence for the remainder of the school year. Mrs. Miliru Parker was transferred from a part-time position as school nurse-teacher for the Rosendale Elementary and St. Peter's Elementary school to a full time position as nurse-teacher at the Kerhonkson Elementary School. She replaces Mrs. Mabel LaFalce, who will retired effective Dec. 31.

Mrs. Linda Golden, a first grade teacher at Accord Elemenary School, was granted a leave of absence for the 1974-75 school year.

Michael Ostoyic was named a custodial worker in the Rosendale Elementary School and the board accepted the resignation of Edwin Craig from the custodial staff.

Guilty Plea in Plumbing Case

KINGSTON

Raymond Topp, 61, of RD 5, Box 156, Kingston, pleaded guilty in City Court Tuesday to violations of the city plumbing code — violations which resulted in a "near tragedy" Nov. 14, according to City Plumbing Inspector Charles J. Kelly.

According to Kelly, three people were hospitalized, including Topp, when they were overcome by fumes from an improperly installed bolder at 37-39 Clinton Avenue.

Following the incident, Kelly was called in to investigate by Central Hudson, and he said his investigation showed that a hot water gas-fired heating boiler was installed without a flue gas diverter and the flue terminated into a chimey that had been bricked up for years.

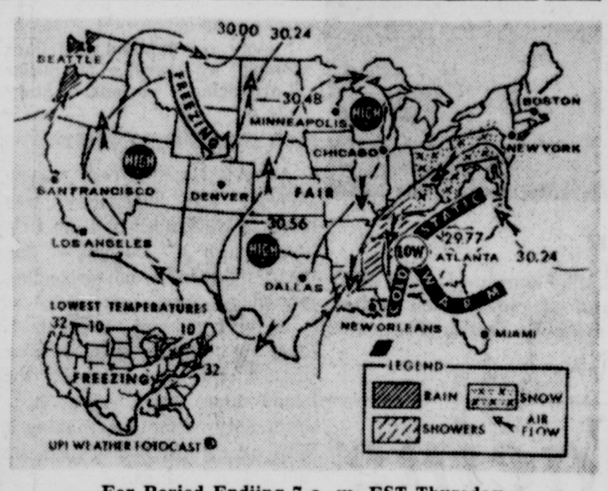

Kelly cited Topp, who was arrested on a warrant Tuesday morning, for violations of the city plumbing code, including violations for working without a city plumber's license, no permits, no draft hood on the boiler, hooking the boiler to a bricked up chimney, and failure to inspect the chimney before the boiler was installed.

Topp, James MacCaline Sr. of 66 Crane Street, who assisted Topp in the installation, according to Kelly, and a relative of property owner William Polk were all taken to the hospital following the Nov. 14 incident. All have since been released from the hospital.

Kelly said the violations have since been corrected by a licensed master plumber.

The City Plumbing Inspector asked all property owners to fully investigate the qualifications and experience of persons they consider hiring to do plumbing and heating work. He urged all city residents with any doubts about the qualifications of prospective plumbers to call his office or Central Hudson. Kelly said "immediate and full cooperation" would be received.

City Judge Hubert A. Richter adjourned Topp's case until Jan. 11 for sentencing. Topp was released in his own recognizance.

Watergate Panel Subpoenas More White House Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee is using a bill President Nixon reluctantly allowed to become law to subpoena scores of White House tapes and documents.

The new subpoenas were expected to be delivered to the White House today.

In another development, special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has abandoned efforts to subpoena former ITT lobbyist Dita Beard to appear before the Watergate grand jury.

Instead, Mrs. Beard was interviewed by Jaworski's staff last week and her sworn statement will be read to the grand jury, said a spokesman for Jaworski.

Also, said the spokesman, Mrs. Beard has promised to turn over to the grand jury documents and materials that were sought under the initial subpoena in return for not having to appear.

Mrs. Beard allegedly wrote a memo linking promises of ITT financial aid for the 1972 Republican National Convention to a favorable settlement of an ITT antitrust case.

The ITT case is one of the areas being investigated by the Watergate special prosecutor's office.

Watergate committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., meanwhile, said the new information being sought by his committee embraces the entire investigative mandate under which it is operating: the Watergate burglary and bugging, the subsequent cover-up, allegations of political sabotage and campaign financing irregularities.

Last summer the committee unsuccessfully tried to subpoena certain White House tapes. U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica declined to order the White House to obey the subpoenas, claiming he lacked jurisdiction in the case. The legislation granting the courts such jurisdiction became law midnight Monday without Nixon's signature.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed legislation Tuesday to give both the House and Senate and all congressional committees the authority to deal with future presidential claims of executive privilege — either through their own enforcement methods or in the courts.

The legislation passed Tuesday sets out for the first time a formal procedure to determine when government officials are not in compliance with congressional requests for information. It provides a variety of means to challenge the refusal of Nixon or any other president to comply by invoking executive privilege.

Meanwhile, House Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said he is nearing a decision on the selection of a lawyer to direct the investigation of possible grounds for the impeachment of President Nixon.

And a General Accounting Office report on payments by Nixon's re-election committee to two journalists working as campaign spies was sent to the Justice Department for appropriate action.

Dita Beard...No Grand Jury Appearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has abandoned efforts to subpoena Dita Beard before the Watergate grand jury in a deal worked out with the former ITT lobbyist's attorneys, a spokesman for Jaworski said Tuesday.

The spokesman said that, in exchange for not having to appear, Mrs. Beard promised, through her attorneys, to be interviewed by the special prosecutor's office. That interview occurred last week, said the spokesman.

A sworn deposition was taken at the interview and that, in turn, will be presented to the grand jury, said the spokesman.

Mrs. Beard had challenged the subpoena commanding her appearance, claiming she would be harassed by the news media if she came to Washington and that such an appearance might endanger her health.

The decision to drop attempts to force her appearance came after she was examined by a said the spokesman.

Under a stipulation agreed to by the prosecutor's office and Mrs. Beard's attorneys, she also was required to turn over to prosecutors any documents or papers sought in the original subpoena. The nature of these documents remains secret.

The stipulation was made Nov. 13 but did not become public until Tuesday when U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, at Jaworski's request, allowed it to be filed in the court record.

The spokesman for Jaworski said the normal secrecy that surrounds grand jury proceedings did not apply to the stipulation once the former lobbyist had been interviewed.

"There is no reason for secrecy over the fact that we interviewed her," he said.

A memo Mrs. Beard allegedly wrote linking promises of ITT financial aid for the 1972 Republican National Convention to a favorable settlement of the ITT antitrust case played a major role in the Senate confirmation hearings in 1972 for former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst.

The ITT case is one of the areas being investigated by the Watergate special prosecutor's office.

Timetable on Impeachment Probe Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee called Tuesday for a timetable for the investigation of grounds for the possible impeachment of President Nixon.

Airing their complaints on the House floor, the Republicans objected to what they described as one-man control of the investigation by Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., the committee chairman.

Moments before Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., led the GOP discussion of the impeachment inquiry, Rodino met with the committee Democrats to brief them on the progress of the investigation.

Also present at the meeting was Richard Cates, a Madison, Wis., trial lawyer who has been retained by the Democrats to help prepare the case for impeachment.

At this stage the staff is poring through the voluminous records of the various investigations bearing on Watergate matters, culling out anything pointing toward presidential involvement.

Rodino also informed the Democrats that he expects to make a final decision Wednesday on his choice for a special counsel to direct the investigation, and to announce it at a committee meeting Thursday.

Rodino has turned aside all criticism of the pace of the investigation by declaring that no decisions about how it is to be conducted can be made until the special counsel is on the job.

The criticism was renewed by McClory in his House speech. He said the crucial decisions involving the conduct and procedures of the investigation should be made by the Judiciary Committee, not by Rodino alone, or by staff members.

McClory said the setting of a timetable for concluding the committee's work was essential to avoid charges that the Democratic majority was dragging out the inquiry for partisan advantage.

The committee's role is only the first step in the impeachment process, McClory noted. If it recommends impeachment, the issue must be settled by the entire House, and if the House votes for impeachment, a trial must be conducted by the Senate.

Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., also called for the setting of a schedule for committee action and for the appointment of a smaller subcommittee to conduct the inquiry. The full committee has 38 members.

Nixon Plans Week-Long 'Rest'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, looking tired, plans to work on his next State of the Union address and to get "some rest" when he travels to Florida for a week-long stay.

Nixon's aides indicate he has just about ruled out taking a train to Florida instead of a plane on grounds that there would not be much fuel saving.

He had considered the possibility of a commercial train ride, which would take about 24 hours, to demonstrate his interest in personal sacrifice during the current energy shortage, but it is becoming more remote.

He has arranged to take with him only a skeleton staff and White House correspondents have been told to make their own travel arrangements.

The President has spent an unprecedented three weekends in a row at the White House, and as one aide put it: "He sure needs to get out of here."

Plans for Nixon to take his annual physical examination have been put off indefinitely. Dr. Walter Tkach, his personal physician, had hoped to get the medical checkup over by the time Tkach left for California where he will be married over the holidays.

Tomorrow is the one year anniversary of Nixon's last physical, when he was pronounced in excellent health.

Before Tkach departed he conferred with Nixon who told him, "I feel all right. I'd rather put it off."

The President's legal team was busy putting together documents of the dairy contribution to Nixon's '72 campaign, and his aides hope they will be available for public disclosure by the weekend.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren indicated some material may not be ready before Congress adjourns at the end of the week. But Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott and Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., both have said they expect Watergate tape transcripts to be made public by that time.

Letters to the Editor

Fireman Gives Answer

Editor, The Freeman:

I read with amusement in your December 12 edition, a letter from George Sinsabaugh dealing in verbal garbage about myself and what he assumed I said at the December Common Council meeting.

First, let me say, Mr. Sinsabaugh, it is good to disagree with someone when you feel he is wrong, but you, Mr. Sinsabaugh, must learn to disagree without being disagreeable.

The information I presented at this Council meeting was obtained from the American Insurance Association, which just did a survey on Kingston's Fire Service, the Municipal Fire Administration and New York State Office of Local Government.

Isn't it amazing and a tremendous benefit to the citizens of Kingston that we have in our city a man who is highly trained and informed on the fire service?

You are wasting your time, Mr. Sinsabaugh, a man who knows all that must have a calling somewhere.

First, Mr. Sinsabaugh, we did not state we wanted to eliminate the volunteers. What we did say was some of the volunteer companies should be consolidated so to better serve the taxpayers of Kingston. This is the same thing the American Insurance Association says. Mr. Sinsabaugh, we apologize. We didn't know you knew more than they did or we would have asked you.

Mr. Sinsabaugh, how far is your volunteer engine (Cordts Hose) from Union Hose? Mr. Sinsabaugh, do you know how many times your volunteer engine has been called and there was no response? Wouldn't it serve your area of Kingston much better if Cordts and Union were combined? This way, Mr. Sinsabaugh, there would be a higher guarantee that this one engine would respond all the time.

This is the same thing the Municipal Fire Administration says, and I quote you "Proper manning of Fire Companies is not likely to be obtained in a City which has too many fire companies," but of course, a highly trained and informed person in fire service, such as you, would disagree.

American Insurance Association says that a city of 30,000 needs four (4) engine companies and two (2) ladder companies. We are asking for five (5) engine companies, but again, you are a highly trained expert and you don't agree with the American Insurance Association.

Mr. Sinsabaugh, I didn't mind your insulting me, but it was wrong of you to insult the chief officers of Kingston Fire Department and the Commissioners who administrate the Department.

For your information, Mr. Sinsabaugh, I checked with the membership of Local 461 and they are not confused and I don't have a scheme as you stated, but we are trying to present and give the taxpayers the best Department possible.

As a volunteer, Mr. Sinsabaugh, this should be your objective also. I'm sorry to find out it's not.

Yours truly,
ROBERT GOLLNICK

Snowmobiling Odyssey

Editor, The Freeman:

A recent article about the International Snowmobile Industry Association has finally prompted me to write. The article claims snowmobiles are used for useful chores but doesn't mention that that is probably less than two per cent of usage and the "patroling" listed to keep snowmobilers from stealing and destroying snow isolated private property. But then the article quotes ISIA as saying "Snowmobilers are responsible citizens." I'm sure at least five per cent are.

Let me tell of a happening on a friend's farm I experienced last month. A group of people emerged out of the woods armed with axes and saws and were wondering where they were. They were snowmobilers out clearing trails in the fall for their winter season. They had started out from Farmer Brown's across the mountain. "We're just extending trails, so its OK." "Do you think its OK to cross private property belonging to those who don't want snowmobilers?" "Oh, we are good citizens, we always ask permission." "Well, you didn't ask permission from the three people who own the property you crossed to get here." "Well, you see, we can't ask everyone's permission since we can't find them. And one time I almost got my leg chewed off trying to approach a house to ask permission." "But what about NO TRESPASSING signs?" "Oh, those, well, we don't pay any attention to those since most were put up by hunting clubs on various people's property and since snowmobilers are also hunters, we're all friends so we just ignore No Trespassing signs."

"What about landowners who come out angrily at four a.m. with a shotgun because noisy snowmobilers woke them up?" "Well, as I said, snowmobilers are mostly hunters so they'd have guns with them and some may even enjoy a war." "What about cutting fences?" "If the fence is old and rusty, it must not be in use, right, so what's wrong with cutting it?" "Oh, I see, farmers should polish their fences to keep some nut from cutting it."

"How can a landowner keep these pests off his land?" "Well, to tell the truth, I don't know If you can catch them without a war, you can arrest them, but usually they are long down the trail, and the sheriff and local police are mostly snowmobilers, so if you call up to have the police chase them, you'd probably have to wait till the snowmobilers get back to get enough police to do the chasing. They should have reflective licenses but you would have to be close to read them. Some want license numbers embossed in the tracks, but then the snowmobiler just would drag a branch. I guess the only solution is for you to become a snowmobiler too."

Sincerely,
PETER GRANT

Tight Schedule on Gov. Wilson's Agenda

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Gov. Malcolm Wilson began his first full day as governor of New York State today confronted with a tight schedule that promised to keep him busy until at least mid-January.

Wilson, who became the state's 50th governor at 12:06 p.m. Tuesday to succeed resigned Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, was faced with preparing the final versions of his first address to the legislature when it convenes Jan. 9 and his first budget message Jan. 15.

Both are major documents and both will go far to help outline Wilson's plans for his one remaining year of the gubernatorial term he took over from Rockefeller.

The new governor scheduled a mid-day news conference for today and his office said he would cover a broad range of subjects dealing with his administration's goals and policies.

Tuesday's inaugural ceremony was the first event in a packed day for the 59-year-old Wilson, who spent 15 years as Rockefeller's lieutenant governor. Rockefeller, 65, announced last week he was resigning from the $85,000-a-year governorship after three years of his fourth term to devote full time to his national Commission on Critical Choices for Americans.

Rockefeller and Wilson entered the Capitol's Red Room at high noon and Rockefeller then tendered his formal resignation to Deputy Secretary of State John J. Ghezzi. The room was packed and television lights added their heat as the ceremony got under way with Wilson's family seated nearby.

Wilson, his voice husky with emotion, solemnly repeated the one-minute oath of office administered by Charles D. Breitel, chief judge-elect of the Court of Appeals.

Wilson pledged a "moderate, middle way" for his administration which he said would not be a "caretaker" government but instead would "be a time of vigorous action serving the people."

The nine - minute speech, delivered in measured tones, was interrupted five times by applause.

"I want to assure my fellow citizens this is not going to be a caretaker administration," said Wilson, who has one year left in this term. "This is going to be a time of vigorous action serving the people."

Wilson, from Yonkers, was an assemblyman for 20 years before being elected lieutenant governor in 1958 and he took note of that in his brief talk.

"I know this state after 35 years in state government I know the people where they live I know that we are one state — united in a common destiny."

Syria to Boycott Talks

By United Press International

Israel and Egypt promised today to attend this week's Middle East peace conference despite doubts of success. Syria, the other major participant in the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, said it would boycott the talks.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim formally called on Arabs and Israelis to begin the conference Friday in Geneva. A U.N. spokesman said Waldheim would leave tonight for the Swiss capital to prepare for the start of talks.

The secretary general said he would open the conference Friday morning at the Palais des Nations in Geneva at the request of the United States and the Soviet Union.

An official spokesman in Cairo said Egypt would attend the meeting to "test the goodwill" of Israel and the superpowers. He said, however, Egypt would "struggle to realize our legitimate rights" if the conference was blocked by "prevarication and procrastination" by Israel.

The Egyptian delegation, led by Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi, was to fly to Geneva today.

Fahmi visited Damascus Monday in an abortive, last-minute attempt to persuade the Syrians to attend the conference, political sources said.

Syria said Tuesday it was pulling out of the talks because of fears the conference would not bring the pullout of Israeli troops from all occupied Arab territory.

Israeli Transport Minister Shimon Peres said Tuesday Syria pulled out because it "has not yet become resigned to our existence."

An Israeli national television reporter quoting French sources said Damascus withdrew because the Syrians had killed most of an estimated 102 Israeli war prisoners and tortured survivors. He said Syria did not want the issue aired publicly.

Supply and Demand Guidelines

VIENNA (UPI) — Representatives of the world's 12 major oil-producing nations have decided on new guidelines expected to increase energy prices for the rest of the world.

Sources in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) said a conference Tuesday agreed prices should be based on supply and demand. Until now, oil prices have been fixed in advance by the 12 countries.

The sources agreed plans to restrict supply combined with increasing demand would push prices higher.

Several companies including unidentified American firms last week bought oil at auction from Iran at more than three times the current world price.

OPEC nations from the Middle East, Asia and South America produce 85 per cent of all the world's oil imports. Most other countries must buy oil at OPEC prices or go without fuel.

The sources said closed-door meetings Tuesday and today by technical experts were expected to lead to new price guidelines to be put before OPEC oil ministers at a conference in Tehran Saturday.

OPEC members are Iran, Libya, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Ecuador, Indonesia, Kuwait, Nigeria, Qatar and Venezuela.

Japanese government sources said the nation intended to bid at a Libyan oil auction today, despite the risk of recriminations from American oil companies whose supplies were nationalized by Tripoli earlier this year.

Japan faces the largest fuel shortage of any major industrialized nation. It imports virtually all oil and has had supplies cut back because of an allegedly pro-Israel stance during the Middle East war.

Iraq's oil minister said in an interview with a Beirut newspaper Tuesday his country intended to step up oil production because it did not believe the Arab oil cutback policy was a sound one.

Jobs Come First

Allocation plans for fuel give high priority to business and industry to preserve jobs for Americans. Other consumers are given low priority. They will have to sacrifice for the greater good.

Gasoline production will be cut to force U. S. refineries to turn more crude oil into heating oil to fuel American factories and other essential services.

When the regulations were publicized, the cut in gasoline production, given to the media, was 25 per cent. The release said that gasoline production would be limited to 75 per cent of the 1972 level. After this figure stood all day, an official of the Energy Office corrected it to 95 per cent. This made the cut five per cent, not a difficult reduction to meet with the volunteer Sunday closings, and other savings that have begun.

The master plan also awards priorities to such such community services as fire-fighting and health care; farming and manufacturing; passenger and freight transportation; delivery of mail and production of energy, especially fuel for electric utilities.

In brief, the goal is to keep the economy going with as few interruptions as possible, to reduce job dislocations.

Heating standards remain unchanged: Reductions of six degrees in homes and schools to an average of 68 degrees and reductions of 10 degrees in offices, stores, government agencies and factories—heat in factories is distinguished from fuel for operation.

Of the gasoline total that remains today, business and industry are to get the same amount of gas they consumed in 1972, while top priority users—farmers, fire-fighters, fuel producers—are to get all the gasoline they need.

"This is not rationing, but rather a system to insure equitable distribution at the wholesale level," said William E. Simon, the new energy chief. It will work if everyone does his share. Otherwise, suffering.

Body Heat Loss

Body heat loss is an important factor in everyone's keeping warm in winter when there is not enough outside warmth available. Therefore, it is interesting to read, in the Journal of Aerospace Medicine, that research by the renowned physiologist, Dr. Paul Webb, seems to indicate that a heat drain from humans is definitely present in certain situations. These include repeated diving, undersea exploration in depth shelters, but also on land and in space.

In past animal experiments, it has been known that there is a definite increase in metabolic heat production, labeled "non-shivering thermogenesis." Human data in prolonged cold is less definite. But if heat production and loss are persistently high in humans, although they themselves may not detect it, the effect on body temperature might be like that of steady low level exercises—the higher the work rate, the higher the rectal temperature.

"One might also liken the situation to the clinical picture of low grade fever or of mild hyperthyroidism," indicated Webb in his report.

Webb and Associates do have very definite figures on the continuing heat drain of men in undersea chambers, despite thermal comfort. During sleeping and resting, the heat loss, however, does cause marked discomfort to them. Dr. Webb acknowledges that the atmosphere in the undersea chamber could play a part in the drastic indications recorded there.

We shall have to wait to see, later, what Dr. Webb or other scientists will discover to overcome heat loss. For the present, we will have to be content with an advice given in an old Public Health bulletin: Wear your hat! Grannies have always known there is a great heat loss off your head.

STUDENTS — The Italian government has tightened the rule for admission in colleges and universities, and has started expelling those who do not qualify. Some 5,000 American students are affected, more than 1,500 medical students. They went to Italy because there isn't room in American medical colleges. More medical schools here is the answer.

LEGALIZED HOT DOGS — Legally, the nation's top cooked sausage product will be labelled and can be sold as "hot dog" January 1. Up to then, it was known legally as frankfurters or weiners. The approved ingredients will remain the same, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture labelling regulations.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Nixon Can't Shake Watergate Gloom

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Now that there is once again a Republican replacement, press speculation is increasing that President Nixon might resign. The problem with such stories is that the reporters, who are writing them, haven't talked to the President.

They report he is, at the same time, both defiant and depressed. The Watergate imbroglio has put him under great strain. He is basically an introvert who tends to bottle emotions, to keep them inside. Our sources say he is beginning to show the strain. He doesn't seem to be able to shake off the gloom.

They quote him as insisting, nevertheless, that he won't quit. He believes he is still better qualified than any available successor to handle the delicate diplomatic relations with Russia, China and the Middle East.

He also feels, say our sources, that he would be left defenseless without the power of the Presidency. As a private citizen, he fears he would be stripped of his best protection and would be ripped to shreds by his adversaries.

Our sources also point out, although the President himself hasn't mentioned it, that his legal expenses would be astronomical if he left the White House and had to pay them himself. He now has a dozen lawyers working on his defense at the taxpayers' expense.

The legal staff is headed by Fred Buzhardt, who was borrowed from the Pentagon and still draws a $38,000 Pentagon salary.

However, the President is reported to be unhappy with his free legal help. He feels that the White House attorneys have been outmaneuvered in court by the Watergate prosecutors.

Angrily, he has dispatched his aides to find better lawyers. They even tried secretly to recruit lawyers from the District Attorney's office, which originally handled the Watergate case.

Finally, the President turned to an old friend, Illinois Judge John J. Sullivan, who had served with him in the Solomons during World War II. Sullivan agreed to come to the White Houses long enough to recruit some young lawyers and to shake up the legal office.

He established a research unit, for example, to prepare files on the dozen major Watergate problems that could develop during an impeachment proceeding. But the real problem, our sources say, is that the President has been masterminding his own defense rather than turning it over to the lawyers. He has also withheld crucial information from them until the last minute, leaving them to operate in the dark.

It won't be a very merry Christmas, our sources agree, at the White House.

NIXON AND MILLS: When President Nixon wanted someone to clear him of income tax irregularities, he personally chose an old friend, Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark.

This has caused some sour comment in the cloakrooms on Capitol Hill. If Congress is going to do the President's financial wash, members have complained, the investigation should have gone through the Senate-House leadership and should never have been assigned by the President to the committee of his choice.

Some congressmen suspect that the President deliberately selected Mills as the committee chairman most likely to whitewash the charges. Consider these facts:

— Mills' own political skirts are soiled. A Mills associate accepted a $15,000 cash contribution from Gulf Oil to help finance Mills' abortive 1972 presidential bid. The cash was transmitted in a sealed envelope from Gulf's Vice President Claude Wild to Mills' crony Carl Arnold who, as it happens, was a lobbyist for the American Petroleum Institute before opening his own lobbying office.

— Gulf pleaded guilty on November 13 to the criminal offense of skimming the contribution from corporate funds. Yet Mills declined to return the $15,000 until we began inquiring into the possibility of federal prosecution. It is a crime punishable by a $10,000 fine and two years in jail to accept a corporate contribution knowingly.

Parenthetically, Mills committee has granted the oil industry tax breaks, which permitted Gulf to get away with a shockingly low 1.2 per cent tax rate in 1972.

— Mills' joint committee whitewashed the Internal Revenue Service by claiming it didn't hound those on the White House "enemies list." A painstaking American Civil Liberties Union study showed just the opposite and a high IRS official has admitted secretly to the Senate Watergate Committee that favors were granted at White House request.

— When a White House task force was about to bring more oil into the United States in 1969 over the objections of most oil companies, Mills fired off a telegram to the task force chief warning against "tinkering with oil imports." The task force was overruled by President Nixon's personal oil advisors.

— When Mills let it be known he had a speaking engagement on the West Coast, Tenneco, the oil-and-gas behemoth, flew him across the country in a sumptuous private jet. Yet he could have made just as good time in any one of 12 daily scheduled commercials flights.

FOOTNOTE: Mills' office acknowledged he waited a month to pay back the $15,000 after learning it was a criminal contribution. When Gulf requested it, explained a spokesman, Mills paid it immediately with a personal check because his campaign committee had been dissolved. Lobbyist Arnold denied he knew the $15,000 was taken from corporate funds. Gulf's Claude Wild didn't return our calls.

Inside Report

Miseries Ahead

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the historic struggle over impeachment procedures between Democrats and Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee looms a massive Democratic assault against President Nixon certain to deepen his present miseries.

Republicans in both the White House and Congress see the slowly forming impeachment investigation by the Judiciary Committee as not only posing the sternest threat yet to Mr. Nixon but also dooming meager Republican election prospects in 1974. "These are not Sam Ervins — not Southern gentlemen — the White House is coming up against," one Republican member of the committee predicts. "These guys are out for blood."

Substantiating this Republican fear is the closing of the gap over impeachment politics between fire-eating junior Democratic Congressmen who abound on the Judiciary Committee and the party's leadership in the House. Both leaders and fire-eaters now agree on this strategy: delay a vote until a long hard investigation generates nationwide impeachment sentiment, probably next summer at the earliest.

The reason for delay stems from current facts of life on the Judiciary Committee. Even if all 21 Democrats were to vote for impeachment (Most unlikely), it is doubtful that any of the 17 Republicans would join them. The White House has doubts about only one Republican, Rep. William S. Cohen, a first-term liberal from Maine. But not even Cohen would vote for a bill of impeachment today.

Accordingly, an impeachment vote in the Judiciary Committee today would be a party-line affair, saddling the Democrats with the stigma of political vendetta against the President. Their leaders, Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Majority Leader Thomas. O (Tip) O'Neil of Massachusetts, have always avoided such a catastrophe. What's significant is that many fire-eaters, formerly determined on immediate action against Mr. Nixon, now agree.

A case in point is Rep. Jerome Waldie of California, an early impeachment advocate and a leader of the fire-eaters. Waldie now rules out Republican support for impeachment until the public demands it. The public will not demand it until the committee's investigation spreads evidence before it, he feels, and that will take many months.

While the fire-eaters thus subdue their zeal, oldline Democratic leaders have hardened their own determination to pursue the President. Indeed, this determination took wing only after Gerald Ford was confirmed as Vice President, restoring a legitimate Republican succession.

The rudest shock was the vote of Rep. Peter Rodino, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, against Ford's confirmation. Republicans until then had regarded Rodino, a product of New Jersey machine politics, as one of the boys who would move with cautious restraint. His vote against Ford, dictated no little by Rodino's increasingly black constituency, has convinced the Republicans they can expect no quarter from him.

Moreover, Albert and O'Neill have taken an increasingly tough line against the President in private conversation. Albert's all-out sponsorship of the $1 million to finance the impeachment investigation reveals his inner strategy.

Against the newly united Democrats, the White House is urging House Republicans to protest impeachment delays and demand an immediate vote. Republican leaders are studying the possibility of bringing Mr. Nixon s impeachment to the floor as a constitutionally privileged motion.

But Judiciary Committee Republicans do not seem well equipped to compete with the Democrats for public opinion. The committee's senior Republican, Rep. Edward Hutchinson, is an old-fashioned Michigan conservative who shies away from television exposure. The committee's most forceful Republican, Rep. Tom Railsback of Illinois, ranks fifth in seniority, and his aggressivenesss is resented by senior colleagues (including second-ranking Rep. Robert McClory, a fellow Illinoisan).

Far more important, committee Republicans are by no means irrevocably committed to the President's defense. Many fear a midterm election debacle with Mr. Nixon in the White House. ("He's queering my reelection," grumbles one senior Republican on the committee.) Conservative committee Republicans say privately they will vote a bill of impeachment if it is supported by the evidence.

As with so much else in the bottomless Watergate pit, Mr. Nixon and the White House seem helpless in any effort to control, impede or stop the kind of proceeding now being planned by the House Judiciary Committee. It could lead to the worst menace he has yet faced.

Candidate Elmer Was Amazing

Few remember Elmer Wene. For a time, he was my political patsy. And I was his. He ran for governor in the sovereign state of New Jersey, a fat, aging bachelor in a cowboy hat. Wene was a chicken farmer in Vineland, a little town on the edge of nothing.

Frank Hague, New Jersey's haughty boss, asked his nephew Frank Eggers to ask me if I would manage Wene's campaign. At the time, I was between books so I said sure. Wene, a Democrat, was running against a Republican named Alfred Driscoll. There wasn't a smile between them.

Driscoll acted as though a vote against him was a vote against motherhood and church. Wene leaned back and laughed heartily when anybody said hello. I asked why. "I'm just folks," he said.

I knew the role we were to play. I took the job because it was my first opportunity to be "inside" politics, instead of writing about it. I didn't like the name Elmer Wene, but it was late to do anything with it. It fell from the lips like a rural hotdog.

In Sussex County, I gave upwriting speeches for him because he couldn't read them. We drove all over the state in a beige Cadillac with a tall G.I. driving. Wene was a state senator and you would have to know him to feel embittered.

He drank milk until I retched. Then I learned that he had trained the kitchen personnel in all the hotels to lace it with Scotch. At the party banquets, ladies whispered: "See him drinking all the milk? Why can't you be like him?" The challenge cost us the male vote.

Sometimes, the senator lurched to his feet, held onto the microphone until he steadied the milk, and said rousingly: "The people are the kind of folks we need. And if we aren't fair to the people, we aren't being honest with the voters either."

At other times, he opened with a heart-stopper: "Well, folks, it's nice to see all you folks, folks." For a reason which escapes the laws of logic, the women loved him. The senator was a bachelor but he had a whiff of temptation stashed in a shore apartment. He was hardly a heavy lover. He shook hands with her once a week.

We were at the Essex House in Newark. The senator was busy counting up the counties on a map, making sure that it came out 21. A Newark official arrived and said he wanted to see me. We spoke looking out a window. He said Longy Zwillman, a gangster, would be willing to contribute a huge sum to the campaign if Wene would permit Zwillman to name the attorney-general. When I relayed the message to the senator, he choked on his milk.

"Don't have anything to do with those people," he said. "Don't even speak to them." Later, when the McClellan committee was in being, I wrote and told them about the abortive offer. They asked me to testify. I did. The Newark official threatened to sue me for my typewriter.

I forgot to tell them that the senator was prone to take campaign contributions and put them in his personal bank account. In Vineland, I stood beside him as the money went into his coffers. Losers can't afford to come out losers.

In New Brunswick, reporters asked me if the senator had a farm program. I was a city slicker; I didn't know Jersey had a farm program. I asked Wene. He was on a hotel bed, breathing through his belly. "Tell them I'll have one in a half hour."

He was an amazing man. In 30 minutes, he was holding a press conference in the lobby. He ticked off a program which, to my innocent ears, sounded as though farmers were going to get rich giving the vegetables to the consumers for nothing.

The fat one was half-way through when the circle of pencils stopped dancing on pads. "What's the matter?" I whispered. "That," said the Newark News man, "is Alfred Driscoll's program word for word."

In one county — Hudson — boss John V. Kenny patted Wene on the back. "You're in, Governor," he said. "You're in." "You're my kind of folks," Wene said, placing the cowboy hat over his heart.

Boss Kenny had to dump Boss Hague. The time had come. So the word was passed to all Democrats to talk Wene but vote Driscoll. When the votes were counted, the senator had compiled an amazing record: He won in 15 counties, broke even in five, and lost one — Hudson — and the election.

Little ol' Elmer wasn't exactly crooked, but he could hide behind a corkscrew. I felt hurt the day after election when he scowled at me and said: "You summabich, how did you vote?". . .

Agnew Asks Court . . .'Suspend Me Temporarily'

SPIRO T. AGNEW (UPI TELEPHOTO)

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, his voice barely audible, pleaded with a three-judge state court Tuesday "not to strip me of my means of livelihood" by forbidding him to practice law in Maryland.

Instead, Agnew, in a 12-minute presentation, suggested that he be suspended temporarily.

"I can resume a useful place in the practice of law after my suspension," Agnew said in a low voice. "The practice of law means quite a lot to me. I want to return at some later date to bring credit to my practice and to the courts.".

Agnew, who was governor of Maryland before President Nixon tapped him as his running mate in 1968, was dressed immaculately in a gray suit, light blue shirt and dark tie. Agnew resigned in disgrace as vice president Oct. 10 minutes before he was fined $10,000 on a charge of tax evasion. In a deal with the government to avoid a possible prison sentence, Agnew did not contest the charge. A number of other charges that he extorted thousands of dollars in kickbacks while he was a local official, governor and vice president were dropped.

The Maryland Bar Association's ruling board of governors unanimously recommended that Agnew be forbidden to practice law in the state, arguing that his no-contest plea was evidence of "professional misconduct, a crime involving moral turpitude or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice."

"I had very good reasons to plead the way I did," Agnew told the judges at the crowded disbarment hearing in the 148-year-old Anne Arundel County courthouse. But he said that "some of the reasons must remain held within me for the foreseeable future."

Agnew said he thought that suspension, rather than disbarment, would be "a reasonable solution to preserve the integrity of the court, the bar, and the legal profession."

Agnew, accompanied by five Secret Service agents, slipped on the ice and momentarily lost his balance as he entered the courthouse. He grabbed a policeman's arm and smiled. Immediately after the hearing he sped away in a chauffeured limousine.

Agnew sat very straight in his chair during the hearing, occasionally turning to confer with attorney E. Dale Adkins. He showed no emotion as Alfred L. Scanlan, representing the bar association, argued for disbarment.

"A large segment of the public has become disenchanted and distrustful of lawyers in public office," Scanlan said. "The purpose of this disciplinary action is to protect the public."

Speaking on behalf of the former vice president, Adkins told the panel, "We ask no specific consideration for Mr. Agnew as a result of his former high position. We ask that the sole position of this proceeding is whether he should be permitted to practice law. His atonement has been decided by Judge (Walter E.) Hoffman." It was Hoffman who fined Agnew $10,000 and placed him on three years probation.

The three-judge panel took the arguments under advisement and promised a recommendation as soon as possible. The Maryland Court of Appeals is expected to make the final decision in the case about 90 days after it receives the panel's reports.

Scotland Yard Seeks Terrorists

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard said it hoped to issue descriptions today of two members of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) suspected of taking part in a wave of terror bombings in London.

The British police agency said two car bombs, a mail bomb and a bomb laid in a London street wounded 64 persons in less than 24 hours. Eight of the injured remained hospitalized today.

Targets for the terrorists were a government building complex, a post office, a prison and a photographer's shop.

In addition, scores of false bomb threats were telephoned to police and fire stations late Tuesday and early today.

Police blamed the IRA for the attacks. In Dublin, a spokesman for the militant Roman Catholic group said, "the pressure on the enemy will be maintained on a number of fronts over the Christmas period." He refused to elaborate.

Telephone calls by a man and a woman with Irish accents warned of two of the blasts in advance, police said.

The IRA two weeks ago said it would fight an agreement by Ulster, the Irish Republic and Britain to establish a council representing the two Irelands.

"These people have come to London to kill and maim," said Detective Chief Superintendent Roy Habersohn, chief of the yard's bomb squad. "They could be living in your house. You could be letting them rooms. They could be renting your garage."

The first bomb went off Tuesday in a stolen car parked outside the Home Office police station in Westminster, injuring 54 persons. Police said witnesses spotted two men leaving the scene and planned to send out their descriptions to law enforcement officers.

Just after nightfall, a parcel bomb exploded in a temporary post office in the Westminster area, injuring six students working as Christmas mail sorters.

An hour later, another car bomb exploded behind Pentonville Prison injuring two policemen and two civilians. It blew off the door of the prison officers' club and scarred the prison wall.

Early today, a bomb blasted a photographer's shop in a shopping precinct in the north London district of Hampstead. Police said no one was injured.

Last March, eight IRA members, including two women, were sentenced to life in prison for taking part in a wave of bombings in the London area.

Kent State Hearings Resume

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A federal grand jury investigating the fatal shootings of four Kent State University students by Ohio National Guardsmen today resumed its secrecy-shrouded hearing at the Federal Office Building.

No one from the Justice Department would discuss what transpired Tuesday in the first day of the inquiry, but David Trost, a representative of the Columbus consulting firm of Richardson-Smith, Inc., said the 13 men and 10 women jurors were given a graphic briefing on the Kent State campus.

Trost, of Westerville, Ohio, said he testified to the accuracy of a model prepared by his firm of the part of the campus where the shootings occurred. He said he thought he was the first witness.

Film materials also were taken into the jury room and it appeared the first day was devoted to filling the jurors in on the area where the incident occurred and possibly on the incident itself.

American Civilian Freed by Viet Cong

By VICENTE MALIWANAG

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong freed an American civilian today more than two months after he was seized by the Communists in an evening ambush in the Mekong Delta.

A spokesman for Pacific Architects and Engineers (PAE), an American contracting company, said Homer L. Elm, 43, of Arcadia, S.C., was set free in a remote hamlet near Can Tho, 75 miles southwest of Saigon.

The spokesman said Elm, a PAE worker, "seemed to be in good condition" and was brought to Saigon for a checkup at a hospital in the capital.

He said the American was released along with two Vietnamese captured with him Oct. 6 near Than Tri, 105 miles south of Saigon.

The release came just a day before U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was scheduled to meet North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho in Paris for a new round of Indochina peace talks.

Kissinger and Tho were expected Thursday to discuss a recent increase in clashes in South Vietnam. The Saigon government accused the Communists today of the highest number of cease-fire violations in three months.

Jury Selection Continues In Second Bank Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Jury selection continues today in the second federal bank robbery trial of Joanne Chesimard and Fred Hilton.

Defense lawyer Evelyn Williams, who represented Miss Chesimard throughout the first stormy trial of the two defendTuesday with her client over the handling of the case in the new trial.

Mrs. Williams five times asked U.S. District Judge Arnold Bauman for permission to withdraw as Miss Chesimard's counsel.

In denying her requests, Bauman said she was still the attorney of record and would be required to attend each session, though not participating in the proceedings.

Meanwhile, the judge appointed lawyer Howard Jacobs to actively represent Miss Chesimard.

Hilton and Miss Chesimard are accused in a Sept. 29, 1972 armed holdup at a Bronx branch of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. Their first trial ended in a hung jury.

Authorities say both defendants belonged to the Black Liberation Army, a small group reportedly dedicated to murdering policemen.

Miss Chesimard also faces a New Jersey murder trial Jan. 2 as a result of a shootout last May 2 in which she was wounded and a state trooper was killed.

Hilton's defense attorney, Robert Bloom, Tuesday suggested use of bank camera film in making a case. Miss Chesimard agreed.

When Mrs. Williams refused to go along with the proposal, Miss Chesimard said—"At this time, I have no lawyer. I demand my constitutional right to get another lawyer." Bauman then ejected her for her outburst. Hilton walked out in sympathy.

It was the first time in either trial that a split in the defense led to the removal of the defendants. Several times in the first trial they were ejected when they backed their attorneys in demanding a postponement.

Boyle Ordered To Jail 'Immediately'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge Charles Richey today ordered W. A. "Tony" Boyle jailed immediately for making illegal political contributions from United Mine Workers funds, but reduced the sentence of the former UMW president from five to three years.

Boyle, 72, is expected to be taken to a federal prison hospital at Springfield, Mo. He has been in a hospital since a suicide attempt Sept. 24.

Richey originally sentenced Boyle to the five-year term, and said he was reducing the period because of his health. The pale Boyle, defeated a year ago for re-election as UMW head, sat throughout the hearing in a wheelchair.

Boyle uttered only a few words during the proceeding, telling Richey he had nothing to say on his own behalf.

Richey denied a defense motion to suspend the prison sentence entirely, saying he hoped word would go out "that at least one judge does not view crimes of this type as anything less than serious."

Under terms of the sentence, Boyle will become eligible shortly for parole after paying $130,000 in fines and repaying $49,250 to the union.

Those Dangerous Toys Still Being Sold

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Dangerous toys are still being sold in New York State during the first Christmas season that a list of banned products has been available, a state official says.

Morton Engsprom of the state Consumer Protection Board said the few store officials who refused to remove the toys were reported to federal consumer protection officials.

The federal government has put out a list of 1,500 potentially dangerous toys in an effort to reduce the number of injuries to children.

About 60 per cent of the banned toys found on store shelves were exports, Engsprom said, while many available for sale came from boxes that had been shipped before the federal ban.

He said 12 volunteer consumer agencies and the state Consumer Protection Board checked nearly every major department store, supermarket and drugstore selling toys in most of the state's urban areas.

Drug Law Impact Studied

ALBANY (UPI) — Law enforcement agencies in New York State report that drug arrests have dropped off by at least one-third since last year.

State criminal justice officials say they are watching arrest statistics closely to determine if the reduction is a result of the state's tough new anti-drug law or if it is caused by other factors.

One aspect of narcotics-related statistics that has surprised officials is that, since the hard-line anti-drug program began Sept. 1, there has been no significant increase in the number of addicts seeking treatment at public or private centers.

The new law, carrying the much-touted threat of life sentences and limits on plea bargaining, has thus far failed to produce the flood of jury trials expected to aggravate the problem of jammed court calendars.

So far, 16 new sections of the courts, manned by judges appointed by Governor Rockefeller, are working on the backlog of cases in New York City, but officials say the 106 new judgeships created by the law will still be needed.

The most dramatic decrease in drug arrests has been noted in New York City.

In the first month the new statute was in effect, the New York Police Department reported 498 felony drug arrests, compared with 989 during September, 1972. Misdemeanor narcotic arrests totaled 602, compared with 1,001 during the same month a year before.

At the same time, police reported about the same overall number of arrests and complaints they did a year ago. Police agencies in most other cities in New York State reported a similar pattern during the three months since the anti-drug campaign started.

Archibald R. Murray, commissioner of the Division of Criminal Justice Services, the state agency which oversees the entire criminal justice field, said, "I would like to think it is the result of the new drug law, but there are other reasons."

Murray said he hadn't expected the implementation of the new law to produce any major drop-off in arrests, but he feels the new judges the governor has been empowered to appoint will be needed.

"Clearly we haven't had any quantum jumps in the number of trials yet, but it is still too early," Murray said.

"Only now are we beginning to run into the first trials involving the new law," he said. "The outcome of the first few months of trials will determine how defendants and their attorneys react."

An element of the new law, called the predicate felony clause, will have a profound effect on the administration of all criminal law, Murray said.

The clause requires that any person arrested for a felony who has previously been convicted of a crime for which a sentence of one year or more in prison could be imposed must be sentenced to a jail term. The provision covers convictions in New York State, another state or a foreign country.

It is this prior felony feature which is expected to prompt defendants and attorneys for persons with previous convictions for burglary, gambling and other felonies to demand more jury trials.

"It is very difficult to imagine what that means and I wonder if some of the people now in the jails realize what that means," one of the persons involved in implementation of the new law said.

"Quite frankly, I don't know how many of the persons in the legislature or within the court system understood what that would mean," he said.

The harsher sentences for drug use and sale "were certainly the more politically important part" of the new law, but "the predicate felony part is the most significant," he said.

The source estimated it would be at least April or May before the effect of the provision is fully realized.

Another source working with the state's implementation of the overall anti-drug campaign said the downturn in narcotics arrests has possibly been caused by three reasons:

"The threat of stiff penalties is providing a deterrent to continued drug use; there may be a reluctance on the part of police to make arrests, or the drug dealers are moving farther underground, getting more careful about whom they sell to and making it harder for undercover agents to make buys," the source said.

Noting the lack of any significant influx of addicts into addiction control programs, a spokesman for the state's Narcotic Addiction Control Commission (NACC), said, "Maybe we have overestimated the degree of addiction."

"Maybe people can go cold turkey; get off drugs themselves without help," the NACC spokesman said. "What happened to tens of thousands of drug addicts on the streets?

"Usually criminologists claim a connection between other crimes and drug abuse, but other crimes have remained about the same."

Another official at NACC said the money for a doubling of the current capacity of addict treatment facilities—which now can handle 35,000 persons—will still be needed.

"The addict or drug-dependent person is a 'show me' type," the official said. "He sees no hazard until it has been demonstrated by someone falling into it; somebody getting hit with a heavy sentence."

REHEARSAL TIME — Janie Sell (L) of Detroit, Mich., joins Andrews sisters Patty (C) and Maxine as rehearsals open for a new musical production, "Over Here!" Janie will play the role of the third Andrews sister, LaVerne, who died six years ago, in the production, which is slated to open at Philadelphia's Shubert Theatre before moving on to the Broadway Shubert Theatre in New York City. Mass Recall By GM

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors has announced two recall campaigns involving a total of nearly 22,000 new cars to correct possible defects in brake and suspension systems.

GM spokesmen also confirmed that the automaker is investigating a charge by consumer advocate Ralph Nader that many of GM's large 1974 model cars have a defect that cauld cause loss of steering.

One of the recalls involves about 12,700 Chevrolet Nova, Pontiac Ventura, Oldsmobile Omega and Buick Apollo models. Owners were asked to return the cars to dealers for possible replacement of U-bolts that help hold chassis springs to the rear axle.

GM said some of the bolts are brittle and could break, causing loss of a spring. That could make the rear axle move backward, pulling the parking brake cable and locking both rear wheels, GM said.

Owners were advised to avoid rapid stops and starts until any problem is fixed.

GM said the other recall involves about 9,200 standard Chevrolet station wagons assembled at the Tarrytown, N.Y., plant. Dealers are to check and replace a rear brake line.

The line had been attached to the rear axle housing incorrectly, possibly permitting repeated contact with the underbody under heavy load conditions, GM said. That could cause the line to split and possible cause loss of rear-wheel braking.

GM said drivers of such cars should avoid loading the car heavily and stay off roads that might cause the car to scrape bottom.

GM said it knows of no accidents or injuries resulting from either defect. No charge will be made for the corrections, the automaker said.

In Washington, D.C., on Monday, Nader charged that almost all GM's large 1974 Chevrolet, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Cadillac cars have a defect in the steering control arm.

GM spokesmen said an investigation is nearing completion and a decision on a possible recall could be expected "in a matter of days."

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were higher in early trading following Tuesday's sharp gains.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up about a point near opening and advancing issues led declining issues by more than 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume leader on the Big Board in early trading was Sperry Rand, up 1⅞ to 44, followed by Fairchild Camera, ahead 1½ to 47 and Saul Real Estate Investment Trust, off ¼ at 11¼. Copeland Corp. fell ¼ to 11¾ and Gulf Oil added ⅛ to 20⅝.

Advent Service

The third union Advent Service sponsored by the Lutheran Churches of Kingston will be held at Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone Streets, 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The choir of the Lomontville Church under the direction of Kathleen Nevers and accompanied by Harriet Holsipple will sing the Christmas Cantata, Love Transcending by Peterson. The public may attend.

THE STOLEN PAINTINGS — These two Rembrant paintings — valued at over $1 million each — were taken by two masked men Tuesday from Taft Museum in Cincinnati, O. The portrait of an 'Elderly Woman,' left, and 'Man Leaning on a Sill,' thought by some to be a self portrait measured 25½ by 20½ inches and 27 by 32½ inches respectively. The woman portrait is on wood and Man on canvass. The paintings were done in 1642 and 1650. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Freighter Sinks in North Pacific

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI) — A Liberian freighter with a crew of about 40 men lost power in a storm Tuesday and sank early today in icy North Pacific seas about 500 miles west of Vancouver.

Canadian officials said two lifeboats and one liferaft were spotted before dawn, but it was not known how many survivors were aboard. Two merchant ships, one Japanese and the other Russian, were in the area and reported seeing a flare fired from one of the lifeboats.

But rescue efforts were hampered by storm conditions. Winds up to 68 miles an hour swept the area and churned up waves 30 feet high. Several other merchant ships were en route to the area to help in the rescue effort, according to the Vancouver Search and Rescue Center.

A Canadian pilot who flew over the area earlier spotted a liferaft about three miles from where the freighter went down, but visibility was poor and he said he could not tell if anyone was in the boat.

The last radio message received from the sinking freighter, the Oriental Monarch, was at 9 p.m. PST (midnight EST). The message said the ship was taking on water fast and was launching a lifeboat.

Flyers who saw the liferaft said it appeared to be big enough for only a dozen persons. It was not known if other liferafts aboard the 15,000-ton freighter were also launched.

Ingersoll, Associates Buy Tonawanda News

NORTH TONAWANDA, N.Y. (UPI)—Mrs. Charles E. Hewitt Jr., president and publisher of the Tonawanda News, announced Tuesday that the Tonawanda Publishing Co., publisher of the newspaper, had been sold to Ralph M. Ingersoll and Associates of Sharon, Conn.

The Kenmore Record Advertiser, a 32,000 free distribution weekly and a related commercial printing business, were also included in the sale.

Terms of the sale were not disclosed.

The Tonawanda News, which publishes six days a week, has a circulation of about 20,000.

Ingersoll said no changes in personnel were contemplated at the newspaper.

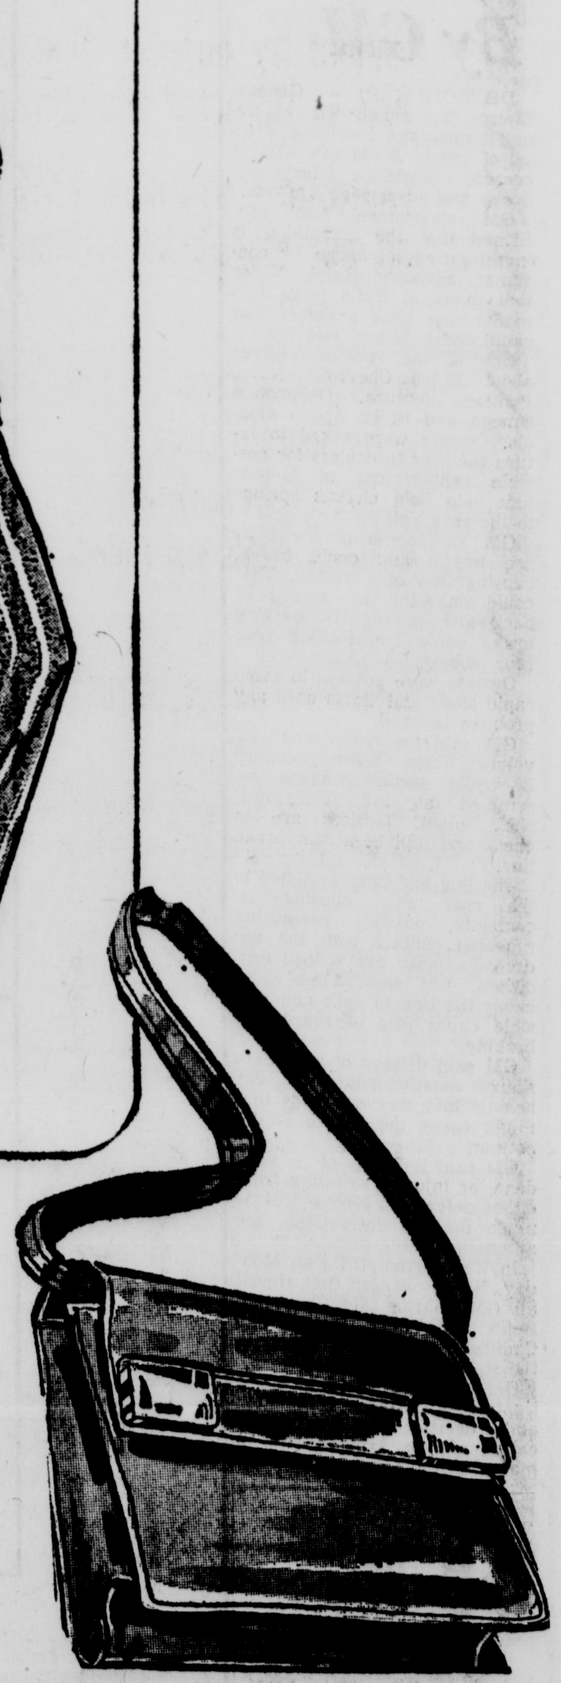

Ingersoll owns 15 newspapers in seven states, including The Daily Freeman, the Pottstown (Pa.) Mercury and the Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal. Each are operated as a separate corporation.

The Hewitt family has been associated with the Tonawanda News for three generations. In addition to Mrs. Hewitt, stockholders include her sons, Charles and Barnard, and two daughters, Mrs. James Sole, of Westport, Conn., and Mrs. Ahmee Reynolds of Ithaca.

Commerce Committee Okays Energy Move

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a move to encourage increased energy conservation, an amendment allowing retail establishments to voluntarily agree to local action on hours of operation and delivery times, was passed by the House Commerce Committee, according to its sponsor, Ohio Congressman Clarence J. Brown.

"I am confident that the restrictions within the amendment provide a strong safeguard against abuse, while affording a much needed approach to jointly conserving energy," Brown said.

He pointed out that while any individual business is free now to alter hours of operation or other business practices to save energy, a haphazard approach that sees some establishments remaining open after others close could also cause public inconvenience. Any establishment not wishing to go along with a joint agreement, however, would be free to do so, Brown noted, emphasizing the voluntary nature of the provision.

The amendment was included in the Emergency Energy bill, which is currently before the committee. It would require that the President set up procedures permitting such agreements within 15 days after passage of the act by Congress. Any such agreements would have to be open to public comment.

Brown said that without such a provision in the Emergency Energy bill, local retail firms attempting voluntary joint actions to conserve energy might be subject to federal antitrust prosecution and in some cases, state laws as well. "Such laws, while necessary to protect the public from unfair selling and pricing practices, can also get in the way of joint action by local business firms attempting to work together to cut down energy consumption," Brown said.

Brown further stressed that meetings among business firms to discuss such energy saving programs would have to be publicized in advance to the U.S. Attorney General, the Federal Trade Commission and the general public within the local area. The meetings said, a written summary of themselves would also have to be public, and provide an opportunity for any person to submit either oral or written views concerning the proposed agreements. Finally, Brown said, a written summary of such meetings would have to be provided to the attorney general, the FTC and made available to the public.

Nixon, Ford Congratulate Fish Sr.

NEW YORK CITY — Former Congressman Hamilton Fish Sr. celebrated his 85th birthday on December 7 — and received congratulatory telegrams from friends and colleagues, including President Nixon and Vice-President Gerald R. Ford.

In his letter to Fish, President Nixon said, "It must give you tremendous satisfaction to look back from this milestone to such a productive lifetime, and it must be particularly heartwarming to know that you have served our country and our fellow citizens with such dedication and distinction."

Ford, in his letter, said, "Everyone who has been privileged to know you is fortunate, indeed. They recognize that you are a most outstanding American, a man who has served the public welfare first as a State Assemblyman and later as a member of the U.S. House of Representatives for 25 years. . . It pleases me to join with your many friends and admirers in honoring you on your birthday. May the future be as kind to you as the past has been."

Fish represented the Mid-Hudson Valley in Congress from 1919 to 1945. A Republican, he was a senior member of the House Rules Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee. His son, Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., presently represents the 25th Congressional District in Washington. The elder Fish now resides in New York City.

Standard Furniture in Energy Fight

KINGSTON — Believing the "energy crisis is a very severe one," Standard Furniture with stores in Kingston, Albany, Troy and Schenectady, has already taken large steps with regard to its trucks, window lighting and interior lighting, according to Ted Weiner, manager of the Kingston store on Wall Street.

Breaking down the problem into several parts, store and general management, at a December energy crisis meeting, agreed to the following:

● Trucks must not be allowed to idle while parked at a customer's house or a luncheonette. When a truck is not moving the ignition must be turned off even though this will make the men colder when they get back to their cab.

● The company will not pay any speeding tickets and is setting up a new system of truck mileage to indicate whenever a truck is not getting its best mileage performance. Standard is continuing its "very fine truck maintenance program" to make sure engines are clean for best possible performance. Weekly tire inspections are also made.

● The company has agreed to curtail the amount of its outdoor lighting as well as indoor lighting using not more than 25 watt bulbs and turning out most lamps on display regardless of wattage. Standard also is turning off all television sets on display with the exception of one portable black and white and one color console to be used for demonstration. Some ceiling lights in stores are also being cut and all spotlights will be eliminated because of the enormous amounts of wattage which they take.

● The company is also making signs, some of which are already in stores "to conserve energy turn off all lights in bathrooms and floors which are not in constant use."

● More warehouse merchandise is being shipped to each of the stores so that customers can take more goods with them and therefore effect less gas use for deliveries.

● While the company cannot enforce employes activities outside of the scope of the working day, Standard Furniture is urging them to form car pools whenever hours and locations are compatible.

In a message to Ulster County area residents, the company said, "we realize that many of our competitors will pay little attention to the speed limits, the window lighting and to interior lighting but while we are not looking for a merit badge as America's number one patriotic company or anything of the sort, we are going to try our best to spread the available energy over as long a period as is possible. We believe that if every company and every family does this we will be able to get along just fine. The problem is that unless some families and companies set examples, there is little hope that the rest will follow . . ."

Grand Union Nov. Sales Up 13 Pct., New Record

ELMOND PARK, N.J. — Sales of The Grand Union Company for the 5 weeks ended Dec. 1, 1973, totaled $153,445,282, an increase of 13 per cent over sales of $135,839,823 in the comparable period of 1972.

For the first 39 weeks of Grand Union's current (1973) fiscal year, through Dec. 1, 1973, sales were $1,097,928,282. This represents an increase of 10.6 per cent over sales of $992,801,790 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Sales for both the 5 weeks and 39 weeks were record highs for comparable periods.

Ninth largest food chain in the nation, Grand Union currently operates 603 retail outlets in 12 states, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Included are 535 supermarkets, 23 Grand Way general merchandise stores, 27 E-Z. Shop convenience food stores and 18 Grand Catalog Showrooms. Stores in operation at this time last year totaled 581.

Feel Arab Oil Embargo Key to Business Outlook

'The Bank' Experts Look at Crystal Ball for '74

By HUGH REYNOLDS

ALBANY — The Mideast oil embargo holds the key to whether 1974 will be a "plateau year" of rising unemployment, rising prices and declining corporate profits or something of a disaster, officers of the National Commercial Bank and Trust Company predicted at their third annual economic forecast.

"Our outlook for. . . 1974 is based on the assumption that the Arab oil embargo will be lifted before the end of the first quarter (March) in 1974," William Garvin, stock market analyst for the billion dollar holding company known as "The Bank" said. The Bank includes the former Kingston Trust Company.

Peter Farrell, economist for The Bank sees a slight increase of goods and services next year, signaling the end of a three-year period of economic expansion which began in 1970.

Farrell also sees a steep decline in residential construction along with a decrease in auto sales. Corporate profits will be down. "Although output will remain fairly constant, costs will continue to rise," Farrell said. "Thus profits will come under pressure. We expect a decline in corporate profits of at least five per cent from the 1973 level." Profits approached 28 per cent in 1973.

The experts from The Bank predict that the consumer price index will jump by about six per cent next year, the same amount it increased this year. The bank's experts predicted a three and a half per cent increase at this time last year. "We were wrong in our predictions," Garvin admitted.

Bank officials contend, however, that they were right about enough other things to the point where their management of their customers' billion dollars in trust was "extraordinarily successful."

Next year will also be a year of increased investment by industry in expansion, but, as Garvin says, all that is based on the lifting of the Arab oil embargo within the next three months or so. "If we're wrong (on the lifting of the embargo) it certainly will have very adverse effects," Garvin suggested.

The experts agree that the days of cheap fuel, the days of "fillerup, Mack" a few times a week, are gone and Farrell suggests that perhaps the fuel crisis is a blessing in disguise.

Farrell and Garvin contend that gasoline and oil have been underpriced for years which has discouraged exploration for additional supplies. "Cheap energy was a foregone conclusion and living patterns developed around that," Farrell said. "When something's cheap, you waste it."

Raising the price will encourage exploration of what most experts consider vast quantities of fossel fuels in the United States, thus making the nation self sufficient in energy.

The Bank's experts tend toward optimism, however, and went on to predict that the country should take off on another boom in 1975.

Pointing out that they've become heavily involved in investing for the "small investor" who heretofore was virtually ignored by trust companies of most banks, the bankers suggested a few "good buys" for 1974 for anyone interested in thestock market.

Drugs appear attractive, according to Garvin, although he allowed there might be some price erosion when Senator Kennedy's subcommittee starts hearings on the industry next year.

Agricultural equipment — John Deere in particular — looks good. American Telephone stock also was recommended, the idea being that businessmen trying to save fuel costs will use long distance as a first choice.

And for those who still have faith in the auto, Ford Motor Company might be a good investment, say the bankers. They base that assessment on the fact that Ford has about $1.2 billion in reserve cash but more importantly on the fact that Ford had a better idea before its competitors, small cars. Thirty-three per cent of Ford's production is in small cars, say the bankers, versus 17 per cent by General Motors.

Bank Card Credit Gains $300 Million in Quarter

WASHINGTON — Total bank card credit outstanding for the third quarter of 1973 totaled $5.9 billion — a jump of $300 million over the previous quarter, an American Bankers Association (ABA) official reported today.

Jack L. McSwain, chairman of the ABA Bank Card Division, said retail sales for the period tallied more than $3 billion, while cash advance volume totaled nearly $4 million.

During the quarter, more than 160 million sales slips were processed and more than three million cash advances made. The average retail sale was $19.61.

McSwain explained that "any cardholder can get a cash advance from any bank honoring his card. He just signs the slip and collects his cash. The advance is charged to his account."

For the first time since bank cards were introduced some nine years ago, he said, active accounts totaled more than 20 million.

McSwain, who is also vice president of the First National Bank of Birmingham, pointed out that nearly one-third of all bank card usage is by the cardholder who uses it primarily for convenience and pays his bill without incurring any finance charge.

There are more than 50 million Americans holding bank cards and more than 10,000 banks with card plans throughout the U.S.

Savings Banks . . . A Moderate Inflow

NEW YORK — Following five successive months of net deposit outflows totalling over $2.2 billion, the nation's mutual savings banks experienced a moderate $275 million net inflow in November, according to preliminary figures released here today by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

An estimated $190 million in interest credited to accounts in November resulted in the industry posting an overall growth in regular deposits of $465 million for the month. This compares with an increase of $666 million in regular deposits in November 1972 — the result of a $515 million net inflow and $151 million interest credited.

Commenting on the industry's deposit experience in November, Dr. Grover W. Ensley, NAMSB executive vice president, said that it appears to confirm a trend which began emerging in the previous month, with a number of savings banks reporting deposit inflows. He also noted that many savings banks renewed their marketing efforts in the high-rate certificate area, under federal regulatory changes effective November 1.

At the end of November, deposits in savings banks totaled an estimated $95.3 billion, up $5.1 billion from November 1972. Total assets of the industry stood at $106.2 billion as of November 30, compared with $99.7 billion a year ago.

Lancaster Gets Metro Position

NEW YORK — Edwin B. Lancaster has been appointed an executive vice-president of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, it has been announced by Richard R. Shinn, president and chief executive officer.

Previously, Lancaster, who is a 34-year veteran of Metropolitan Life, served as senior vice-president and chief actuary.

A native of LeMars, Iowa, he received his B.A. degree in mathematics, with Phi Beta Kappa honors, from the University of Iowa in 1938. Following his graduation, he joined Metropolitan Life as a temporary actuarial clerk. In 1939, after a year of graduate study in actuarial mathematics, he accepted a permanent position with the company.

He became an officer of the company with the title of assistant actuary in 1955 and was advanced to associate actuary in 1958 and actuary in 1964.

'Y' Announces Winter Slate

KINGSTON — The YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County has announced this week as registration week for all YMCA winter programs, and also as the start of most YMCA regular adult programs. Registration is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily, through Saturday and must be done in person for all programs.

In addition to the YMCA's swim lessons for youth there are men's and women's health club programs, men's athletic club, women's morning triangle club, men's winter basketball league, and youth and adult recreation programs.

Also included are the following special programs:

Tiny tot classes for 3, 4 and 5 year olds with their moms or dads. It is an instruction program which involves each parent under the supervision of a YMCA instructor teaching their own youngster to swim. Classes offered at 9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday and 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

Aquatic leadership development is a fairly new program to the YMCA having been offered for the first time last winter. The program is the first step in becoming a certified instructor, and is open to Junior and Senior High School members. Participants have a theory session on Saturday mornings and a practical session one afternoon during grade school lessons. Graduates of the course, depending upon age, will be qualified to teach or act as assistant instructors, and go on to be fully certified YMCA instructors.

The Chess Club will meet on Tuesdays from 4 to 5 p.m. and instruction as well as chance to play will be part of the weekly program. Everyone from grade school up is welcome to attend and learn the game or increase their skill.

Senior lifesaving class will be held on Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. and those who pass the course will receive both YMCA and Red Cross Certification. Those planning a lifeguarding job next summer are encouraged to take the course now while there is room, instead of waiting until the spring.

Springboard diving will be offered on Friday from 7 to 8 p.m. All types of dives will be introduced and any YMCA member from fifth grade up is welcome. The class will be limited to 20 participants so those interested are encouraged to register early.

Skin diving is for those who are in the YMCA Porpoise class or who are at least in Junior High. Although a limited amount of equipment will be available participants are encouraged to purchase their own mask, snorkel and swim fins. This program will not include use of scuba equipment, but is a lead-in program to that sport, and will be held on Wednesday from 7 to 7:30 p.m.

Women's figure shaping is one of the most popular programs at the Y and will hold registration tonight beginning at 7 p.m. only. This program combines a testing, measuring and personal advice approach to a group exercise program. Participants also have use of special exercise equipment, sauna, steam and the YMCA's pool.

Synchronized swimming is patterned after figure shaping but all exercise will be done in the pool. Participants do not have to be swimmers to enjoy this refreshing form of exercise. Class meets Mondays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. followed by a steam and sauna.

Adult swim lessons will be offered as a separate program this winter for those who do not wish to become full privilege members but would like to learn to swim. The coed class will meet from 8 to 9 p.m. and participants need to be only social members of the Y.

Yoga will again be offered. Class is open to men and women and will meet for six weeks with a maximum of 20 per class, held on Wednesday from 9:30 to 11:30

Judo for both youth and adults will be offered on Wednesdays. Class time for youth is 6 to 7:30 p.m. and for adult 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Auto minor repairs will deal with minor repairs and maintenances, as well as how the major parts of the car work. Participants must be licensed drivers and the coed class will meet on Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

Camp counselor training class will be for the 12th consecutive year for people 16 years of age and over. The 12-week class starts Wednesday, Jan. 16 from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m.

Advanced scuba diving is for certified scuba divers who are 16 years or older, and have logged 10 hours of scuba diving or more. Class meets Mondays, 6 to 9 p.m.

Youth and adult ski lessons will be held on Wednesdays and Fridays in a package of five sessions starting Wednesday, Jan. 9 if we have snow or start the Wednesday we do have snow. Youth bus will leave the Y parking lot at 3:45 p.m. Adult can car pool. Lessons will be held at Mohonk Ski Center.

Exotic mid-eastern dance beginner classes will be held on Thursdays, one at 7 p.m. and another at 8 p.m. Enrollment for these two classes was held on a first come basis. The intermediate class for those who participated in the fall classes will be held on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Y Players Theatre is new for fifth grade and over. The group will have readings for a play, stage management and make up. The class meets on Saturdays, 10 a.m. to noon.

Cheerleading is for girls fifth grade or over who want to be ready for spring tryouts. Class will meet Mondays from 4 to 5 p.m.

Baton Twirling meets Saturdays at 11 a.m. for beginners, and 11:30 a.m. for intermediates. Participants must furnish their own baton.

Golf lessons will be held on Tuesdays at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. with Pro Bill Reilly, for a series of six sessions starting Feb. 5.

International folk dancing is a coed adult class for beginners who want to learn various ethnic dances. Class will meet on Thursdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The first session on Jan. 10 is free followed by eight sessions of regular classes.

Kindergarten swim lessons will be held on Wednesdays starting at 4:15 p.m.

RHINEBECK — The Village of Rhinebeck is looking for a good used ladder truck for the Rhinebeck Fire Department.

At its recent regular meeting the board authorized a sale of bonds, not to exceed $45,000, toward the purchase of the truck which, in conjunction with $20,000 in a capital reserve fund, it is hoped will be enough.

Estimates on a new truck to meet firemen's specifications were around $100,000. Trustees hope the $65,000 will be enough. They authorized advertising for bids.

The bonds, with a five-year life, will probably be paid off through using federal revenue sharing funds for the next three years.

Fire officials also requested replacement of a Dodge truck now in use, within a period extending from one to three years.

In other village business, Mayor Peter Sipperley reported that town constables have expressed a willingness to supplement the village police force on an hourly basis. The village has employed Sheriff's deputies extensively for many years to cover when village police are not on duty.

Postage Stamp Program Set at Arlington

FREEDOM PLAINS — A colored slide program on "New York State on Postage Stamps," will be shown Friday at 8 p.m. at Arlington High School at a meeting of the Ferrary Philatelic Society.

Following the slide program at the school on Rt. 55, Freedom Plains, various lots of world-wide stamps and covers, including first-day covers, will be auctioned off.

For January the following programs are scheduled: Friday, Jan. 4, 8 p.m., colored slides: "Stamps of Great Britain, from the Penny Black to the Royal Wedding Issues."

Friday, Jan. 18, 8 p.m., colored slides, stamps honoring Franklin D. Roosevelt. "The Most Famous Philatelist of Dutchess County." Also shown will be slides on "Stamps Honoring Eleanor Roosevelt, Defender of Human Rights."

Free copy of 20 programs planned for 1974 on request from the secretary: Dr. LeRoy B. Nydegger, 230 Route 32 South, New Paltz, N.Y. 12561.

All meetings are open to the public.

Completes Seminar

James Southworth, fire marshall of the Town of Esopus, recently completed the annual Fire Marshals and Inspectors Seminar conducted by the State Office for Local Government at the State Academy of Fire Science in Montour Falls.

The seminar provided training and technical instructors for the trainees, who are responsible for fire prevention and protection work. Major portions of the program were devoted to flammable vapor detection procedures and the handling of underground gasoline tank leaks.

HOLIDAY PARTY — Students at the West Hurley Elementary School treated senior citizens to a holiday party at the school recently. The party included Christmas carols presented by the school chorus, a Christmas play and refresments. The students also made gifts for their guests. Among the 45 senior citizens who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Milliard Rowe (R) of West Hurley, who accept holiday treats from students (L-R) Jamie Hancock, Lisa Coughlin, Douglas Jack and Juergen Frasch. 300 Years Ago in Boston... Christmas Was Against Law

BOSTON (AP) — Christmas carolers, eggnog, Santa Clauses and fancy trees, all within sight of Boston Common, would shock the city's Puritan forebears. Three hundred years ago, it was all against the law.

Christmas was banned in Boston and frowned upon in most other parts of pious New England.

These early Americans sailed away from England to escape the excesses of the state religion, especially the drinking and partying that was a Christmas Eve tradition. So they made a home where only pure religion was accepted, and Christmas had a bad reputation.

Public opinion was enough to keep most colonists in line on Dec. 25. But in 1659, the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony made it official: It was against the law to observe "any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forbearing of labour, feasting or any other way."

The fine for Christmas keepers was five shillings.

In Connecticut, the ban was specific. It forbade the reading of common prayer, keeping Christmas, making minced pies, dancing, playing cards or performing on any instruments of music, except the drum, trumpet or jews-harp.

Even without the fear of paying a fine or spending time in the stocks, people shunned the holiday, because there were few quicker ways of losing status.

So for the first New Englanders, Christmas was a day of work, just like any other day.

In 1691, William Bradford, governor of Plymouth, described the first Christmas recorded in New England. He said he called the colony out to work, but some people said it went against their conscience to do labor on Christmas.

Bradford told them if they made it a matter of conscience, he would let them stay home "til they were better informed." But when the settlers returned to the colony Christmas noon, they found those who had stayed behind "in ye streets at play openly, some pitching ye bar, and some at stoolball and such like sports."

So Bradford "went to them and took away their implements and told them it was against his conscience that they should play and others work."

That set the tone for Christmas Day in New England throughout the 1600s.

The colonists' distaste for the holiday lingered from the carnival-like revelry they had seen in England. There, at Christmas time, minstrels sang ribald songs, celebrators pranced around Yule logs and gamblers passed bets across wassail bowls.

The more rowdy even elected a King of Misrule, who led the merry making. Sometimes, dancing pipers and clowns lurched into churches on Christmas morning and disrupted solemn masses.

By 1681, there had been such an influx of Catholics, Episcopalians and others who wanted to celebrate the holiday in the New World that the ban became impossible to enforce in Massachusetts, and the legislature repealed it.

But that didn't mean Christmas was suddenly socially accepted.

Four years later, Judge Samuel Sewall, a Puritan, noted happily in his diary that carts were still coming to town on Christmas day, and the shops were open as usual.

"Some, somehow, observe the day, but are vexed, I believe, that the Body of the People profane it," he wrote. "And blessed be God! No Authority yet to compell them to keep it."

Slowly, however, the Puritan influence began to wane. One of the first Christmas entertainments they allowed was the display of a polar bear on Boston Common. This led to educational plays and other forms of serious fun.

But even as late as 1841, Wendell Phillips, the Boston abolitionist, referred to "that wicked Papistrie, Christmas.'

CONSERVING ENERGY — Stars attending the World Premiere of the 20th Century Fox "Cinderella Liberty" arrived in Westwood, Calif., by different means of transportation during the energy crisis. Actor Michael Evans arrived on a camel, Ernie Orsatti and date Chris Forbes arrived on roller skates and actress Edy Williams is on a baby elephant. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Celebrating In the Slums

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP) — The Christmas tree shelters stacks of canned goods, peas, corn, beans. The carols ring with the brassy notes of a bass bugle nearly as tall as the little bugler. And in the nativity scene baby Jesus is a tiny girl with golden earrings.

Thus, in one of the nation's worst slums, is Christmas celebrated, a bright red-and-green gem in a sullen, desperate year.

"I cannot buy a gift
At his dear feet to lay.
I'll give my heart
This Christmas Day." — a girl who calls herself Crystal Cummings, age 9.

Not for all the children of Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant section, but for some, Christmas comes with the opening of the doors of the Tabernacle Education Day Care and Action Center. It comes with a parade led by the Rev. Grace Havenwaller. Of the 300 children who use the center, 30 live there.

"We are like a family here. Two-thirds of the children don't know where their parents live."

"Save The Children," which sponsors the center, provides the turkeys. The women of the community cook for days. The doors open and hundreds of children come in. There are toys and clothes and a drawing for baskets of food. The center tries to see that any family with six or more children receives a bag of food and a turkey.

The day care center started with adversity. Mrs. Havenwaller was working in a hospital and was told the authorities would take her 2-year-old son if she could not provide for him. So she quit her job and went on welfare, and began taking care of neighbor children during the day so their mothers could work.

"Christmas means to me a lot of toys and a lot
Of people with laughing and crying. Christmas
Was good to me; let this Christmas be the same."—Lawrence Ham, age 10.

Everyone is a little drummer boy as the crimson-robed parade prances up one street and down another, past the rows of bleak and battered brownstones that house families torn by poverty and drugs. The playlet the children stage is a drama with Joseph and Mary and the baby Jesus and, to make it complete, Scrooge. For this day in a grim year, Christmas like a happy jester shakes his merry bells at the gray world. And Santa holds a child on his lap, his white beard stark against his black face, and the world smiles.

"Sometimes I am sad on Christmas because it is a sad day when I think about the children that don't know what Christmas is." — Yvetter Babb, 13.

THE GOSSIP COLUMN

MACLAINE: A busy body.

Q: I read about Holly Woodlawn's troubles with the bottle, but what I don't understand is how this Andy Warhol superstar could have been so poor that she needed to go on welfare. — E.L., New York, N.Y.

A: According to Holly, all Andy paid her for starring in his successful movie "Trash" was a great big $150, and knowing Andy we're inclined to believe her. The world-famous transvestite says that all she has left to her name is an $8,000 gorilla coat "given to me by a very well-known male star whose name I will never reveal."

Q: For some time now we've seen no photographs of that extraordinary black model who was an African princess. Could you tell us please what she's doing? — G.V., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A: You must mean Princess Elizabeth of Tora, the sister of one of the Kings of Uganda. For a while she dropped out of modeling to work as a roving ambassador for President Idi Amin of Uganda. Elizabeth's thankless job was to try to counteract the terrible publicity Amin was getting for the massacres of an estimated 80,000 Ugandans in various power struggles. Elizabeth, last seen at the United Nations, has now disappeared. Friends fear that she is in prison in Uganda or worse, since one of her last acts before she vanished was to try to get some close relatives out of the country.

Q: I don't hear much about Shirley MacLaine anymore. Has she retired? — E.P., Ft. Worth, Tex.

A: Shirley is far from retired. She has just finished her second autobiographical book and is editing a 90-minute film on her trip to Communist China. Shirley also devotes time to assisting with grants and promotions for film makers. Recently at National Film Day in Pittsburgh, she was annoyed by a reporter who asked, "What cause are you pushing this week?" Shirley is still romantically involved with reporter Pete Hamill.

Q: How much do those paparazzi photographers get for their special pictures? Is it worth the scramble? — J.E., Tampa, Fla.

A: It sure is. One publication recently paid $3,000 for a photo of Elizabeth Taylor kissing Henri Wynberg, her new boyfriend. Nude pictures of Jackie and Ari Onassis (separately) were worth even more to the focus-pocus lensmen who took them.

Q: I read in a movie magazine that Elliott Gould and Barbra Streisand are bitter enemies and she won't even let him see their son, Jason. Is that true? — T.E., Massapequa, L.I.

A: Not true. Divorced they are, but unfriendly they're not. In fact Streisand says she likes to make movies with her ex-husband. They may do "The Merry Widow" together for Ingmar Bergman.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Whatever happened to Hedy Lamarr? The 59-year-old actress hasn't been seen much since her extensive plastic surgery last year. She lives in New York these days because she is very much in the thrall of a new love affair. Hedy is currently living in a maid's room in a Park Avenue apartment.

LA MARR: Life begins at 59.

County Finance Session Set

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

A special "executive" meeting of the Ulster County Legislature, has been called by the Finance Committee. Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8), scheduled it for Thursday at 3 p.m. "for the purpose of explaining the fund balance monies appropriated in the 1974 budget. . ."

The explanation, he said, is necessary because of "conflicting statements that have been made" as to estimated surpluses.

The meeting will take place in the legislative chambers of the County Office Building and will be followed by a 4 p.m. meeting at which Peter R. Burdash, director of Information Services for Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation will speak.

Burdash will give a slide presentation on "understanding the National Energy Dilemma."

Savago, who is also chairman of the Legislature said he invited Burdash in view of the energy crisis now upon us.

In assessing the overall national energy situation, Burdash will point that, until recently, the United States has literally been developed without any significant restrictions due to a lack of energy or natural resources. He will also emphasize, however, that our country cannot maintain the growth rate of recent years without major changes in its methods of supplying and using energy.

The executive session of the Legislature, which Savago called "informal" was perhaps prompted by reports last week by Legislator Glenn. A. Debrosky (R-Dist. 6) who claimed the county has a $6.5 million surplus.

Countering, the budget and treasurer's offices said Debrosky failed to take into account expenses, for November and December and that his figures were off by about $4 million.

Debrosky has gained little support, other than from the Town of Gardiner for his proposal that the 1974 county budget of $37.7 million be amended to reduce the tax levy.

Treasurer Fred H. DuBois and Budget Officer and Clerk of the Board Edward W. Snyder said it is impossible to tell until the end of the year just how much of a surplus will remain. They estimate however that it will amount to about $2.5 million of which $2 million has been appropriated for the 1974 budget.

Ulster County's $37.7 million budget for the coming year was passed earlier this month by a vote of 27 to 5 with one legislator, Douglas V. Dye (R-Dist. 2), absent. Those voting against the budget included Debrosky, Lewis Hall (R-Dist. 2), Alex J. Nirenberg (D-Dist. 10), Charles Scala (R-Dist. 1) and William R. West (R-Dist. 12).

HONOR EDWARD F. SHEA M.D. — The medical library in Benedictine Hospital was dedicated recently in memory of Dr. Edward F. Shea who died in 1972 after having served "his community and this hospital in the highest traditions of the medical profession." At the dedication were: (L) Dr. Vincent P. Amatrano, president of the Benedictine Hospital Medical Staff; Sister Mary Charles, administrator; Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Sr.; Peter Shea, son of Dr. Shea, Harry Thayer, a life-long friend of Dr. Shea. Another son, Nicholas P. Shea of St. James was unable to attend. A luncheon for family and friends of Dr. Shea was held with a large delegation of physicians in attendance. (Freemhan photo by Kruh)

Woodstock Landfill Pact

By CARL GRAHAM

WOODSTOCK

The Woodstock Town Board Tuesday night authorized Supervisor Verner May to sign a one-year contract with the Town of Shandaken for use of the Woodstock landfill.

Shandaken will pay $12,500 for use of the landfill in 1974. Councilman Paul DeLisio noted that the town's landfill study group had recommended a price of $15,000, but that the reduced figure had ben reached after negotiations with Shandaken town authorities, who contract for the Woodstock landfill use on a year-to-year basis. The new price still represents a considerable increase from the $5,000 paid during the current year.

The board authorized expenditure of $11,000 for a five-month study to be conducted by University of Pennsylvania students, who will report to the board on such items as a social survey, an economic map, an evaluation of environmental data, and recommendations for revision of the town's zoning ordinance. The study, which will begin in January, will furnish the basis for updating the town's master plan. Members of the Pennsylvania faculty will oversee the work of the five students who will collect the data.

The town board will maintain a close liaison with the students while the study is in progress, May said, with a three-member committee meeting with the survey team on a weekly basis. Members will include Valerie Cadden, an incoming town board member, plus representatives of the Civic Arts Association and the Conservation Commission.

Town Clerk Marjorie Harder was authorized to enter into an agreement with the New York State Bicentennial Commission, which is making a microfilm program available to local municipalities without charge to preserve historic documents and records.

The town received only one bid for No. 2 fuel oil for heating the town hall and other town buildings. Amos Post, Inc. of Catskill bid 25.4 cents a gallon as of Dec. 1 and was awarded the contract.

Mrs. Harder was authorized to advertise for bids for two voting machines. May said that it was possible that two new voting districts would be created in the town after the machines are available.

The board named Edgar Leaycraft, the Rev. David Arnold, and Edward Balmer to the Bicentennial Commission which will prepare a program for the town's bicentennial celebration in 1976. May said that the commission will number five to seven members eventually, and that Leaycraft will serve as chairman.

Leaycraft was also named to the town's Landmarks Committee, along with Mrs. Cissy Pollack and Alf Evers, who will serve as chairman.

The board accepted Grogkill Road, Lunds' Court, and Abbey Road as town roads after Arthur Van Valkenburgh, highway superintendent, reported that they had been inspected and met town standards.

Town Jusitce Kevin Sweeney said he felt that new roads should be named by the town instead of contractors, and May said that a list could be given to the planning board from which contractors could choose. Sweeney said that many Woodstock artists had been honored in museums and galleries over the world but not in Woodstock, and suggested that town roads in the future be named to honor them and other people who had performed outstanding services for the town.

DeLisio, who leaves the board Dec. 31, was congratulated by other members for his service, and in turn praised the board as an active and interested group which does excellent service for the town.

In other action, the board passed a resolution setting a town speed limit of 50 miles an hour to conform to state and federal requests, appointed Michael Edwards to the planning board to fill the remainder of Arthur E Hansen's two-year term, and noted that the Department of Transportation had denied its request for a 35 miles an hour speed limit on Roue 212 between Woodstock and Zena Road.

Project Moving In Ellenville

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE

The contractor has begun work, a vital property transfer has both Federal and state approval, and tonight's public hearing on naming Jabco Const. Co., of Great Neck, L.I. the official redeveloper for the Urban Renewal parcel that used to be the Rudolph and American Legion properties is exqected to be just a formality, as Ellenville's public housing project finally seems to be underway.

The Ellenville Urban Renewal Agency and Jobco, which was designated by the Ellenville Housing Authority and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) as the developer for the turn-key housing project, have signed a memorandum of understanding.

The memorandum has allowed Jobco to begin work on the Urban Renewal site before they actually take title to it, speeding up the construction schedule.

The transfer of the property, according to Ellenville Urban Renewal Director Robert Peck, has been approved by both HUD and New York State, and a formal closing is anticipated Dec. 31. It cannot take place until Dec. 31, Peck said, because the agency is required to wait 11 days after tongiht's public hearing before formally transferring the property to Jobco.

The hearing is expected to be just a formality, with little or no opposition to Jobco being named redeveloper for the parcel anticipated. The hearing begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Village Hall.

A formal groundbreaking for the project has not yet been scheduled, though one may reportedly be held Saturday, Dec. 29.

The total project will contain 70 units of low-rent housing, with the project being financed by HUD. The senior citizen section of the project, 30 units, will be erected on the Urban Renewal parcel between Center and Canal Streets. The family housing, 40 units, will be placed on Eastwood Avenue.

The whole project is expected to cost about $1.9 million. After Jobco builds it, it is turned over to the Housing Authority, which will operate the project, pay the Village of Ellenville a share of the rent receipts in lieu of taxes, and make payments on the cost of the project from the rest of the rent receipts.

The Oldest Veterans ...Ranks Are Thinning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ranks of America's oldest war veterans, those who served in the Spanish-American War, are thinning rapidly, but 1,720 were still alive at last count in October.

They were in their teens or 20s when they marched off to that brief war that lasted from April to August of 1898.

About half require somebody to help them get around, but others are still spry and going strong.

There's some uncertainty about who the youngest is, but he may be Dr. Clay Thibodaux, 85, of Schriever, La., a dentist who says he still works some of the time.

The Veterans Administration compiled its first computerized list of the Spanish-American War veterans over the past several months at the request of Beulah M. Cope, adjutant general of the United Spanish-American War Veterans, and The Associated Press.

The men of Teddy Roosevelt's era are a bit easier to trace than latter-day veterans because they have the distinction of being the only veterans eligible for pensions regardless of other income, except military retired pay.

Their widows also are eligible for pensions regardless of their incomes and the VA sends small checks to more than 29,000 of them each month. There are also 1,464 children of veterans receiving pensions because they became disabled before age 18.

The Spanish-American War survivors became the oldest living war veterans when the last veteran of the Indian Wars, Fredrak Fraske of Chicago, died at age 101 last June.

The last Civil War veteran was a Confederate, Walter W. Williams of Houston, Tex., who died in 1959 at age 117. He outlived the last Union veteran, Albert Woolson of Duluth, Minn., who died at 101 in 1956.

Mrs. Cope does more than anyone else trying to help the old soldiers and sailors, working in her roomy office three floors below ground level in the VA's national headquarters. She became interested in the 1920s because "my mother's brother, Charlie, in Illinois was a Spanish-American war veteran."

As her veterans' roll has dwindled so has her organization's income, but Mrs. Cope tries to stretch the income from the membership fees.

Mrs. Cope said she has relatively few problems to handle for the veterans, and her 300 or so letters a year come mainly from widows. She also gets lots of mail from grandchildren trying to trace the family tree and Grandpa's role in the war.

Consumer Group Gives Warning On Unsafe Toys

MONTPELIER Vt. (AP) — With Christmas toy buying in full swing, a Vermont consumer group is warning shoppers to check toys for possible danger to the health and safety of children.

The Vermont Public Interest Research Group also charged that a federal program designed to keep dangerous toys off store shelves is "totally inadequate."

VPIRG warned of toys with sharp metal protrusions, baby rattles with easily detachable parts, easily breakable plastic toys and bendable rubber toys with wires inside.

VPIRG director Scott Skinner said a survey was conducted of 15 stores in Addison, Washington and Chittenden Counties in Vermont. It turned up 25 toys on the federal list of banned products, along with 37 other toys which the group felt posed a threat to the health of children. The names of those toys were forwarded to the federal Consumer Product Safety Commisson CPSC, Skinner said.

Skinner noted that the list itself did not offer much help to consumers, although it was the main weapon of the commission. He said some manufacturers corrected the dangers of toys, but continued to market them under the same serial number and name. Skinner also said some toys on banned lists from several years ago could still be found on sale.

"With pre-testing of toys and strong penalties for violators, the efforts of CPSC will continue to be a farce," Skinner claimed. "The entire toy safety program is at present little more than a stop-gap, makeshift program."

Policeman Becomes Disc Jockey

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — By day, police Sgt. Billy Hudson pounds a beat in downtown Tallahassee.

But by night, he sits behind a turntable to ply North Florida airwaves with musical praises of the Lord.

"I love it," Hudson, 36, says of his avocation as a gospel music disc jockey. "I've had some pretty good times out of it. I love people."

Hudson's audience returned the compliment earlier this year, selecting the officer as America's most popular gospel music disc jockey in a contest sponsored by a record publishing company.

"I received 1,500 cards and I quit counting after then," says Hudson, who is also a former national policeman of the year.

Hudson says it was love of the Lord and his fellow man that led him to take to the airwaves to play gospel music.

"It gets real tiring at times, but if you heard the comments from the older people and letters I get, it just keeps you go-going."

Hudson, who grew up listening to gospel music in a small town in the Florida Panhandle, decided about three years ago Tallahassee should have some gospel music programming. He convinced a local furniture dealer to sponsor a weekly 30-minute program.

It was such a success that Hudson's program is now broadcast daily.

Hudson said he isn't paid for his 90-minute Sunday morning program but receives "a little at night for the time I put in."

MEETING ON ENERGY — Officers of the New Paltz Teachers Association and central school administrators met recently to review the energy crisis. Among measures to be taken is reduction of late buses to only two days a week and buses for athletic teams from five to three times a week in order to maintain student transportation for reguar school hours. Conferring on the crisis were (L-R) Ronald Noelle, chief negotiator, NPTA; Albert Beard, president-elect NPTA; Frank Hamilton, assistant to the superintendent for business; Charles Karsten, president NPTA and Dr. James E. Hicken, superintendent of schools.

TWENTY NEW BOOTHS — City of Kingston recently entered an agreement with New York Telephone Company for the installation of 20, modern, curb-side telephone booths to be located at various spots throughout the populated areas of Kingston. Shown at a Broadway intersection are: (L) Arthur Schmaltz, communications consultant for the Telephone Company; Mayor Francis R. Koenig and Robert Miggins, installer-repairman. The lighted booths serve as a "beacon of safety" and the city will realize a monthly revenue based on usage.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF CHANGE IN ELECTRIC RATES

On November 21, 1973 Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation filed with the Public Service Commission of the State of New York modifications to rate schedule P.S.C. No. 14—Electricity to provide for fuel adjustments to become effective with the eighth billing batch of the month following that for which the average fuel cost has been determined rather than during the second succeeding month. By order of the Public Service Commission issued December 4, 1973, the proposed modifications became effective December 12, 1973.

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

In the Matter of the Acquisition of Title in Fee by the Incorporated Village of New Paltz, Ulster County, New York, to Parcels of Real Property situated in said Village for use as a Public Thoroughfare, for Fulton Road Extension
VILLAGE OF NEW PALTZ,
Petitioner,
— against —
THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK and "JOHN DOE" and "JANE DOE"

The said names "John Doe" and "Jane Doe" being fictitious, the real names of the respondents being unknown to the petitioner, said fictitious names being intended to designate the owner or owners of parcels of real property designated as lots 296 and 297, on Map 1822 on file in the Ulster County Clerk's Office.

Respondents.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR TENTATIVE DECREE OF COMPENSATION AND DAMAGES
Index No. 1973/483

SIRS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that upon the application of J. Philip Zand, Village Attorney of the Incorporated Village of New Paltz, sworn to on the 15th day of November, 1973, and upon all of the papers and proceedings had herein, the undersigned will move this Court at a Special Term thereof to be held in and for the County of Ulster at the Ulster County Court House, 285 Wall Street, Kingston, New York on the 1st day of February, 1974, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, for a tentative decree, pursuant to Section 66 of the Condemnation Law of the State of New York, determining that the appraisal accompanying the application shall constitute the assessment and award to be made to the owners of real property described in said application, and for such other and further relief as to this Court may seem just and proper.

Dated: November 15, 1973
Yours, etc.,
J. PHILIP ZAND
Attorney for Petitioner

Horoscope Presentation Scheduled

NEW PALTZ

Walter Czubay, a retired astrologer of Kerhonkson, will present a horoscope for Ulster County Chapter 975, American Association of Retired Persons, at its next meeting on Monday, Jan. 7.

The meeting will be held in the Inter-County Savings Bank in New Paltz, with registration beginning at 1 p.m.

Attendance was good at the last regular meeting, at which Walter Stroh played on a violin of his own making, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beckman of Dutchess County Chapter 343, AARP. Mrs. Beckman played the piano while her husband played cello. The were followed by a singalong of Christmas carols led by Mrs. Anna Schulz at the piano. Refreshments, including homemade cakes, cookies, and ice cream, were served by Mrs. Jessie Shepherd and her committee.

Other coming events for Chapter 975 include a family dinner on Christmas Day at LaBonne Table on Route 32 in Rosendale. For further details call Mrs. Elsie Lorenzo in Highland.

The traditional Dutch treat dinner will be held Sunday, Jan. 20, at the Hudson Overlook Inn, Route 93, in West Park. For information call Clarence Bowman in Esopus.

Chapter 975 members are asked to keep all Mondays in February open, since a four-part program on crime prevention, chaired by Florence Ellison, will be offered each Monday of that month. Full details will be announced at a later date.

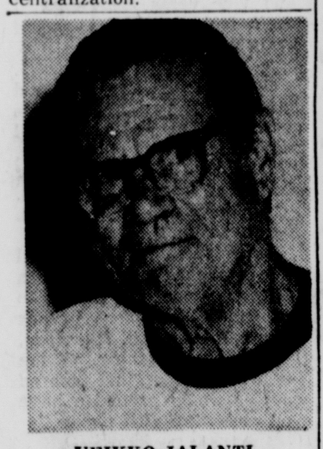

MARIO D. FANTINI

Paltz Dean Co-Authors Book

Mario D. Fantini, dean, Faculty of Education, State University College, New Paltz, has recently co-authored and published the book "Decentralization: Achieving Reform" with Marilyn Gittell, assistant vice president, associate provost and professor of Political Science, Brooklyn College. In their important new book published by Praeger Publishers, the authors of "Communty Control and the Urban School" deal with the broader movement toward political and administrative decentralization of urban governments. They establish demands for decentralization and community control as a reflection of the unresponsiveness of the institutions of urban government in the 1970's.

The authors consider the ways in which government became centralized by examining the ironic consequences of reforms made in the early twentieth century in the interest of professionalization and efficiency. They define "decentralization" as the redistribution of decision-making power to community representatives, with limited professional controls.

Fantini and Gittell use the experience gained in the decentralization of the big-city school systems for a case study. They carefully examine ways in which urban institutions, services, and political processes can be reformed to meet the changing needs of the society. The authors examine this experience in terms of the overall strategies and tactics of decentralization.

VEIKKO JALANTI

Appointment Is Announced

Sam Levine, chairman of the YMCA's Athletic Club, has announced the appointment of Veikko Jalanti as the club's masseur.

Jalanti is a New York State licensed masseur, and began his career in 1940. He has worked in New York City and at area resorts and hotels.

Jalanti will be on duty at the YMCA from 12:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays, and from 4 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The YMCA Athletic Club is open to all area men. An exercise program for members is held each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5:30 p.m. and each Monday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Bowling Party Is Planned

One of the many open classroom programs made available by Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services is a weekly bowling party for children in Special Education.

For the past three years the children have been participating in the bowling activity which serves as an exercise in coordination and concentration as well as a social experience. Many have earned awards for superior effort.

Teachers are Ann Arnold, Rosemarie Fritch, Robert Doucette and Thomas Grasso.

Anniversary Queen to Be Selected

Finalists for Kerhonkson Firemen's 50th Anniversary Queen were chosen recently at an informal reception at the home of Mrs. Clara Margaret Booth. Two Kerhonkson area girls were selected. They are Miss Tami Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Smith Jr. of Old Mine Road, and Miss Betty Jo Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Smith of Pataumkunk Road.

Crowning ceremonies are planned for New Year's Day at Kerhonkson Fire Company's Open House from 3 to 5 p.m. The Queen will be crowned at 4 p.m. with the ceremony being highlighted by the presence of television star, Peg Leg Bates. Awards from the Fire Company and Auxiliary will be presented to the Queen and runner-up. The Queen will reign at various events during the coming year.

Judges for the contest included Nancy Upton of the 4-H Office in Kingston; John Betaudier, program director of WKNY Radio Station in Kingston; and Chief Russell G. Wakeman of the Roscoe Fire Department, Roscoe, N.Y.

The contest, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of Kerhonkson Fire Company, is one of many monthly events planned in celebration of the group's 50th anniversary. The public is invited to the Open House.

'The Nutcracker' Is 'Sell Out'

A very, very limited number of tickets to the Poughkeepsie Ballet Theatre's performance of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker" are still available at Abrams Music Store in Kingston. The Christmas extravaganza will be at Community Theatre December 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Sponsored jointly by the Kingston Branch of American Association of University Women and Junior League of Kingston, the production is considered a "sell out." The Women's Department of The Freeman estimates that there are fewer than 25 tickets available.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
© 1973, Emily Post Institute, Inc.

Dear Mrs. Post: Whenever friends come to my home for the first time, I show them the rest of the house. However, when I go to friends' homes they do not do so, even after my being there may times. I enjoy seeing other people's homes and find it interesting to see how they decoarate and so on. But, obviously, if one asks about the rest of the house, one is considered nosy.

What is the correct practice on showing people the rest of one's home?

Confused

Dear "Confused": Ordinarily you do not suggest to dinner guests or people you have invited to any sort of party, that they look at the rest of the house. Most hostesses would hesitate to do so, if only because in preparing for their party, the rest of the house may not be as neat as it might be. It is for this reason, too, that guests should not ask to see the house.

This is all changed when you have just moved into a new hourse. Then, everyone wants to see it, and you want to show it off. But ordinarily, it is not expected. f you enjoy showing your house to people, you certainly may make the suggestion, but don't insist if your friends don't seem enthusiastic. And don't embarrass your hostess by insisting that she show you rooms she perhaps would rather you didn't see.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have read where a tip left for the waitress should be left in the center of the table, not under the edge of the plate as it used to be left years ago. Will you please tell me what is the correct way to leave a tip?

Mary E.

Dear Mary: The tip is left to one side of, or just above, the plate where the waiter or waitress can see it clearly. If several people are dining together but have separate checks, the tips might be put together in the center of the table, but it is just as correct for each dinner to leave his own tip close to his plate.

• • •

Dear Mrs. Post: In March my mother and stepfather and my sister and her husband will celebrate their twenth-fifth wedding anniversaries within a day of each other. I would like to have a party for them — an Open House or a tea.

My problem is — how should I word the invitation? Many of my mother's friends are not friends of my sister, and vice versa. Therefore, I don't feel the guests should bring gifts for both.

Mrs. G.

Dear Mrs. G.: I would suggest printed fill-in invitations, available at all stationers. At the top, write, "In honor of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith."

I can think of no tactful way of suggesting that guests bring only one gift, except to ask family and close friends to spread the word. Therefore, I would put nothing on the invitation unless the honored couples would prefer to have you write "No gifts please."

YWCA Golden Anniversary Highlights

The Young Women's Christian Association of Kingston has been observing its Golden Anniversary this year. Programs of interest have highlighted the observance throughout the months including an anniversary dinner which drew a capacity attendance.

Of particular interest to members of the YWCA, have been letters received from charter members. Each woman recalled something about YW activities down through the years which gave the organization significance and meaning.

Ruth Smith, one of the charter members, gives credit to a former chief of police Allen Wood, who was instrumental in gathering a group together for the purpose of doing something for youth. Ruth Smith says she attended the initial meeting along with Kathryn Millard and Mrs. Clara Norton Reed (now deceased), and many others from the American Red Cross group.

Ruth Smith recalls that helpful volunteers soon made the dream a realization. Some of the early workers included Mrs. Frank Thompson (deceased), Mrs. Frank Mathews, Mrs. Noble Graham, Mrs. Seth Staples and Dr. Mary Gage Day, who volunteered services for health check-ups of members.

The writer also states: "Miss Lillian Herdman was named director of clubs. She had girls from industrial plants in for luncheons. It was a popular service for many years. She also had girls of all ages in for basketball. She was loved and applauded for her dedicated work."

Ruth Smith also writes about snow storms keeping national officers of the YW away from scheduled Kingston meetings, of men and women in full formal attire playing a game of basketball for fun and of the many craft classes given.

She concludes: "Times have changed. . . people have changed. . . Here's hoping all goes well with the YW."

Olive Marsh writes: "Credit for my being a charter member goes to my mother. She felt the YW would be a wonderful thing for Kingston and enrolled me.

"My memories of the YW go back to Henry Street and the days of Miss Van Etten, Miss Estey, Lillian Herdman and many others who gave so much to the YW. . . .

"I feel that the YW has given more lasting enjoyment and pleasure to more people than can ever be measured."

Matilda R. Martin, who for years was "Girl Friday" at the YW's front desk, has been a member of the YW for many years because ". . . . I love the Y, its associations and the many friends I made there. . . Here's to the YWCA, the meeting place of many folks who need friendship and companionship.

"Let's keep the 'Y' alive and growing. We can do it if we all help," Miss Martin concludes.

Eva Every, another charter member, writes she started her career as a bookkeeper-secretary in the YMCA. "When the idea was voiced to organize a women's association, I was so enthusiastic, I became a doorbell ringer in behalf of the YW and enjoyed every minute of it. When my husband died, I found a haven in which to drown my loneliness and spent many hours inside the YW helping others," Mrs. Every says.

Gladys Millonig of Kingston remembers when the organizational meeting for the YW was held 50 years ago in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church. "I remember attending it, however, the trolley ride from Rondout was too far and too long to attend regular meetings," she writes. Mrs. Millonig remembers many of the YW activities but particularly those of the Young Married Women's Club which, today, is the Women's Club. She says: "During the past 45 years more than 600 programs were given in the club."

Beatrice Powley, who remembers the YW organizational days when she was a junior in Kingston High School, joined the Senior Girls Club which, today, is the Business and Professional Club of the YWCA.

Beatrice Powley writes: "During the early years of the 'Y' when the annual financial campaign was held with teams going out from business to business and house to house and competing with each other, there was much fun and satisfaction with the monetary results.

"Personally, I believe the 'hey days' of the 'Y' were when we still occupied the Mechanics Building on Henry Street, although I have enjoyed a great deal at the Clinton Avenue building also.

"Throughout the years, the many people with whom I have come in contact and the programs I have attended have been a big help in my life. I truly hope the future fellowship for the women of this community will continue as our Kingston 'Y' begins its second 50 years.' Beatrice Powley concludes.

At the recent anniversary dinner give by the YWCA, Mrs. Arline Gensler, president, gave a welcoming address. Guest soloist for the occasion was John McCullough, President of Community Concerts Association.

ATTEND YULE FESTIVITIES — Members of the Ladies Society of Santa Maria enjoyed their annual dinner recently and invited guests included, at left, Gene Perry, president of St. Mary's Benevolent Society. Also at the head table were (l-r) Joan Komosa, president of the Ladies Society; Julia Tiano, chairman of the dinner; and the Rev. Florencio Toumang of St. Mary's parish in Kingston. (Amato photo)

DEAR ABBY: The advice you gave "Letterless," that poor wife whose husband is away in the service and hardly ever writes to her, was nothing less than cruel. I am old enough to be her mother, and I would have told her to get rid of the bum!

When she begs him to write because she's worried, his response is: "If I die, the service will inform you." Abby, his cruelty is surpassed only by yours. He's not her teenaged son, he's her husband, and the father of her children. She has every right to worry about him, and demand that he write. And you tell her to write him "cheerful, newsy, entertaining letters." Why should she? She's at home being both mother and father to their children, an has far less time to write than he has. Abby, I do believe your compassion and brains are in your rear end!

DISAPPOINTED IN BUFFALO

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Sorry, but I still think I'm right. Your "fight-fire-with-fire" philosophy would be a sure way to consign marriage to a heap of ashes.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for about six months and we live a long way from his parents and mine.

We have a new two-bedroom home, but only one of the bedrooms is furnished. (Ours) My parents want to come to visit us and see our new home. We don't know whether we should give them our bed and rent something for us to sleep on or keep our own bed and rent something for them to sleep on while they are here.

What do the etiquette books say about this?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Who cares what the etiquette books say? Plain, old-fashioned consideration and respect for one's parents can tell you to give them the more comfortable sleeping accommodations.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My ears have been ringing almost continuously for a year. I went to a physician. He looked in my ears, said he couldn't see anything wrong, but maybe I should consult an ear doctor.

Well, I went to an ear specialist. He looked in my ears, and even took X-rays, but he couldn't see anything either.

Abby, I know my ears can't be ringing for nothing. Something must be causing it. I worry all the time over it.

I am tired of having people tell me to fogget it, it's only my imagination. Any suggestions?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: See another doctor. This time, an ear, nose and throat specialist. Worrying about what it COULD BE is sometimes more serious than what it IS.

• • •

Hints From Heloise

SOME CHRISTMAS CARDS ARE POLES APART

Dear Heloise:

Every year I had a hard time finding a place to display the beautiful Christmas cards I received from my friends and relatives. I didn't want to tape them on the walls (or pin them to my drapes) so I came up with this brilliant idea.

I used the cardboard rolls that Christmas wrapping paper comes on. (There are usually plenty of them around the house this time of the year.))

I stick one inside the other (telescope style) to form a pole from the ceiling to the floor, making it fit tight against the ceiling so it won't fall.

Then I wrap my Christmas card pole with some pretty silver or gold wrapping paper.

When cards are received, I tape them to the pole.

Mrs. L. McDavid

Dear Heloise:

If you ever have the problem of small children and a Christmas tree in the same room at the same time, maybe this will help.

Put the tree up for a day or two before you trim it. The children will learn for themselves it's a no-no!

Those sharp needles will teach them fast. Then when the tree is trimmed they will respect it.

Doris Nobles

Dear Heloise:

Postage for Christmas cards has gotten to be a big item in our Christmas budget.

I have always made my own Christmas cards, which saves a lot of money, but that postage now is something else.

This year I bought a bunch of plain postcards from the Post Office. I drew Christmas scenes on the back — holly, bells, Christmas trees, etc. and colored them with felt-tipped pencils. (You can get them in all colors.)

I leave room on the card for a greeting and, in this way, I don't have to cut down on my Christmas card list yet sending the cards doesn't cost a small fortune.

Gramma

Dear Heloise:

For those who have small children who sometimes forget what their daily chores are, or for those members of the family who aren't small children, I've found that a magic writing pad works beautifully.

Kids like to write on them, but how great they are to have by the telephone, hung on the wall or in a convenient familiar place to put notes or messages on.

As a working mother, there are always things to remind the baby-sitter about — and this pad works great. It's easy erased, inexpensive, fun to use and can be brightened up with adhesive-backed paper to match the decor of the kitchen or wherever it is used.

Sue

Dear Heloise:

Many friends have been grateful for this hint.

When you enter a public powder room, and you are wearing a pants suit, just reach down and turn each cuff up, pulling it to the knee.

This will prevent soiling your slacks on the (sometimes dirty or wet) floor.

Mrs. L.P.

Dear Heloise:

Dieters who miss spaghetti most of all, go for this idea of mine.

I make my spaghetti sauce and pour it over lean hamburger.

It may not come up to the real McCoy, but it does satisfy me for the time being.

Val

Dear Heloise:

The curtains in my boy's room were white with a colored border.

I never was really satisfied with them until I got the idea of brightening them up.

I bought a yard of material in a colorful nursery print, cut out the toys and animals, and ironed them onto the curtains with that new mending material that fuses right into the material.

When I want to change the animals, I will simply iron the cutouts again to melt the fusing material and then apply new designs.

It's an inexpensive way to add interest and color to a child's room.

This mending material can be bought at most places where material is sold.

For Christmas It's Turkey . . . or Goose . . . or Cornish Hens

In many parts of the country the big question at Christmas is — will it be a white one? but at least one thing is always certain — the holiday meals are sure to be as delicious as ever. This is a time when nothing is too extravagant and each dinner table is laid with the best in food and settings.

A big roast turkey looks so beautiful on the Christmas dinner table and provides plenty of good eating for a holiday crowd. What makes this a festive choice is a special Orange Rice Stuffing. It's rich tasting and delicious with juicy Florida orange sections, raisins, walnuts and sausage in a brown rice mixture.

Orange sections are perfect ingredients for a perfect stuffing. They add refreshing citrus flavor and their juice give the stuffing a nice, moist texture. Fresh oranges are in good supply now and they can help you turn everyday dishes into Christmas specialties.

Cornish hens are always a holiday favorite. Serve them split, along with wheat pilaf with orange sections and you'll have a very delicious and elegant main course.

In this recipe, the Cornish hens are wrapped with bacon before baking, then sprinkled with herbs and orange juice. All of these seasonings impart a marvelous flavor to the holiday hens as they bake.

If goose is your Christmas dinner choice this year, make it a Citrus Roast Goose. For extra flavor, fill the goose with grapefruit, a quartered apple, onion, celery and garlic. Then while it's baking, baste it with a spicy grapefruit juice mixture.

The result is delicious. The fruits and vegetables impart a subtle and fresh flavor to the goose and the basting mixture enriches the flavor.

By the way, the ingredients placed inside the goose are not meant to be eaten. They simply add flavor.

Turkey With Orange Rice Stuffing

One-half cup uncooked brown rice (two cups cooked)
One-half cup orange juice
One pound bulk pork sausage
Three-fourths cup chopped onion
One teaspoon poultry seasoning
One cup raisins
One cup chopped walnuts
Four oranges, sectioned,* drained (reserve juice)
Salt and pepper
One 12-pound turkey
One cup water

Cook rice according to package directions, substituting orange juice for one-half cup of the water. Break up sausage in large skillet and cook with onion until meat is done and onion is golden but not brown. Add cooked rice, poultry seasoning, raisins, walnuts and orange sections; mix lightly. Sprinkle salt and pepper in cavities of turkey. Stuff turkey with rice mixture. Tie legs together, then to tail. Fasten wings behind back to hold neck skin. Place in roasting pan and rub outside of turkey with orange juice reserved from sections. Cover loosely with foil. Bake in 325 degrees F. oven for two hours; uncover and continue baking one and one-half to two hours or until turkey tests done, basting occasionally with pan drippings. Remove turkey from oven; transfer to heated platter. Add water to drippings; bring to a boil. Thicken, if desired, with two tablespoons flour mixed with one-fourth cup cold water.

YIELD: 8 servings.

*To section oranges, cut off peel round and round, spiral fashion. Go over fruit again, removing any remaining white membrane. Cut along side of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section over bowl to retain juice from fruit.

Holiday Cornish Hens

Three frozen Cornish hens, thawed
Six slices bacon
Three-fourths cup orange juice, divided
One-half teaspoon dried leaf thyme
One-fourth teaspoon dried leaf marjoram
One box (eight ounces) wheat pilaf mix
One-half cup chopped onion
One cup orange sections*

Split Cornish hens in half, lengthwise. Wrap one slice bacon around each half; secure with wooden picks. Place in 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Pour one-half cup orange juice over hens; sprinkle with thyme and marjoram. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven for one hour, basting every 15 minutes. Prepare pilaf mix according to package directions, substituting the remaining one-fourth cup orange juice for part of the water and adding the onion. Place hens under broiler for three minutes, until bacon is crisp. Gently mix orange sections into pilaf and serve with hens.

YIELD: 6 servings.

Citrus Roast Goose

One 10-pound goose
Two Florida grapefruit
One apple, pared and quartered
One onion, quartered
One rib celery, cut in one-inch pices
One clove garlic, split
One cup Florida grapefruit juice, divided.
One tablespoon prepared mustard
One tablespoon soy sauce.

Place whole grapefruit, apple quarters, onion, celery and garlic in cavity of goose.* Rub inside and outside of goose with two tablespoons grapefruit juice. Tie legs together, then to tail. Prick sides of goose with fork. Place on rack in roasting pan. Roast in 400 degrees F. oven for 20 minutes. Combine remaining grapefruit juice, mustard and soy sauce. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees F.; turn goose on its side; baste with grapefruit mixture. Continue basting and turning goose every 30 minutes until tender, approximately three hours and 20 minutes.

YIELD: 8 servings.

*These fruits and vegetables will add flavor to the goose during cooking; they are not to eat.

A ROAST TURKEY with Orange Rice Stuffing is one of the more economical, yet festive, choices for Christmas dinner.

Chanukah Symbols Figure in Holiday Desserts

The happy Chanukah season is drawing near as each home prepares to celebrate the occasion with the traditional foods, games and symbolic customs.

Food, as much as anything, helps create the joyous atmosphere, and every cook is busy baking the holiday favorites, many of which are symbols in themselves.

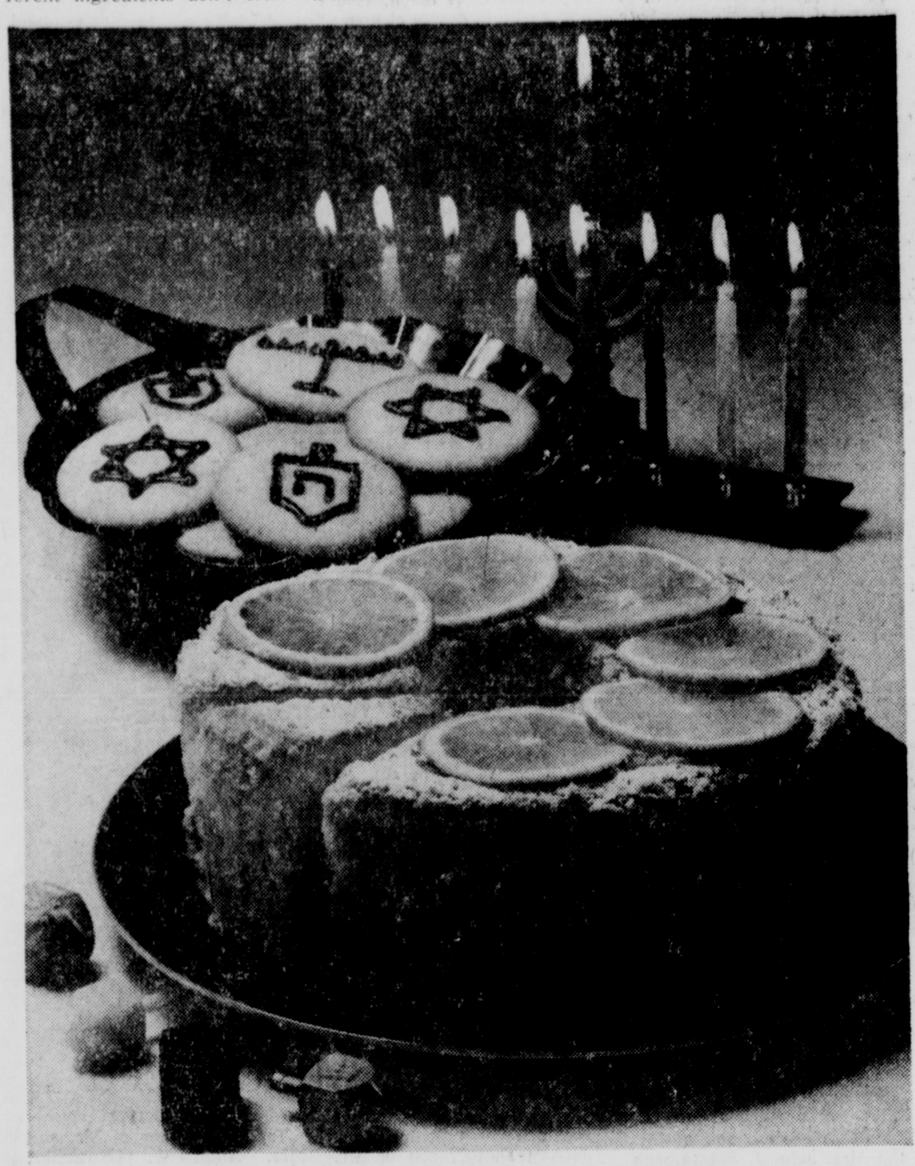

The 44-Ingredient Cake (or Katowes Cake) represents the total number of candles burned in the Menorah during the Chanukah season. Its different ingredients don't total 44, but the measures do. One cup is equal to 16 tablespoons, so if you break the "cup" measurements down to tablespoons, you'll find that the ingredient units in the cake do number 44.

This is a very light cake, with an almost fluffy texture. It's subtly flavored with fresh Florida orange juice to give it a special holiday lift.

Even cookies are baked representing Chanukah symbols; thus we ge the Symbol Cookies. Each is marked with a Star of David, a Menorah, a dreidel or other symbols representing the holiday.

Sometimes the cookies are cut into the symbolic shapes, but they can be baked round, then decorated with the appropriate forms.

Orange Latkes, or pancakes, are a favorite Chanukah dessert or side dish. And even they are symbolic on this holiday. They are fried in hot oil and the oil is said to represent the oil found in the Temple, which then gave birth to this Festival of Lights, as Chanukah is called. There was only enough oil to light the Menorah for one day, but a miracle occurred and the oil lasted for eight days. Then on following years a festival was declared to celebrate this occasion.

44-INGREDIENT CAKE and Symbol Cookies represent Chanukah traditions and provide delicious dessert treats.

44-Ingredient Cake

One cup sifted all-purpose flour
One teaspoon baking powder
Three eggs
One cup sugar
One-half cup Florida orange juice
Confectioners' sugar
Florida orange slices

Sift the flour and baking powder together. In large mixer bowl beat eggs for 10 minutes, until very thick; gradually add sugar, about two to three tablespoons at a time, and continue beating until very light and thick. When beaters are raised, the eggs should form a "ribbon." Quickly, beat in orange juice. Sprinkle flour mixture over beaten eggs; gently fold in. Turn into an ungreased 9 by three and one-half-inch tube pan. Bake in 325 degrees F. oven for 50 minutes, until cake is golden brown and springs back when pressed lightly with finger. Remove from oven and invert to cool before removing from pan. Sprinkle top with confectioners' sugar and garnish with orange slices.

YIELD: 12 servings.

Symbol Cookies

One cup soft butter or margarine
Two cups sugar
Two eggs
Four and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour
Four teaspoons baking powder
One teaspoon salt
One-fourth cup Florida orange juice
One teaspoon vanilla
One teaspoon grated orange rind

Cream butter in large bowl; gradually beat in sugar. Beat in eggs. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt; blend in alternately with the orange juice. Stir in vanilla and orange rind. Chill thoroughly. Roll out small portions of dough one-eighth inch thick on lightly floured board; cut out circles with three-inch round cookie cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 375 degreess F. oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Cool and decorate with Chocolate Frosting.*

YIELD: About five dozen cookies.

*Chocolate Frosting:

One square (one ounce) unsweetened chocolate
One teaspoon butter or margarine
One cup sifted confectioners' sugar
One to two tablespoons Florida orange juice.

Melt chocola e and butter in top of double boiler over simmering water. Remove from heat; beat in confectioners' sugar and stir in enough orange juice to make frosting soft enough to go through decorating tube but stiff enough to hold its shape. Turn into decorating tube and decorate cookies with dreidels, menorahs and star of David.

Orange Latkes

Two eggs, separated
One-fourth cup Florida orange juice
Two tablespoons sugar
One teaspoon salt
Two cups creamed cottage cheese
Three-fourths cup unsifted all-purpose flour
Salad oil
One tablespoon grated orange rind
One cup sour cream
Six Florida oranges, sectioned*

In large mixer bowl combine egg yolks, orange juice, sugar and salt. Stir in cottage cheese; add flour and mix until blended. In small bowl beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold into cottage cheese mixture. In large skillet heat one-fourth inch of oil. To fry latkes, drop tablespoons of mixture into hot oil; fry until golden brown, turning once. Drain on paper towels and continue until all mixture is used. Mix orange rind with sour cream. Serve latkes topped with orange sections and sour cream.

YIELD: six servings.

*To section Floriad oranges, cut off peel round and round, spiral fashion. Go over fruit again, removing any remaining white membrane. Cut along side of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section over bowl to retain juice from fruit.

HOLIDAY TREATS

Budget Entree — Entertaining on a budget this year? Well if you are . . . this is one place where ingenuity counts, says Louise K. Breitung, Extension Home Economist. Any number of economy dishes can also be glamorous. Try this easy pot roast. The flavor combination of the ingredients is designed specifically to please. Just brown a 3 to 4-pound pot roast on all sides in a heavy skillet. Use a little shortening if necessary; then pour off the fat. Stir in one can (10-one-half ounces) condensed onion soup. Cover and cook over low heat two and one-half to three hours. For a delicious gravy, remove meat and gradually blend one-fourth cup water and two to four tablespoons flour. Slowly stir into soup. Cook, stirring until thickened. This makes six to eight servings. For that special festive touch, surround the roast with curly endive and garnish with crab apples. Easy on the budget . . but big on taste appeal.

Short-Order Lunch — The days between Thanksgiving and New Years usually present an array of activities, planning, shopping, entertaining and being entertained.

Family meals have to take on a short-order style, and this is easily achieved if your freezer is stocked with deep dish chicken pies. . . they're filled with tender pieces of chicken, flavorful garden vegetables and a creamy golden gravy, or perhaps you might like the beef pie which contains selected cuts of beef, garden vegetables and a savory brown gravy. All are topped with a flaky crust. What's more, they're convenient and easy to prepare.

Just follow package directions for heating and serving. Accompany each with a tempting appetizer, a gelatin vegetable salad and a scrumptious frozen dessert . . . remember the salad and dessert can be prepared in advance.

Superb Holiday Dip — Plan ahead. . . an excellent motto for party giving. . . in fact it could mean the difference between a gala affair or a dull one. . . and if you are providing a welcome note for that special once-a-year group, tune in on this superb New Englander's special . . . extra tasty and extra easy to prepare. . . in fact it's even better when prepared in advance.

With a mixer or beater gradually blend one can (10 and three-fourths ounces) condensed New England clam chowder, one-fourth cup chili sauce and two tablespoons finely chopped onion into one package (eight ounces) softened cream cheese, then chill. This recipe makes about two and one-half cups. Excellent flavor combination and a perfect companion for assorted crackers.

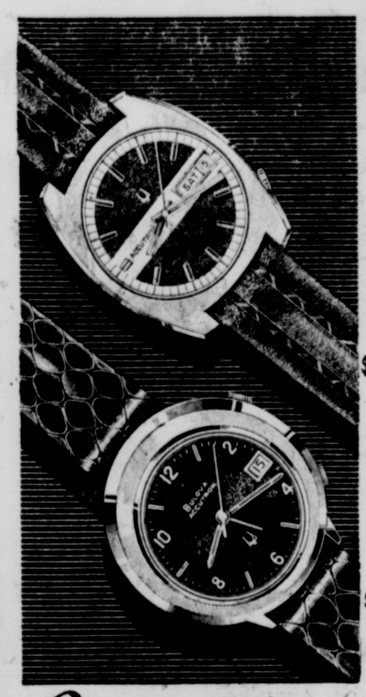

Cranberry Relish

Two cups cranberries
Three-fourths cup sugar
One medium orange
One-fourth cup water

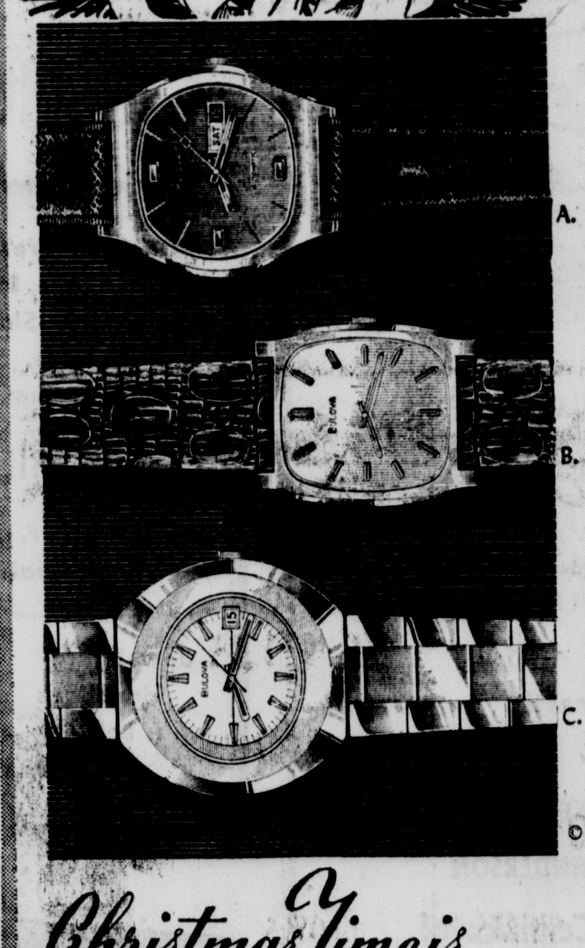

Cut orange into small pieces leaving the peel on the orange. Combine cranberries, orange pieces, sugar and water in your blender. Stop blender several times in order to push mixture to bottom of the container. Blend only a few seconds each time.

Finley Files Suit

Cronin Hears Both Sides

BOSTON (UPI) — Action was expected to pick up today in the American League hearings on broken managerial contracts as Dick Williams and his past-present boss, Charles O. Finley, were called before President Joe Cronin.

Williams, like Ralph Houk who testified at league hearings Tuesday, bailed out of a major league contract to sign with another club while two years still remained on the original pact.

Cronin, acting as judge in accordance with the American League constitution, must decide what compensation—if any—Finley deserves for letting Williams abandon his Oakland contract and what recompense Yankees President Gabe Paul will receive for allowing Houk to sign with the Detroit Tigers.

No decision was expected today.

The hearings apparently went quietly Tuesday, with all parties smiling at meet-the-press time. But no grins were expected today after Finley, who filed suit to restrain Williams from managing anywhere but Oakland in the next two years, and Williams testify before Cronin.

Finley said after filing the suit Tuesday he would drop the action if the Yankees gave adequate compensation for signing Williams.

Finley said Williams "can go with our blessing if we're properly compensated. If we get proper compensation, we'll withdraw the suit. If not, the suit stands."

The Oakland owner said he turned down the original Yankee offer of infielder-outfielder Horace Clarke and a later offer of $150,000 spread over three years and "a couple of minor league players who didn't know the back from the front of a jockstrap."

Williams declined comment on Finley's suit but said upon his arrival for the hearings he was "optimistic I will manage the Yankees next year. I already signed a contract."

Cronin, who retires Jan. 1, said he will rule on the Williams and Houk jumps "as soon as possible" but added that no decision would be reached immediately.

"First I have to hear all the evidence from all sides, then I have to weigh it. As an old shortstop with just a curbstone knowledge of the law, I have a formal study," said Cronin, who will be replaced by present Yankee General Manager Lee MacPhail.

Both Williams and Houk have said they received verbal agreement from their owners to sign with other clubs.

When the Tigers signed Houk, they believed there would be no repurcussions but then Finley refused to allow the Yankees to talk to Williams the Yankees then said Detroit never asked permission to talk to Houk and also sought compensation.

Houk testified at Tuesday's four-hour meeting along with Paul, MacPhail and Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell and his assistant Rick Ferrell. Both sides were accompanied by counsel. Finley and Williams were to speak today along with Paul, who was to explain the Yankee side of the major league soap opera.

Finley's contentions, as spelled out in the suit filed in U.S. District Court in San Francisco, are many. His petition states Williams' service as a manager are "special, unique, unusual, extraordinary and of unusual character" and that the loss of the manager would result in "irreparable injury and damage to the club."

The suit also noted that by winning two straight World Series with Oakland, Williams has become extremely popular and "a great factor in attendance, gate receipts, success of the Athletics on the playing field and the financial success of the Athletics."

Finley said additionally he had spent great sums of money to enhance Williams' popularity and to shape "the playing personnel of the Athletics to suit the style of play followed by Williams."

And, Finley said, Oakland "employed four coaches who are personal friends of Williams and whose skills and value are uniquely dependent on their ability to work with Williams."

THE PRIZES — Ralph Houk (R) relaxes after meeting with American League President Joe Cronin Tuesday in an effort to untangle controversial managerial situation on his going to Detroit and Dick Williams (L) leaving Oakland for the Yankees. A's owner Charlie Finley went to court Tuesday to force Williams to manage his club for the next two seasons. (UPI)

Hadl, Gabe Selected

NEW YORK (AP) — John Hadl, whose restrained passing brought Los Angeles into the playoffs, and Roman Gabriel, whose aerial bombardments made Philadelphia one of the National Football League's most explosive teams, have been voted to quarterback the National Conference in the annual Pro Bowl Game.

Five rookies also were named to the 40-man NFC squad, announced today. They were tight end Chandley Young of Philadephia, running backs Lawrence McCutcheon of the Rams and Chuck Foreman of Minnesota, punter Tom Wittum of San Francisco and place-kicker Nick Mike-Mayer of Atlanta.

The Jan. 20 game at Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium will be nationally televised by NBC, starting at 2 p.m., EST. The American Conference, which won last year's game 33-28at Dallas, leads the series 2-1.

The only unanimous choice in this year's voting by the NFC's 13 head coaches, who were not allowed to vote for their own men, was Dave Wilcox, San Francisco's outside linebacker.

Those making the NFC squad who did not make it last year were Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia, tackle George Kunz and defensive end John Zook of Atlanta, guard Gale Gillingham and cornerback Ken Ellis of Green Bay, center Ed Flanagan of Detroit, defensive end Carl Eller and linebacker Jeff Siemon of Minnesota, linebackers Isiah Robertson of Los Angeles and Lee Roy Jordan of Dallas and strong safety Ken Houston and kick-return specialist Herb Mul-Key of Washington.

All three of the NFC's 1,000-yard gainers — Green Bay's John Brockington (1,144), Dallas' Calvin Hill (1,142) and McCutcheon (1,097) — were selected.

Among the repeaters on the NFC All-Star team are defensive tackle Merlin Olsen of the Rams, who has made it in all of his 12 seasons, and Cowboys' time choice in nine years.

Central Division champion Minnesota placed seven players on the team, the most of any NFC club. Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis and the New York Giants were not represented this year.

The AFC team will be announced Thursday.

WFL Chicago '11' Making Plans

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tom Origer's Chicago entry into the fledgling World Football League already has signed "about 40" players, including some who once were regulars on National Football League teams.

Origer, announcing today that his team would be called The Chicago Fire and would play in Soldier Field, said that "contracts are out" for other players to sign with his club.

He also revealed that Joe Spavitol, a former Oklahoma State running back who has been coaching for 20 years, would coach the team. Spavitol said he was fired from his last job with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian Football League, after finishing last this year.

Origer, a millionaire from his construction business, said arrangements had been made for a lease of "two or three years" in Soldier Field to play 10 games a year of the 20-game WFL season, which he said would begin in July and end in November.

The Chicago Bears also play in Soldier Field, but Origer said he could see no conflict, since his team would play on week nights and the Bears on Sunday.

"I don't think we'll be afraid to play anybody," he said. "We'd like to play the Bears."

Origer said his team would concentrate on obtaining talent from midwest universities and that he did not plan to "raid" NFL franchises. However, he added that to sign players who had played out their option in the NFL would not be raiding.

Hagler Streaks

BOSTON (AP) — Marvin Hagler, New England middleweight champion, extended his streak to 10 straight victories with a three-round knockout over Panama Jimmy Redford of Panama City, Panama, Tuesday night.

New England junior welterweight champion Tony Petronelli of Bridgewater, Mass., won a unanimous 10-round decision over Irish Pat Murphy of West New York, N.J.

LOW TO THE GROUND — Austria's Karl Cordin crouches low as he negotiates a bump en route to victory in World Cup downhill race at Zell Am See, Austria Tuesday. Cordin, 25, won the event in the time of 1:43.47. (UPI)

McKenzie Was In Right Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Life is full of little ironies when you're 24 and playing in your first National Hockey League game.

Tuesday morning, Bill McKenzie was an American Hockey League goalie and he was missing his 11 o'clock jumbo jet plane.

But Tuesday night, Bill McKenzie was in the NHL, not missing a little three inch puck and saving the Detroit Red Wings' 4-4 tie with the Los Angeles Kings.

Elsewhere in the NHL, the New York Islanders and Vancouver Canucks skated to a 2-2 tie and the Montreal Canadiens whipped the California Golden Seals 4-1.

In the World Hockey Association, the Chicago Cougars and Winnipeg Jets finished in a 3-3 tie; the Quebec Nordiques beat the Edmonton Oilers 4-2; the Toronto Toros downed the Jersey Knights 4-1 and the Vancouver Blazers tripped the Los Angeles Sharks 5-2.

Though McKenzie had trouble catching his plane to Detroit, he was in the right place an right on time late in the third period. Mike Murphy had a breakway and a chance to uneven a 4-4 tie and pull out the Kings' first victory in Detroit in six years.

But he was grounded by McKenzie.

"All I thought about was to keep my legs together, cut the angle down and stay with him all the way," McKenzie said. "He didn't try to fake me, just gave me one shoulder and a shot. The puck hit me. I fell on it and everything turned out all right. I felt tremendous — like I was home."

Maybe he is now.

Canadiens 4, Seals 1

Montreal goalie Michel Larocque assisted on a first-period goal by Frank Mahovlich and stopped 30 of California's 31 shots in helping the Canadiens beat the Seals.

Canucks 2, Islanders 2, tie

Don Lever's eighth goal of the season at 13:32 of the first period lifted the Vancouver Canucks into a tie with the New York Islanders.

Nordiques 4, Oilers 2

The Quebec Nordiques beat the Edmonton Oilers which wasn't the only beating going on in Quebec.

Both players' benches emptied after Edmonton's Doug Barrie and Jean Guy Gendron collided. Barrie took a swing at the Quebec player with his stick, prompting Serge Bernier of the Nordiques to join the fracas. Jim Harrison of the Oilers entered the altercation and that brought both benches spilling onto the ice.

Freitas' Formula

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Quarterback Jesse Freitas of San Diego State believes that in an all-star game like the Blue-Gray football classic, the best offense is to keep throwing the ball.

That's what he did Tuesday night, completing 14-of-23 passes for 168 yards and one touchdown as the Blues downed the Grays 20-14. For his efforts, Freitas was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

"In this kind of a game, you don't have as complicated an offense but they don't have as much time to prepare their defense," said Freitas, who led the nation in total offense last season. "In this kind of game, it's much easier to pass than run."

Freitas, who completed 8-of-9 passes in the first quarter, led the Blues on a 32-yard opening drive in six plays, capped by a three-yard scoring run by Pete Taggares of Washington.

Early in the second quarter the Blues battled deep into Gray territory only to stall on the 13-yard line. John Phillips of Xavier (Ohio) kicked a 29-yard field goal. He also kicked a 33-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to put the game away for the Blues.

Freitas capped a 38-yard scoring drive in the third quarter when he threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Gerald Tinker of Kent State, an Olympic gold medal sprinter.

The Grays did all their scoring in the second quarter, with the first touchdown coming on a three-yard run by Barty Smith of Richmond, ending a 78-yard drive.

Then quarterback Carl Summerell of East Carolina, who completed 15-of-21 passes for 146 yards, threw a nine-yard scoring pass to Charles Dancer of Baylor with 38 seconds left in the half.

The win was the first for the Blues in five years but the series stands at 20-14-1 in favor of the South.

The Grays drove to the Blue 10-yard line late in the first quarter but Chuck Ramsey's 27-yard field goal attempt was wide.

In the third quarter, Doug Nettles of Vanderbilt picked off a Freitas pass at the Gray 31 and returned it 21 yards to the Blue 48. But Grays were unable to move the ball.

Best Liked, Most Trusted in Sports

Musial Tops Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stan Musial is the best-liked and most trusted sports personality in the United States, according to a ranking released today by Alan R. Nelson Research Inc. of New York City.

The former St. Louis Cardinal star, a seven-time National League batting champion, ranked first in both categories of a four category rating list compiled by the company. O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills ranked first in a category called respect for a person's ability while Willie Mays, recently retired New York Met outfielder, was first among sports personalities who are best known.

Besides Musial, others who scored in the top 10 in talent, likability and trust were Yogi Berra, manager of the New York Mets; Sandy Koufax, former Los Angeles Dodger pitcher, and John Havlicek, star forward of the Boston Celtics.

The Nelson company said the findings were based on a "major in-depth investigation, conducted this fall among a nationally representative sample of 2500 male household heads and young singles."

The 1-2-3 rankings in the four categories were Musial, Mickey Mantle and Berra in trust; Musial, Johnny Bench and Mays in likability; Simpson, Havlicek and Musial in admiration for talent and Mays, Joe Namath and Muhammad Ali in answer to the question of how well athletes are known.

Namath, the Jets' star quarterback, headed a small group of sports figures who are very well known but were rated poorly in all three other categories.

Namath was second in the well-known column but ranked 124 in respect, 193 in likability and 156 in trust. Ali, the former heavyweight champion, was third best-known but was 189 in respect, 192 in likability and 190 in trust. Broadcaster Howard Cosell ranked sixth in best-known but was 186 in respect, 176 in likability and 131 in trust.

Secretariat... Of Course

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat, who captured the hearts of millions while winning the first Triple Crown in 25 years, once again easily outdistanced all opposition Wednesday, winning "Horse of the Year" honors.

The Meadow Stable 3-year-old was a unanimous choice for the Eclipse Award in balloting sponsored by the Thoroughbred Racing Association, the Daily Racing Form and the National Turf Writers' Association.

Secretariat also was unanimous choice as champion 3-year-old colt and champion turf horse, giving him a total of five Eclipse awards. He won 1972 honors as horse of the year and champion 2-year-old colt.

It was Secretariat's victories in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont that made him the most celebrated horse of the year, but it was his impressive victories in the Man o'War Stakes at Belmont and in the Canadian International Championship that earned him the turf title.

Onteora's Big Comeback Falls Short, 60-58

A Ray of Hope for Ron Pape's Team

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON

Ron Pape was hit with a technical foul during the junior varisty basketball game at Coleman High School Tuesday night. Ron Pape is varsity coach at Ontoera High School. You could tell what kind of an evening it was going to be for Ron Pape.

By the time they were ready to turn the lights off in the Coleman gym, Ron Pape had seen his team fall behind 11-0, then 15-1. He had lost two arguments concerning the official scorebook, one wiping out a Coleman technical, the other resulting in one of his own players fouling out. And he had seen his OCS five cut a big Coleman lead down to eight points in the third quarter only to drop right back to 17 behind just a few minutes later.

But when visitors called upon Ron Pape in the Onteora dressing room following Tuesday night's game, Ron Pape wasn't ready to kick in the walls. Ron Pape wasn't yelling and screaming at his club, nor was Ron Pape uttering profanities about the officiating.

Ron Pape's team, you see, lost its game to Coleman by only two measly old points. The score was 60-58 and one of Ron Pape's kids, 6-4 Tim Malloy put 36 points through the hoop. And since Ron Pape's team was down by 15 points going into the last period you might unerstand why his night at Coleman High School was far from a total loss.

"I saw some things out there tonight," the Onteora coach said. "I think we're ready to play ball now."

In case you weren't aware, Ron Pape's team is in Division II of the Ulster County Athletic League. Some wags might call it the losers' division and maybe it is, but Onteora, with its 0-3 record, is still very much in the pennant picture because the rest of the division (except for Red Hook) isn't exactly setting the world on fire either.

That's why Ron Pape isn't down in the dumps. Indeed he's seeing the light at the end of the tunnel today because his team wouldn't give up.

"Malloy was fantastic," he said of his high scoring forward. But 36 points'? "He shot the way he's capable of shooting. He's got good jumping and shooting ability. And I thought Bobby Woerthman did a fine job bringing the ball up in the second half. I've had to bring him along slowly because of a pulled muscle, but he did real well."

The play of Malloy and Woerthman turned out to be the story not only of this game, but of Onteora's season to date. The Indians are big, you only have to look out on the floor to see that. What they have lacked is ballhandling. That's why a Ray Younger of Ellenville was able to attack the point and kill them. That's why Coleman's press was so very effective in the first half Tuesday.

Only the shooting of Malloy kept Onteora reasonably in the game against Coleman. While Statesmen John Carr, and Kevin Coughlin were hitting on the Indians zone defense. Coleman's hustling press denied Onteora from getting across the ten-second line more than just a few times. Malloy had 16 at the half and his team was behind, 38-24.

The tide began to turn in the third period. The Indians scored 10 of the first 14 points to cut the margin down to eight, 42-34. It looked like Onteora was building up the kind of momentum it needed to pull the rug out from under Coleman. But a backdoor basket by Mike Jordan followed by two layups of steals on the press, a free throw, and still another steal-layup, and the Statesmen had built the margin back up to 17 points, 51-34.

Three late baskets by Malloy enabled Onteora to drop no further, so the Indians were trailing 55-40 going into the final session. Who would have guessed that OCS was going to make a game of it by cutting the margin down to eight win 2:43?

By the time Malloy had hit on a short jumper with 1:45 left the count was 58-56 Coleman and Onteora, with Woerthman at the point, really did look like it was going to win. Ah, but it wasn't to be. Not that the Indians didn't have their chances, but cruel fate wasn't going to allow Ron Pape to win his first varsity game ever in the Coleman gym.

Phil Timbrouck, who came in late for Coleman and delivered a strong fourth quarter, finally iced the victory with 38 seconds left by hitting a pair of fouls after Onteora had missed three or four shots which could have tied the game. Malloy added OCS' final pair at the buzzer to make it oh so tantalizingly close.

"The kid who beat us was Timbrouck," the losing coach observed. "He came in there for them and did a good job. We had our chances" he sighed, "but how can you find fault with kids who brought you back from 17 points down?"

Ron Pape's night didn't end with a victory. It did end with a comeback full of promise, and sometimes that's what makes high school coaching worthwhile.

REBOUNDS — Coughlin led Coleman with 13, Timbrouck had 11, and Carr added 10.

"They seemd to lose their poise," said Coleman coach Bill DuBois, who may have added a couple of streaks of gray with this nail-biting game. "I think part of it may have been that the press tired them out for the second half.". . . Coleman is now 2-1. It visits Wallkill Friday. Onteora is at Pine Bush. . . Coleman won the JV game, 52-36, as Pete Gallagher scored 12 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Tony Albany notched 12 points. Rick Meiers 10, and Jimmy Sottile took 18 rebounds. Joe Seymore led Onteora with nine.

Kelly (46) Standing Tall

KYSERIKE

It all came together for Kevin Kelly Tuesday night.

Kelly, the 6-6 senior center for Red Hook High School's basketball team, has showed flashes of brilliance on and off for two seasons but for one reason or another he had not been able to come up with the solid end-to-end type game most people thought he could turn in night afternight. Until this season.

The Red Hook big man had been tough in his team's first two games, both wins. Tuesday night he was outstanding as the Raiders beat previously undefeated Rondout Valley, 81-74. All Kelly did was score 46 points, one of the highest point totals in UCAL history, pull down 24 rebounds, and blocked six shots easily dominating what had been billed as a showdown between he and Rondout's Joe McCall, the league's other top center.

In other games Tuesday, Pine Bush ripped New Paltz, 92-70; Highland was beaten by Fallsburgh, 106-64; Liberty slammed Wallkill, 82-38; and Marlboro at Ellenville was postponed due to road conditions until February 5.

"Kelly was in the ozone," exclaimed Red Hook Coach Rod Chando, trying to describe the superlative performance of his star center. "It was supposed to be a big one-on-one battle, but Kevin just owned their kid."

Rondout's McCall did manage 14 points for the game, but the Gander center was in foul trouble much of the night as were teammates Cory Schoonmaker, Rolf Koola, and Dave Schmeltz. "He (Kelly) helped put them there," Chando said.

Obviously Kelly was the difference in the close game which saw Red Hook take a 17-13 first quarter lead, then go off the floor trailing by one, 39-38 at the half.

It was in the third period that Red Hook took control as several of the Gander starters were forced to sit it out in foul trouble. The Raiders outscored Rondout, 22-13, in the third session and that was where Red Hook got the lead it never relinquished.

As for Kelly, his night was best exemplified by one trip up court when McCall stuffed one of his shots and the partisan Gander crowd gave him the old Bronx cheer. In the past that might have uspet the emotional center, but not anymore. Moments later Kelly blocked a McCall shot and swiped the ball right into the bleachers. That put an end to the jeering.

It was Red Hook's third win in as many tries. The Raiders are the only team in Division II with a victory. They host unbeaten Fallsburgh Thursday night in by far their toughest test to date. Rondout is 2-1.

Pine Bush jumped on New Paltz for a 24-9 first quarter advantage, then played just well enough to pin the Hugies with their second loss.

"We had a good pressing defense in the first quarter," said Pine Bush coach George Druttman. "New Paltz got the lead down to about 10 in the third quarter, but we were able to get it up to 20 again."

Bill Drexel led the Bushmen with 22 points. Lorenzo Simmons had 20 for New Paltz.

Reggie Biddings, Rad Yaun, and Mario Berry scored 16 points apiece for Liberty as it defeated winless Wallkill. It was no contest from the beginning as the Indians outscored Wallkill, 19-2, in the first quarter and coasted home. Mike McAfee scored 14 in defeat.

Al Smith's 21 points paced Fallsburgh as it went on the century mark for the second time this season. Sam Copeland added 14, Churck Hinton had 16, and Terry Patton canned 13. Rich Brooks agains was Highland's top shooter with 23 points.

Maroon Swimmers Win

HUDSON

The mighty Maroon varisty swim team easily defeated Hudson High School in a dual meet here Tuesday as Kingston High took first place in all individual events and won both relays to post a 117-54 victory.

Coach Ron Gabriele's team sports a 3-0 record for the season. The Maroons have won 31 consecutive regualr season meets since Warwick High defeated them in February, 1971.

Mike Helmich set a new diving record with 172.80 points, breaking the old mark of 153.85 set by Brian Williams (now of Oneonta State).

Other top performers for Kingston were Bob Winrow, Paul Hansen, Mark Davis and Jay Rifenbary.

Winrow seam in both relays and also captured the 200 yard individual medley. Hansen enjoyed success in the freestyle events, winning the 200 and 500 yard competitions.

Team captain Davis won both the 50 yard freestyle and the 100 yard breastroke, while Reifenbary took the 100 yard freestyle and had a hand in bbth relay victories.

Gabriele's swimmers will travel to Poughkeepsie High Thursday for the final meet before Christmas vacation.

Cedeno Will Stay in Jail

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (AP) — Baseball star Cesar Cedeno, charged with voluntary homicide in the death of a 19-year-old woman, apparently will remain in jail at least until Jan. 8.

District Atty. Maximo Henriquez Saladin indicated Tuesday that the star center fielder of the Houston Astros will stay in jail while the courts go on vacation from Dec. 20-Jan. 8.

Cedeno was being kept in preventive custody in Santo Domingo's most modern jail. He has a room of his own and two baseball players who visited him last weekend said he was dancing to music in his room, which they described as "not a common cell."

Cedeno is charged in the shooting death of Altagracia de la Cruz, who died of a head wound in a hotel room Dec. 11. His American wife, Cora, has not been seen since last Thursday, when she went to the court where Cedeno was questioned by Judge Socrates Diaz Curiel, who is in charge of the investigation.

KHS Finds Cure for Rienzo's Sleepless Nights

By STEVE KANE

POUGHKEEPSIE — Loaded guns couldn't have made John Dawson, Kim Anderson and Cory Chambers seem any more intimidating than they were against Lourdes High School here Tuesday night.

The big three Kingston linemen dominated the backboards and made a shambles of the Warrior offense as the Maroons evened up their DCSL record with a 71-41 victory.

And that wasn't all. Ray Gay, playing like his old self, threw in 33 points and sparked a vicious Kingston fast break.

"I stayed awake three hours last Friday night," said KHS coach Mike Rienzo. "I kept seeing us coming down the floor against Ketcham and just standing there."

But this game cured Rienzo's insomnia. The Maroons ran all night playing defense, and in the third period they unleased an offense that took a 17-point lead up to 30.

Dawson turned in an incredible performance considering the competition he got from teammates. He ripped off 20 rebounds to help the Maroons to a 76-25 advanatge in that department, scored ten points and blocked five shots. Anderson had 19 rebounds and batted away three shots. Chambers collected 15 rebounds and blocked four shots.

Lourdes was simply helpless against all that pressure. Tim Keating, who started off the season with 31 points against Arlington, only managed four field goals among his team high 13 markers. No other Warrior got in double figures. That was mainly because they couldn't find an uncontested shot and had to settle for launching a bomb with a "God Save the Queen."

Kingston stepped out to a 21-12 first period lead, a margin largely accounted for by Gay. Shooting accurately from the outside, Gay was responsible for 13 of those points and twice set up his teammates with assists.

"That's the Raymond I remember," said a pleased Rienzo afterwards. "We need him to make us move."

That was evident when Gay began the second period on the bench. Kingston went four minutes without a score until Raymond reappeared, then the speedy guard came on to drill a 20-footer, feed Art Shelightner with an assist, and can a one-and-one. All within a minute. Gay ended the contest with six assists, five rebounds and a blocked shot as well as his 33 points.

Weight height that likes to hustle, the Maroons have all the ingredients for a good running team. That four minute stretch in the third period during which the Maroons just ran Lourdes ragged may be the key to Kingston's offensive problems. Gay throws some dazzling passes, and with a big man there for a tap-in, it's a difficult thing to stop.

Rienzo knows he can run and used his bench liberally to prove it. Getting the win, though, was the big thing. "If we'd lost tonight. . ." He didn't finish. But the Maroons didn't lose and can enjoy the holiday recess with peace of mind. Beacon and Poughkeepsie still loom ahead, but the Bulldogs have already dropped one, and as Rienzo said, "We always have good luck against Poughkeepsie."

In the prelimianry game, Kingston's jayvees shook off the junior Warriors and coasted to a 68-39 win to raise their record to 2-0.

Sawyers Stop John Jay

By DON TREAT

WICCOPEE — "Ya gotta believe" was the Mets' cry this summer and Saugerties High's basketball team is trying to follow the same philosophy in the DCSL.

It worked for the Sawyers here Tuesday night, as they blew by John Jay in the final quarter to win, 68-63.

Trailing throughout the first half and behind by as many as seven points in the third period, Saugerties never gave an inch in its bid to get in the victory column before the New Year.

Scott Wilson was the big man for the victors. He scored 23 points and hauled down 16 rebounds.

More importantly, however, Wilson took charge on the floor as nobody else has since Rich Koegel graduated two seasons ago.

"This was just what we needed," remarked winning coach Larry Marcus. "I'm happy for these guys because they wanted this one badly."

His men proved just how much they wanted it after the Patriots had built up a 52-45 lead late in the third stanza. The Sawyers rattled off nine straight points to go out in front for the first time since they led 2-1.

It's far too early to label the Sawyers as a strong second half club, but their second half against Poughkeepsie was also impressive. Last year's team had a tendency to come unglued after intermission.

Marcus often hesitated to go to his bench in tough situations before this season and that resulted in some pretty ragged play from his worn out starters. The bench played a vital role against John Jay.

"(Scott) Hunter, (Chuck) Rosenberger and (Arnie) Hackett all contributed," said Marcus of his reserves.

Hunter ignited the fourth quarter rally with two buckets and later added three foul shots to stretch the lead to 64-58. He also gave Wilson a big boost under the boards when the game got physical.

With Rosenberger and Hackett combining for six points in the late going, the Sawyer bench accounted for 13 of their final 23 points.

Chris Luley with 14 points, was the only Saugerties player besides Wilson to reach double figures.

"Luley still isn't shooting the way he can," asserted Marcus. "Some night he'll really explode out there."

The Patriots were glad to see all the Sawyers not shooting up to expectations, since they were having offensive problems themselves.

John Jay got some scoring from its little men, but the big guys didn't do much. Ed Bruzgil was high man with 16, followed by Tim Doyle and Mark Carter, who had 12 and 11, respectively.

Although the Jay big men controlled the offensive boards, they didn't inflict the damage that a Beacon or Poughkeepsie would.

"We're going to have to work on that weak defensive rebounding," assured Marcus. He also expressed considerable displeasure with the zone defense Saugerties tried most of the way.

The long layoff until January for the Sawyers can be looked at in two ways. It will give them time to work out problems, but it also could extinguish part of the fire that consumed John Jay.

Both Jay and Saugerties are 1-1 in the DCSL. Ironically, the Sawyers won their only game of last season at John Jay.

Saugerties showed that it has the potential to make some waves in the league before its over. The key will be how quickly the team matures and can utilize the raw talent it possesses.

The Patriots are apparently headed nowhere this year, but a convincing 85-58 victory in the JV game gives them some future hope.

Hawks Back On Win Track

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlanta Hawks snapped a five-game National Basketball Association losing streak Tuesday night by defeating the Capital Bullets 98-91.

Walt Bellamy held the Bullets' Elvin Hayes to 12 points, nine below his average, and Pete Maravich scored 34 points as the Hawks climbed to within two games of the first-place Bullets in the NBA's Central Division.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Milwaukee Bucks 109-107, the Boston Celtics trimmed the Golden State Warriors 125-106, the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the Chicago Bulls 93-92, the Portland Trail Blazers trounced the Phoenix Suns 133-117 and the Buffalo Braves downed the Cleveland Cavaliers 100-93.

No games were scheduled in the American Basketball Association.

The Bullets, playing their second game in the new $16 million Capital Center in Largo, Md., made a spirited rally. They trailed 84-68 after three quarters but trimmed the deficit to 90-89 with three minutes left. But Hayes fouled out at that point and the Bullets' defense collapsed.

Kevin Porter came off the bench to lead Capital with 23 points. Lou Hudson helped Maravich with 28 for the Hawks.

Lakers 109, Bucks 107

Jimmy Price, playing for the ailing Jerry West, made a 25-foot jump shot at the buzzer to give Los Angeles its victory. Price finished with 16 points. Teammate Gail Goodrich led all scorers with 40. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar topped Milwaukee with 37.

Celtics 125, Warriors 106

Jo Jo White hit six quick points in the closing minutes of the second quarter to start Boston on the way to victory.

The defeat, third in a row for the Warriors, cut their lead over Los Angeles to 12 percentage points in the Pacific Division.

Sonics 93, Bulls 92

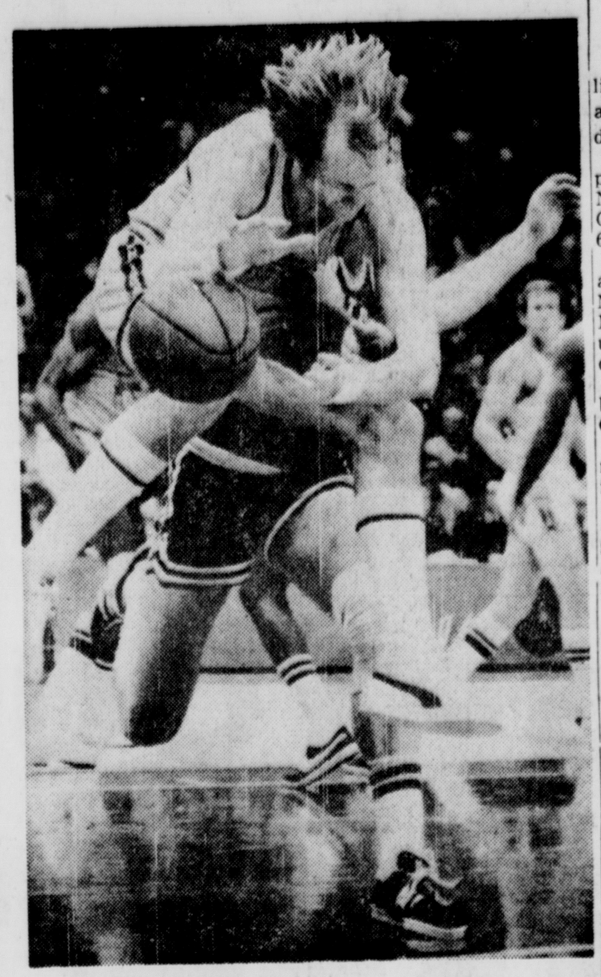

Kennedy McIntosh's got the winning basket on a jump shot with two seconds left after the Sonics all but blew the game in the final quarter after leading by as many as 16 points.

Trail Blazers 133, Suns 117

Geoff Petrie scored 37 points and John Johnson 28 as Portland pulled away in the final period and beat Phoenix in Portland for the first time in 10 tries.

Braves 100, Cavaliers 93

Jim McMillian and Garfield Heard led a fourth-quarter surge that enabled Buffalo to beat Cleveland for the fourth time in as many meetings this season.

INTERCEPTION: Warriors' Rick Barry jumped in front of Celtics' Dave Cowens to take a rebound in the first quarter, but Cowens (dark suit) got a hand on it forcing Barry to lose the ball. Celtics came on the second quarter to take lead and win going away, 125-106. (UPI)

Wolfpack on the Rebound

Georgia caught North Carolina State on the rebound . . . and it was too bad for the Bulldogs.

Still feeling pain from an 18-point loss to top-ranked UCLA, North Carolina State made Georgia suffer for it with a 94-60 beating Tuesday night.

"I was very disappointed after the UCLA game," said North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan, talking about Saturday's 84-66 loss in the battle of college basketball giants.

But he evidentally felt a little better after marching through Georgia.

"We showed alertness, quickness and played better defense," said Sloan.

One of the reasons for those qualities was forward Phil Spence, who played 29 minutes and finished with 15 rebounds and 11 points.

In other games Tuesday night, sixth-ranked Marquette turned back Northwestern 77-63; No. 8 Louisville stopped Clemson 74-70 and Florida State upset No. 12 Memphis State 88-80.

David Thompson, held to 17 points by UCLA, exploded for 28 against Georgia. The Wolfpack ran off a quick early lead and kept hounding the Bulldogs with a full-court press that forced 32 turnovers.

Leading 43-27 at the half, North Carolina State ripped off a 26-9 advantage right after intermission and put the Bulldogs — and the audience — to sleep.

Bo Ellis pumped in 18 points to lead Marquette over Northwestern. Leading 37-31 at the half, the Warriors broke things open with a 20-8 edge over a 10-minute period. Northwestern went almost 3½ minutes without scoring a point in that span.

Two free throws by Wesley Cox with 37 seconds left helped Louisville beat Clemson. Cox' two points broke a 70-70 tie that existed since the 3:12 mark when Bill Butler scored a field goal for Louisville.

Reserve center Zack Perkins led a second-half splurge as Florida State knocked back a Memphis State charge and upset the power-laden Tigers.

Elsewhere, James "Fly" Williams scored 16 points and had 11 rebounds in 22 minutes to lead Austin Peay to a 97-64 victory over Bellarmine (Ky.); Luther Burden scored 17 points to lead Utah over Ohio 71-68; Bill Singletary scored 20 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in Mississippi State's 85-77 success over Georgia Tech; Davidson stopped Princeton 66-47 as John Falconi and Greg Dunn teamed for 33 points and Alfonso Brigham fired in a 12-foot jumper with two seconds left to give Los Angeles State a 69-68 victory over Wichita State.

Tony Jenkins had 26 points and 12 rebounds as Harvard defeated Holy Cross 97-89; Roger Banks hit a jump shot with 38 seconds left, leading Colgate to a 42-41 decision over Penn State; Greg Fountain scored 22 points to lead Army to an 80-55 romp over Kings Point; Chicago-Loyola ripped off 15 straight points midway in the first half and rolled past Denver 95-63 and Toledo used a tough zone defense to beat Michigan State 79-51.

St. Mary's Registers Sweeps

KINGSTON

St. Marys' Kingston swept Regina Coeli of Hyde Park in a pair of non-league Ulster County CYO basketball games. The Freshman team romped to a 56-30 decision to remain unbeaten in five contests, while the Tyros did the same with a 34-21 triumph.

Kevin Mapes led St. Marys' Frosh with 19 points. Tom Randle and Phil Brown backed up Mapes with 9 and 8 points, respectively. Healey paced Regina Coeli with 13 points.

In the Tyro game, Greg Lindsley of St. Marys' led all scorers with 12 points and teamate Dwayne Henderson added 7. Cerulli had 11 points for the losers.

Lakers and Knicks Winners

KINGSTON

The Lakers bombed the Knicks 76-52 and the Bucks outlasted the Hawks 46-37, in City Rec Department Junior basketball action.

Scipio Boler burned the nets for 30 points in pacing the Lakers, while teammates Jim Mack and Bill Berardi added 18 and 12 points, respectively. The Knicks were led by Phil Brown's 16 point output and 10 markers by Jim Lichtenberg.

An 18 point effort by Ron Mapes and 13 points by Mark Brown paved the way for the Bucks' victory. The losing Hawks got 18 points from Bill Dunn and a double figure performance from Tim Foster, who had 10 points.

St. Joseph's Teams Earn Split

KINGSTON

St. Joseph's CYO basketball teams gained a split in two games, the Small Fry beating St. John's of West Hurley and the Jayvees bowing to St. Mary's of Kingston 43-23.

Joe Uhl and Jeff Maines scored 12 points each against St. John's for the Small Frys. Murphy led St. John's with nine points. The Small Fry now have a 3-0 record and St. Joseph's overall record for all teams is 13-3.

Joe Kelderhouse (16) and Phil Haber (14) paced St. Mary's victory. Paul Lyle led St. Joe's with seven points and Phil Reilly had six.

St. Joseph's Varsity toppled Saugerties 51-24. Jeff Bubnack, Vince Dingman and Tim Conlin had 10 points each for St. Joe's. Woodward led Saugerties with eight.

Casciaro All-Events Leader

NEW PALTZ

Bob Casciaro of College Lanes captured Class A net all-events honors with a 1589 nine-game aggregate in the Ulster County Junior Bowling Association championship at College Lanes. He rolled 553 in the team event, 530 doubles and 1589 singles.

Randy Sisco of College Lanes, a 12-year-old, 136 average kegler, won the Class B title with 1515 off 563 team, 483 doubles and 469 singles.

Other winners:

Class C—Donald Marks, College Lanes, 541, 359, 360-1260.

Class C Girls—Lisa Pawlows, Bowlers Club, 787-1849.

Uhl and Link Dominate SAA Basketball Stats

SAUGERTIES

Statistically speaking, old UCCC grads have the Saugerties AA Basketball League covered like a blanket.

Jumpin' Joe Uhl has most points (127) and best game average (31.8) in four outings. Coleman Link leads in rebounds with 74 and Rod Chando and Nelson Marcelle share assists honors with 29 each. The only non-UCCC pace setters are Larry Marcus and Jim Plunket, tied for free throw shooting accuracy with .875 per cent each.

Ethan Allen Archery and The Handlebar are tied for the league lead with 4-1 records.

Skylab Astronauts Spot 'Curious Cloud'

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab astronauts have spotted a curious cloud churning within the atmosphere of the sun. A Harvard scientist called it one of the most interesting space observations in the last quarter of a century.

The object being studied by Skylab crewmen Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue is called a "solar prominence."

It is a mass of dense gas that is no hotter than 10,000 degrees and exists in the thin solar atmosphere that reaches temperatures of 2,000,000 degrees.

"This is the most spectacular prominence since 1947," Dr. George Withbroe of the Harvard College Observatory said Tuesday. "One thing we're hoping for is to see it erupt."

Withbroe said data collected by the Skylab astronauts could lead to improvements in the science of weather forecasting.

School Bus Breaks Down On Bridge

KINGSTON

The Rondout Creek Bridge detour route—heavily traveled for more than four months when the bridge was closed, and less frequently used during the past 2½ weeks that the bridge has been open — nearly became a necessity again Tuesday afternoon when a school bus broke down near the entrance to the bridge.

The bus, owned by Lucy Perry of Port Ewen, broke an axle on Wurts Street at about 3:30 p.m., blocking one lane of traffic for more than a half an hour.

City police were called to the scene, and a wrecker was called in to tow away the rather unique bridge barricade.

The reason for the breakdown was not immediately known. Police said there was no accident involved.

Traffic got moving again after 4 p.m. — undoubtedly causing sighs of relief from many of those who had to use the winding detour route while the bridge was being repaired.

Zoning Change . . . No Opposition

KINGSTON Common Council approval of a zoning change in Broadway East to clearing the way for the construction of a new Hadler's Nursing Home is expected following Tuesday night's Laws Committee public hearing on the subject.

Laws and Rules Chairman Donald E. Quick described the zoning change as "a minor technicality" involving a small section of land to the rear of the one-acre plot off Hasbrouck Avenue. The zoning change was from R-1 (residential) to R-6 (multiple residence).

No opposition was expressed to the proposal at last night's public hearing in Council Chambers at city hall. Dr. Morris Hadler, owner of Hadler's spoke in favor. Dr. Hadler also stated that with state approval, construction on the $1.6 million nursing home in Broadway East could begin next spring. The Common Council had previously approved the project.

Highway Department Opens Lumber Bids

KINGSTON The Ulster County Highway Department opened bids Tuesday for the purchase of lumber to complete construction of two equipment storage sheds at its facility on Quarry Street.

According to Jose Camallonga, Jr., superintendent of the Ulster County Highway Department, two firms submitted bids Tuesday. They were Cody Lumber Co. of Saugerties and Singer-Denman Hardware and Lumber Co. of Boiceville.

The bids covered a quantity of lumber and decking, including two-by-eights, two-by-tens and plywood. Camallonga said the cost of the project will be in the neighborhood of $24,000.

The highway department is in the process of analyzing the bids and specifications. Camallonga said a bid will be awarded either late this week or next week.

The lumber will be used primarily for construction of roofs on the two equipment sheds. The concrete shells have already been completed. The work will be performed by county employes.

Man Enters Guilty Plea

KERHONKSON A 26-year-old Stone Ridge man was charged with first degree reckless endangerment Tuesday for allegedly firing a rifle through a bungalow colony caretaker's window. He had previously argued with the caretaker, state police said.

According to police, Fenton Terbush, who was arrested, had done work at the Ben-Ann bungalow colony on Granite Road in Kerhonkson. He then had a dispute with the caretaker, William Brown, concerning the hours he had worked, police said, and on Sunday night a rifle slug came crashing through the window of Brown's home.

The Ellenville BCI investigators were called in, and traced the slug to a rifle owned by Terbush.

Terbush was arrested Tuesday and charged with felonious reckless endangerment. The charge was reduced with the consent of the District Attorney's office in a court appearance Tuesday night before Rochester Town Justice Harold Lipton. Terbush pleaded guilty to reckless endangerment as a misdemeanor, and was fined $100 and released.

Guilty Plea Is Entered

KINGSTON Vincent Perry, South Washington Avenue, Kingston, indicted by the Grand Jury for possession of a dangerous drug (cocaine) entered a plea of guilty to criminal possession in the fifth degree Tuesday in Ulster County Court.

Perry is alleged to have sold the cocaine to an undercover agent on Nov. 2, 1972.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino set Jan. 23 at 11 a.m. as the date for sentencing, pending a report of the Probation Department.

Assistant District Attorney John T. DallVechia represented The People and Barry Lippman was counsel for Perry.

Girl Injured On Toboggan

TOWN OF ULSTER A 13-year-old girl was listed in fair condition today at Benedictine Hospital after reportedly suffering shoulder and back injuries in a toboggan mishap Tuesday night in the Elmendorf Tract.

The girl, Laura Stangarone of Elmendorf Drive, was taken to the hospital by Fatum's Ambulance.

The mishap apparently did not involve a motor vehicle, and police were reportedly not at the scene. Further details were unavilable.

Licenses Under Suspension

ELLENVILLE The New York State Liquor Authority has ordered the suspension of a special on-premises liquor license for alleged improper conduct by the principals of the Gal Mac Tavern Inc., 69 Center Street, Ellenville.

The suspension will begin Jan. 7 and will last until Jan. 22.

The alleged improper conduct by the principals of the establishment led to their arrests for harrassment and possession of a dangerous instrument, the Liquor Authority said in announcing the suspension.

Sulphuric Acid Tank Truck Springs Leak

TONAWANDA, N. Y. (UPI)— A tank truck filled with sulphuric acid sprang a leak Tuesday night, sending fumes through this Erie County city and forcing police and firemen to close off all main roads to the city.

Walter Stubla, 44, a North Tonawanda policeman, was overcome by the fumes and taken to DeGraff Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Frederick Young, 43, of the town of Tonawanda, was treated at Kenmore Mercy Hospital for inhalation of fumes.

The leak occurred when a pressure valve gave way on the truck, which was parked at the Chemical Leamen Tank Lines Inc. depot.

Company officials said the gas was non-toxic, but it sent a foul-smelling cloud about 100 feet into the air. The gas then settled to the ground.

North Tonawanda police and firemen closed main roads into the city for about an hour after the leak, and the Columbus McKinnon Corp. plant was closed down.

Two Held For Jury

KINGSTON Sandra Rickett, 18, of 37 Gill Street, and Theresa Lee Vaughn, 16, of 176 Broadway were ordered held for the grand jury following a preliminary hearing before City Judge Hubert A. Richter Tuesday on charges of second degree robbery.

The two teenage girls were arrested Dec 5 on the charges after an alleged purse snatching incident on Albany Avenue.

Miss Vaughn was represented by Chester G. Krom; Robert L. Ricken represented Miss Rickett. Assistant District Attorney John Modjeska represented the people.

MICHAEL BURKE . . . CHAMBER GUEST

Burke Set for Dinner

KINGSTON

Michael Burke, president of Madison Square Garden and former president of the New York Yankees, will be the featured speaker at the 28th annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County.

The meeting, to be held Thursday, Jan. 17 in the Governor Clinton Hotel, will be highlighted by the introduction of the newly elected officers and members of the Board of Directors. President-elect Richard B. Mathews will succeed David H. Rylance.

The proceedings begin with reception at 6:15 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 and the program at 8:30. Music and dancing will be available following the program.

Len Cane, the Chamber's executive vice president, said: "We were interested in Mike Burke because he has proven himself in every endeavor he has undertaken. His background in business and sports makes him an attractive speaker for a function such as ours."

A native of Connecticut, Burke spent part of his early years in Ireland. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, where he was a halfback on the football team, later playing with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Burke was commissioned in the U.S. Navy during World War II and was assigned to the Office of Strategic Services. He is a holder of the Silver Star Medal. The postwar film "Cloak and Dagger" was based on one of his exploits.

Included in his background are careers in the motion picture industry, the U.S. Government in Germany, Ringling Bros. Circus, CBS television, the New York Yankess and Madison Square Garden. He has also been active in community affairs in New York City.

Reservations for the dinner must be made through the Chamber office. There will be no sale of tickets at the door. As always, the annual event is open to members and non-members alike.

Postmaster Delivers Message To Area Chamber Gathering

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk showed the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce Tuesday that the U.S. Postal Service can respond to emergencies, can rise to the occasion and can deliver the goods when called on to do so and while he didn't exactly leave the businessmen in the aisles he did leave the impression that the postal service is doing or at least has the capability of doing a pretty good job.

Newkirk was a last minute substitute for Thomas Donahue, section administrator for the Postal Service. Donahue, it seems, had other emergencies to meet, like the weekend storm that stymied transportation and the mails.

Newkirk is no stranger to emergencies—he was, after all, mayor of Kingston from 1949 to 1953 — and so he came to the Gov. Clinton breakfast prepared to "deliver the postal message."

Newkirk first gave a brief outline of the way the postal system works under the privately operated U.S. Postal Service. There are five regions in the nation with Kingston being part of the Northeast Region which takes in all of New England, New York and part of New Jersey. The regions are divided into districts and further divided into sections. Kingston is a section center, the headquarters for 374 post offices in an area ranging as far as Middletown.

The Postal Service is committed, Newkirk said, to overnight delivery of mail within a 150-mile radius of its posting. "We run constant checks to see if the mail is being delivered on time," he said. Newkirk contends that the only reason for failure of the mail to be delivered on time is human error "The service (manpower) and transportation has been supplied," he said. The Postal Service employs a system it calls an "Otis Test" which Newkirk says can pinpoint delays and correct them. "For instance," he said, "we had trouble getting mail in and out of Washington." The Otis test apparently showed problems in transportation. An air taxi out of Newark Airport solved that problem.

Newkirk touched on a number of other subjects during his address including:

Junk mail — "We don't consider it junk mail. It's third class mail and we want it. We have 160 employes in Kingston. If we didn't have third class mail we would employ only about 90." Newkirk later pointed out that the payroll for those 160 employes was in excess of $1.5 million a year.

New Rates — Newkirk said new rates would go into effect on Jan. 5 with the cost of a first class letter rising 25 per cent from the current eight cents to 10 cents. Airmail will go up, bulk mailing will go up, third class will go up, he said, adding that rates for non-profit organizations would not be increased.

The program ended on a Christmas note, with William Rylance praising a postal employe, Joseph Murphy, working out of the Uptown Station on Main Street as "kindly, helpful, a dedicated public servant."

Newkirk agreed that "Joe is exceptional, but generally speaking all our employes try to help."

"After all," Newkirk concluded, "we only have one thing to sell and that is service."

Pictorial Review of Some Scenes During Our First Storm

ROUGH GOING — Grocery cart wheels can be a challenge anytime of the year but when they have to be plowed through snow they need the heft of a man to push them. Battling the elements as well as the checkout lines is probably worth it however once you've reached the fireside where good food not only warms the tummy but the heart.

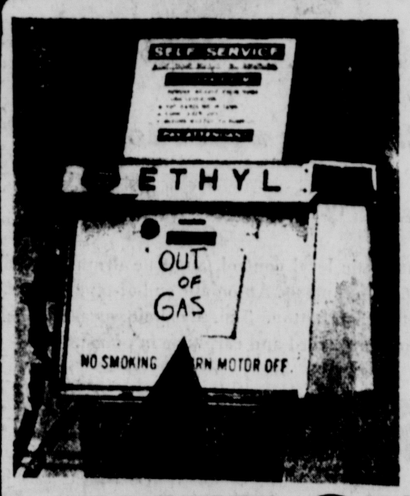

JOB GETS TOUGHER — This week's icy blasts certainly didn't make the postmen's jobs any easier, just when the mail load is the heaviest. With all the snow, ice, sleet and winds there was a robin in sight however — Don Robbins, who is shown here picking up another load of holiday cards no doubt.

17 Rockefeller Heads Staying On

Wilson Regime Has That Old Look

GOV. MALCOLM WILSON

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Except for two departed cabinet officers and a streamlined press office, the administration of New York's new governor looks much like that of the old.

Seventeen of 19 department heads of Nelson A. Rockefeller's administration accepted Gov. Malcolm Wilson's invitation to stay on for the new governor's one year as chief executive before the 1974 gubernatorial election.

In the press office, Wilson, whose flair for publicity pales in comparison with the dynamic Rockefeller, has trimmed a five-man operation down to two or three press secretaries.

State Environmental Conservation Commissioner Henry L. Diamond resigned last week to follow Rockefeller to the national Commission on Critical Choices for Americans.

Diamond has taken on the job of executive director of the commission, which is chaired by Rockefeller. An associate of the Rockefeller family for 14 years, Diamond will receive $50,000 in the new post, $6,000 more than his salary as commissioner.

The other departed cabinet member, New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo, had been rumored ready to leave for the past several months, since newspaper articles in May revealed that he was the subject of a state investigation into his role in winning a state construction contract for a friend in 1967.

He finally resigned last week after 10 years in office, announcing that he would return to private law practice.

Diamond has recommended his deputy, James Biggane, as his successor. The secretary of state is customarily a strictly political appointment.

The top three members of the Executive Department's inner circle will remain under the new governor. They are T. Norman Hurd, secretary to the governor, Michael Whiteman, the governor's counsel, and Richard L. Dunham, state budget director.

Two other major vacancies, associate judgeships on the state Court of Appeals, must be filled by Wilson.

He must choose successors to Chief Judge-elect Charles D. Breitel, a Republican, and Associate Judge Adrian P. Burke, a Democrat who is leaving the court to become corporation counsel for the City of New York.

Governors traditionally maintain the existing partisan balance in naming new judges to the court. The seven-member court now has five Republicans and two Democrats.

Rockefeller press secretary Ronald Maoirana has left to accept appointment as state commissioner for off-track betting and lottery, a newly created job. Wilson has selected veteran Republican publicist and political strategist Harry O'Donnell as his new press secretary.

O'Donnell will also assume the duties of communications director Hugh Morrow, who will continue to work for Rockefeller.

Deputy Press Secretary William R. Eckhof has been offered a new position in another department, assistant press secretary Warren E. Gardner Jr. left several weeks ago, and assistant press secretary Gerald F. McLaughlin will be promoted to deputy press chief under O'Donnell.

McLaughlin said a third press aide might be added later. He said his and O'Donnell's salaries have not yet been set.

Jerry A. Danzig will continue as special assistant for television and radio under Wilson.

Three other Rockefeller aides besides Morrow will leave with the governor: his personal secretary, Ann C. Whitman, speechwriter Joseph Persico, and political adviser James Cannon.

Chicago Display Out First Time Since WW 2

Most Dimming Yule Lighting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The lights of Christmas decorations aren't blinking so often or so brightly this year as Americans conserve energy.

An Associated Press survey a week before Christmas showed that cities, businesses and private citizens in all areas of the country have curtailed or eliminated electricity-burning holiday displays.

The Chicago Merchandise Mart, which has 4.2 million square feet and bills itself as the largest wholesale buying center in the world, eliminated its traditional illuminated Christmas display for the first time since World War II.

In past years, the block-long facade along the Chicago River featured a variety of displays, including a 1972 "Peace on Earth" sign that was kept lighted for two months to serve as an announcement of the end of fighting in Vietnam.

In Norwalk, Conn., the Chamber of Commerce downtown display lights are turned on between 6:30 and 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Previously, they were left burning all night, seven nights a week.

Mayor Joseph J. Zahorec of Lorain, Ohio, directed that decorative lights at six of seven city parks be eliminated. The lights at the seventh were left on because that's where Santa makes a traditional holiday appearance.

William E. Simon, head of the federal energy office, has okayed the use of lights on indoor decorations, saying that eliminating Christmas tree lights would be beyond the call of duty. But he urged Americans to eliminate outdoor trimmings that use energy.

Several groups that sponsor Christmas lighting contests dropped the programs or changed the rules. The Hoiness-LaBar Insurance Co. of Billings, Mont., for example, said that judges for the firm's annual decorating contest would not consider displays using electrical energy.

Gov. Jim Holshouser of North Carolina presided at a tree-lighting ceremony without lights. "The spirit of Christmas will have to light the tree this year," Holshouser said as his daughter placed a dove-shaped ornament on the branches of the tree outside his office.

At least one Christmas cutback wasn't intentional. City officials in Tempe, Ariz., noticed that the Christmas star atop a small mountain wasn't shining. When they went to investigate, they found the electrical wires had been cut. A note attached to the wires read: "There is an energy crisis."

The city officials were undeterred. The wiring was fixed and the star is shining again.

Short Class Week, A Longer Vacation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

To the 1,080 students at Big Bend Community College in remote Moses Lake, Wash., the energy crisis means a four-day class week and two extra weeks of Christmas vacation.

In Grapevine, Ark., grade schoolers keep one eye on the thermometer and one on the clock. Officials let classes out early on any day that temperatures fail to reach 45 degrees by 10 a.m.

The definition of "school day" is being rewritten in South Dakota so secondary and elementary school pupils can study at home when the school house is closed for lack of fuel.

Colleges and kindergartens alike are snapping off lights, extending vacations and juggling hours to cope with the shortage of oil and natural gas for heating and gasoline for school buses.

Contingency plans are being written and computers are being enlisted to help find ways to conserve energy.

But public high schools and elementaries cannot trim too many days from the schedule because laws in most states require 180 days of classes a year.

Colleges in New Jersey, Washington, New York, Connecticut, Maine, Vermont, New South Carolina, Arkansas, Texas and Florida have announced longer vacations or shorter class weeks.

In Schenectady, N.Y., Union College has canceled the first two weeks of classes in January and postponed or canceled wrestling, swimming and freshman basketball competitions.

Smaller schools have opted for the four-day week, such as West Arkansas Community College at Fort Smith, Ark., Lake City Community College in North Florida and Mary-Hardin Baylor in Belton, Tex.

Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel directed all public and private schools to remain closed until Jan. 6, stretching vacations an extra two or three days.

The New Jersey Board of Education took similar action and tacked on energy-saving measures such as curtailing student driving courses and limiting extracurricular activities.

Oklahoma City asked a federal judge to lift his integration order requiring busing of half the districts' 70,000 pupils. School officials claimed mandatory busing consumed 55 per cent of the gas supply allocated for the school system.

Portland, Ore., schools and all those in Delaware will not reopen after Christmas until Jan. 7.

Los Angeles area schools are turning out every other light, closing windows and canceling field trips. A four-day week is a possibility.

At Midland, S.D., the 270 residents don't worry about a fuel shortage in the schools. The city's artesian well produces water preheated by nature to 158 degrees.

It's routed through the 13 classrooms, a library, a lunch room and a gymnasium-auditorium at a cost of $10 a month.

COLD EVIDENCE — Judie Fox (L), and Marinanne Fsch of Trenton, N. J. holds slabs of ice after clearing it from their car in Trenton, N. J. A New Jersey snow storm dropped freezing rain over most of New Jersey. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Clock Symbolic For POW

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Glendon Perkins and his wife knew just what they wanted for Christmas—a grandfather clock to remind them of their seven years apart while he was a prisoner of war.

"We wanted to buy something symbolic of the long, lonely years" says Kay Perkins, 36.

A plaque on the clock reads, "The Merriest Christmas Ever 1973."

Perkins, an Air Force pilot, was held captive by the North Vietnamese from July 1966, when his plane was shot down, until Valentine's Day this year.

"I remember those Christmas Eves when our only family was 20 men,' said Perkins, 39. "All you could think about was being home. It was hard to sleep. We didn't have any watches, but we guessed the time. Around 6 a.m. we knew our wives and kids were just opening their presents."

The prisoners whiled away the hours last Christmas putting on Christmas skits. One played Santa. Others were carollers and they held a quiet church service in their cell.

"The Vietnamese were somewhat lenient on that holiday," Perkins says. "They let us have our skit and gave us extra food rations—turkey or buffalo."

But the men were depressed, he said, because the peace talks were stalled and the heavy U.S. bombing of the North had temporarily slacked off.

"Morale dropped," said Perkins. "We just had to condition ourselves that it might be years before we were free.'

For Mrs. Perkins and their four children there wasn't much to celebrate last Christmas either.

"It was painful," she said. "I'd try to kid myself, and not accept the idea that it was Christmas until the very last minute when I'd be too busy to hurt. I wished with all my heart Christmas wouldn't come."

But this year Christmas has recaptured its old meaning.

"I've got my Santa home," Mrs. Perkins said.

Since he came home, Perkins has gained 18 pounds, earned A's and B's in business studies as a college freshman and has been poked and pushed through the stores by eager Christmas shoppers.

"I'd forgotten about that part," he laughed, elbowing his way to the men's clothing department at a crowded shopping mall.

Before Perkins left for the war he was buying dolls, slot-cars and bikes to put under the tree.

Now it's hair blowers, clothes and stereo speakers.

The children are Ed, 19, Paul, 18, Cindy, 16, and Steve, 14.

Mrs. Perkins led her husband to the lingerie department.

Perkins flipped over the $160 price-tag on a velvet breakfast coat and muttered, "that s something I'll never get used to."

Strolling through the shops, they held hands and giggled like teen-agers.

"Things are back to normal in the Perkins household," she said. "We've gotten to the stage now where it's how good I scramble eggs or fix pancakes."

WINTER SIGN—Winter is indeed here, as this New Yorker finds out the hard way. This young miss, trying to avoid a puddle in New York City slipped, but still manages to laugh about it. Perhaps her thoughts were on the big event in a few days, Christmas Day. Anyway, she probably wasn't alone in her slip-shod way of walking. (UPI Telephoto)

Giant Frog Livens Play On Josef Stalin

NEW YORK (AP) — When the giant Frog leaped upon the table where Joseph Stalin sat and pounced from a hidden trampoline to the stage, a woman prostrate beneath her seat rose to see what was going on.

It was 4:30 a.m. Saturday and the middle of Act IV of Robert Wilson's "The Life and Times of Joseph Stalin," an "opera at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

The woman had been sleeping, like others in the audience 7:20 p. m. last Friday when the spectacle began.

Some of the 150 diehards never woke up for the finale, nearly 14 hours later at 8:45 a.m.

Seven acts filled the time. Wilson says the massive work explores a critical moment in Stalin's life—the death of his first wife.

"I can't figure out what it's all about because I have to stand out here by the doors," usher Miguel Chivite of Brooklyn said at 3:30 a.m. Saturday during one of six intermissions. "I see some beautiful scenes, but every time I walk back in, nothing has happened. It's still the same."

Some in the audience felt too much happened.

The cast of characters totaled 125. In addition to Stalin and his red-haired wife, they included: Marie Antoinette, Queen Victoria, Sigmund Freud and his wife Anna, the Frog, Woman with Shopping Cart and assorted animals, including 32 dancing ostriches. A goat, a dog and a sheep — all live — appeared briefly.

Also featured was a torsoless chorus. The backs of their heads emerged from holes in the floor. No one saw their faces until 8 a.m. when they turned in unison and leered.

Wilson played numerous roles, as did his 88-year-old grandmother from Waco, Tex. Stefan Brecht, son of well-known German playwright Bertold Brecht, played a waiter. Eighteen children and a four-month-old baby were extras, unconnected with the loosely structured company of players that Wilson, 29, has assembled from past shows.

"I like it, but I just can't absorb it all," reflected one woman between bites of a crepe dished up during the first intermission. Later breaks featured chili and bagels and lox. Many brown-bagged or carried a thermos of hot coffee.

The audience, which seem divided between hardcore theatre lovers and curiosity seekers, could come and go as it pleased.

Among those who staved till the bitter end was Jed Dietz of Deerfield, Mass. When asked whether he liked the production, Dietz replied: "I'm sorry, I can't speak."

Ache Indians Give In

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — The Ache Indians, who roamed free in their forests for centuries after other South American tribes were colonized, are finally giving in to the settlers' shotguns and missionaries' Bibles.

About 200 Aches — pronounced Ah-Chays — now live at the "Colony," a reservation started in 1968 by a retired sergeant named Manuel de Jesus Pereira whom many accused of slaving and gross neglect of the Indians but whom the Indians call "Papa."

Experts say 300 to 700 Aches still roam free, far from the reservation, while another 100 to 200 drift in and out of the Colony.

For decades, the Aches have been wary of white frontiersmen who shot them for sport or were in search of children to be used as servants.

Recently a road was cut through their land, and thousands of families from neighboring Brazil moved into their forests with bulldozers and plans to stay.

"These people are primitives and do not know the difference between a wild plant or animal and something that belongs to a plantation," said Col. Tristan Infanzon, head of the government's two-man Indian bureau.

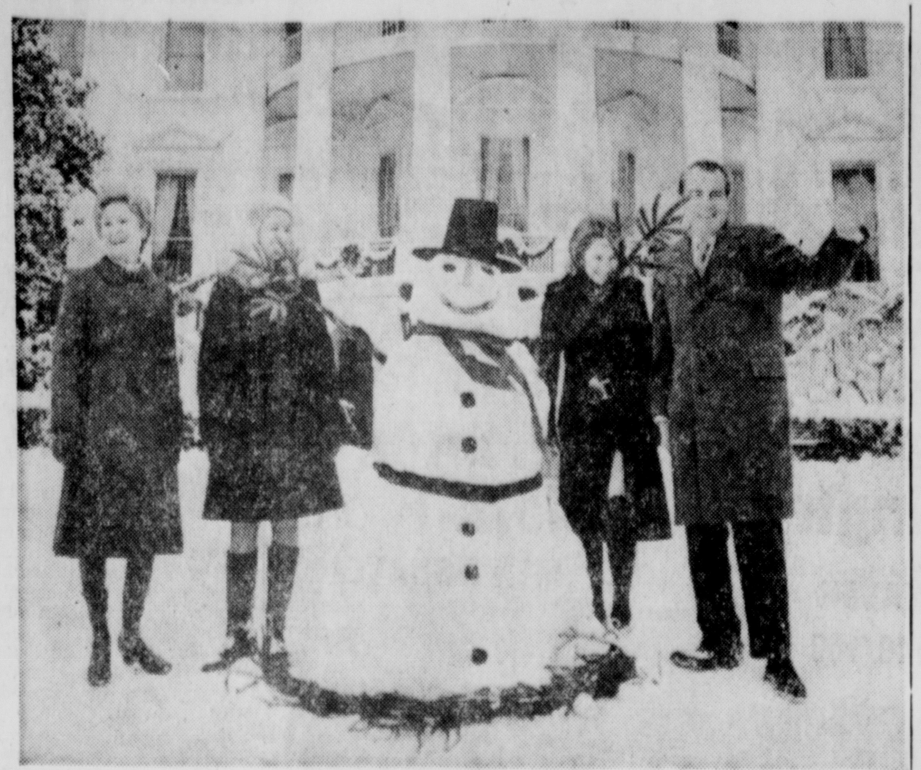

"And there are no saints out there among the settlers. When they find Indians they think have been stealing, they shoot them like animals."

Paraguay and Brazil are building the world's largest hydroelectric project along the Parana River, at the edge of the Aches' eastern Paraguay hunting grounds, so the future looks even bleaker.

The Colony is hardly the Aches' idea of home anthropologists say, but it appears to be their last resort.

Government troops are now patrolling to make sure squatters don't kill the Indians on their own land, but there are still conflicts.

Ag Book for Saving Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has published another of its yearbooks which it says will help families save money. It will cost $5.70, up 60 per cent from last year.

The 1973 edition is "Handbook for the Home" and includes 78 chapters ranging in topics from family money management, housing and tips on shade trees to home heating and community services.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says in a foreword the book "is a guide to helping families use their incomes" more wisely. "It suggests ways that families can live fuller, more secure and more satisfying lives, and helps them avoid costly pitfalls of all kinds," he said.

Although the one chapter deals with air conditioning and heating, it does not specifically get into the effects of the current energy crisis on family living. These tips are included, however:

—"Furnaces for central warm-air systems using gas, oil and electric resistance heaters or heat pumps with electric resistance boosters heat quickly. This is a desirable feature for heating on chilly fall and spring mornings.

—"A basement is the best place for a furnace, especially coal-fired furnaces. These are used where coal is cheap but they are apt to be dusty or messy."

Department yearbooks have been published in most years since 1894, and until recently have been oriented usually toward farmers.

Yearbook Editor Jack Haves said the $5.70 charge for this year's edition — compared with $3.50 annually since 1969 — was the result higher printing and paper costs. Printing and direct sales are handled by the government's Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office.

The yearbook is also a traditional public relations link between USDA and Congress. Each year Congress gets 233,450 free copies, including allocations of 55) books to each senator and 400 to each representative.

Members of Congress then send the books free of charge to voters, schools, libraries and others back home.

The real measure of the USDA yearbook's annual success are the cash sales handled by Government Printing Office.

The biggest seller, through Nov. 17, is "Consumers All" published in 1965 which has sold 125,396 copies. The 1949 edition of "Trees" has sold 120,595 copies, and last year's book, "Lanscape for Living," has sold more than 68,000.

Texas Jewelry Executive Turns Environmentalist

DALLAS (UPI) — For eight years, Ken Gjemre wore the blue serge of a senior vice president of a jewelry corporation.

Now he wears wrinkled shirts that he can't keep tucked in, and he shuffles with his dog through the aisles of his shop jammed with 250,000 used books and magazines.

"I guess I've been an environmentalist all my life—even before we knew the word—hating to throw things away and hating the waste," he said. "Then finally I couldn't take it anymore."

So he chunked his executive image. Gjemre, 52, now has a beard and a potbelly.

"I really got to the point philosophically and politically where I couldn't live a life."

He said his "recycling" book store is not a mere whim, but the outgrowth of a greedy society.

"I think I'm the prototype of the future," he said, sitting on a car seat converted into a couch. "We are going to have to see much more of this with the inevitability of shortages and having to cut back on the world's resources."

Gjemre's store winds through doors chopped through brick walls, the ragged edges still bare, into the reference room packed with encyclopedias and then into a section for religious works.

"For years I had been quite upset with the waste that's in the retail kind of operation," he said. "I started out with small appliances and soon realized that about nine-tenths of everything we sold wasn't being used. They were given as gifts, like waffle irons, and ended up in someone's closet and never really used."

Now Gjemre sells only used books, magazines and records. He pays 10 per cent of the face value for current magazines and then sells them for half their original price.

"I don't buy anything from publishers. I buy only from people," he said.

Along one wall of his shop, a complete set of Life Magazines is stacked. And a row of apple crates line the aisles filled with aging National Geographics. He has an autographed copy of Richard Nixon's "Six Crises" for sale at $15, and recently sold a first issue of Playboy for $200. A four-volume set of Eros magazine, which cost publisher Ralph Ginzburg a conviction for obscenity, goes for $135.

Under a smudgy counter top lies the first issue of Harper's Weekly, dated 1867, and a rare first copy of Life.

"I was casting about for something to do, because I knew I couldn't go back," he said of the store. "There was no sense for me to be over there play-acting, and when you're in that kind of responsible position, you almost have to believe what you're doing."

Silent Violence ... Asbestos Deaths

TYLER, Tex. (AP — "If 800 workers were killed all at one time, people would scream bloody murder. Instead, one-third are going to die early and slowly and horribly and no one's going to know about it."

Steve Wodka, Washington legislative aide for the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union said the "silent violence," took place at the Pittsburgh-Corning asbestos plant from 1954 until it was closed in Feb. 1972. The plant employed 863 workers who made products of asbestos, a fibrous insulation material.

Not until 1971 were employes told that the gray clouds of asbestos dust that swirled in the plant were linked to lung cancer and death.

Dr. Irving Selikoff, of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York, has estimated that approximately one-third of the 863 former employes will die early: 150 from lung cancer, 50 from mesotphelioma, 45 from cancer of the colon, rectum or stomach, and 50 from asbestosis.

In 1966, a Pittsburgh Corning physician, Dr. Lee B. Grant, approached the Chest Hospital and later the U.S. Public Health Service about a possible study of worker's asbestos-related problems. Dr. Grant did not pass the information to workers until 1971. Until 1971, studies of the Tyler plant lay buried in federal government offices and asbestos dust regulations remained unchanged and unenforced.

In the meantime, Herman Yandle, his brother J.C., H.T. Thomas, Harold Spencer, Frank Spencer, Willie Hurtt, Tom Belcher and Ray Hicks worked at the plant and breathed the dust.

So did Mitchell Walker, 53, and Robert Thomas, 51, now dead.

Relatives say they died of lung disorders.

"I don't feel angry about it except at the people that lied to us so long for so many years," said J.C. Yandle, a leather-faced, rangy man who since he lost his job pounds out a bare-knuckles living on a small ranch north of Tyler.

When the plant shut down in 1972, it had 63 employes. Eight were subsequently found to have asbestosis, a scarring of the lungs induced by breathing large amounts of asbestos dust over long periods of time.

Asbestosis may or may not be fatal, but it does cause shortness of breath and is linked to lung cancer. One out of every five asbestos workers in the U.S. dies of lung cancer.

The Texas Chest Foundation, which works in conjunction with the Chest Hospital at Tyler, has applied for a $1 million contract from the National Cancer Institute to study the development and effects of lung cancer in those who worked at the Tyler plant.

According to Dr. George Hurst, director of the hospital, the study will be the first attempt ever "to learn of the early development of lung cancer of asbestos-exposed smoking people and whether it can be diagnosed early."

Under the study, which will run about 10 years and longer if renewed, the 869 former employes of the Tyler plant will be tracked down and brought in every six months for examination to see if and when cancer appears as a tiny spot on their lungs.

Then attempts will be made to treat the patients.

"We have quite a bit of evidence that waiting until it (cancer) is seen is too late," Hurst said.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

ON THE SLY: (Q.) I am seeing Linda just about every night. She slips out to meet me while she is supposed to be studying. Her parents won't let her have dates.

I asked her if I could come over and meet them but she said no. I believe if I could talk to them we could work something out. I would like to know what you think about this. Linda is 15 and I am 17.—Serious in Pennsylvania.

(A.) I agree with you. An open meeting with Linda's parents would be preferable to what you and she are doing now. You do not say where you meet, but wherever it is you and she are inviting trouble

BEST FRIEND: (Commert) I read the letter from the boy who is a loner and wants to change. I am a girl and I was kind of a loner. I had friends but not a best friend.

Then I found Janis. She and I like the same things and people, and do just about everything together. I make better grades and enjoy more and have more friends with Janis as my best friend.—Ex-loner in Florida.

(A.) Congratulations and thanks for your letter.

There is a time in the life of most teenage girls in which there is no substitute for a best friend.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Today's hand illustrates both luck in duplicate and the modern expert use of the grand-slam force.

North is really excited when he hears his partner's forcing two spade opening bid. Then he just raises to three with every intention of taking strong action later. The South jumps to five notrump and North can't figure what is going on. He has all he has shown plus at least one ace and his partner is trying for a grand salm.

North's first thought is just to bid seven spades. Then he stops to think and decides that his partner must hold either seven spades and six hearts or six of each suit plus the ace of clubs. He really needed that for his grandslam force.

The modernists respond to a grand slam force by bidding seven with two of the three tops honors and otherwise showing their trump strength by various grandations. North decides that his trumps are a triffle too good for a mere six club bid and bids six diamonds. South studies a while and decides to settle for just six spades.

Where does duplicate luck come into the picture? Because seven spades is a reasonable contract. It makes against almost all even or nearly even breaks in the two major suits but it just doesn't happen to wheel in this time. Science has paid off but the unscientific bidders who went down at seven are entitled to mild compliants.

Attica Inmate Included in Group

Rocky Grants Christmas Clemencies for 11

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Six of the 11 state prisoners granted Christmas clemencies have been serving sentences resulting from conviction on first or second-degree murder charges.

Outgoing Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's commutations will permit the prisoners to appear before the State Parole Board for release at an earlier date than specified by their original sentences.

The clemencies included one for a man who was an inmate at Attica State Prison during the September 1971 rebellion.

The governor's office said Edward C. Young, 52, was serving a sentence of 15 years to life at Attica when the rebellion broke out. Forty-three persons died as a result of the uprising.

The announcement did not say whether Young participated in the uprising. It noted that Yound testified before the investigating commission and impressed the chairman "with his maturity and objectivity."

Young attended schools in Jamestown and was convicted of second-degree murder after an attack on his wife and father-in-law in 1960 in Chautauqua County after marital difficulties. The father-in-law died after the attack.

"His conduct while in prison indicates that he gained insight into his past lack of good judgment, which led to the crime of which he was convicted," the governor's office said.

With the commutation, Young will be eligible for parole in January.

Other commutations were granted to:

—Anibal Calo, 35, sentenced to 20 years to life on first-degree murder and first-degree arson charges in connection with a fire in Suffolk County on May 3, 1963. Calo set fire to a building in which he and fellow restaurant employes lived to force an improvement in the poor living conditions. His brother died in the fire. He will be eligible for parole in January.

—Alfredo Gracias, 30, sentenced to 20 years to life on a first-degree murder charge. He was a member of a gang called the Forsythe Street Boys that went out to avenge the killing of another gang member in August 1959. A member of the gang fired a rifle into a crowd in Manhattan, killing two people. "While Mr. Gracias was convicted of murder," the governor's office said, "he did not actually possess or fire any weapon." He will be eligible for parole in January.

—Paul Gatling, 39, convicted of second-degree murder in connection with the killing of a man in an armed robbery in October 1963. Gatling is active in church work in the prison and, the governor's office said, "has also been of great assistance to prison authorities in times of inmate disturbances in helping to reduce tensions among his fellow inmates and restore order." He will be eligible for parole in January.

—Sandra Hall, 23, sentenced to 20 years to life for kidnaping and criminal possession of a dangerous weapon. In July 1966, Miss Hall, her mother and three adult males kidnaped and tried to kill a man in Manhattan with whom she was acquainted. "While Miss Hall was convicted for her participation in these criminal acts," the governor's office said, "The evidence indicates that she played a passive role and that the attack on the victim was carried out by the three males." She will be eligible for parole in January 1975 and can qualify immediately for the Temporary Release program of the State Correctional Services department.

—Leroy Louis, 37, sentenced to 20 years to life on a first-degree murder charge. Louis and an accomplice killed a man in February 1955 during an attempted robbery in the Bronx. "Mr. Louis has demonstrated exemplary conduct in assisting prison authorities quell inmate disturbances, particularly at Green Haven prison," the governor's office said. "Prison officials have commended Mr. Louis for his positive help and leadership during times of tension and particularly note his selfless assistance of a correction officer who suffered a seizure during a prison disturbance." Louis also obtained several vocational skills in prison. Eligible for parole in January.

—David Ramos, 32, sentenced to 15 years to life on a second-degree murder charge. Ramos and two companions robbed two men in Brooklyn in August 1962. The two men died of stab wounds. "While Mr. Ramos was convicted for his participation in these crimes," the governor's office said, "he did not personally possess a weapon nor stab either of the victims." Ramos acquired several vocational skills during his 11 years in prison. Eligible for parole in January.
